Carpenter's Daughter Is Found on Virginia Road to Capital.

BLACKMAIL EFFORT IS BELIEVED MOTIVE

Girl Says Youths Questioned Her About Neighbor Who Lately Got $5,000.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 2.—Bound to a tree, but unharmed, Caroline Musante, 14, who had been missing throughout the day, was found late tonight, and the story she told of her abduction started officers in search of two men believed to be planning blackmail.

Though suffering slightly from exposure the girl was unharmed. She was discovered by her brothers and neighbor boys.

According to the story told police, the girl was waiting for the school bus near the gasoline filling station of her uncle, John Musante, when two men, described as being about 20 years old and shabbily dressed, called to her, threatening death if she did not respond.

Quizzed About Neighbor.

Frightened she accompanied them in a nearby woods, where she was tightly bound to a tree. The young men then questioned her about a neighbor, H. Payson Porter, who recently obtained $5,000 in a suit for damages in an automobile in which his child was killed.

When they failed to get any definite information about the Porter family, the men departed leaving her tied to the tree all day. About nightfall they returned and questioned her in the same manner again, without success, and again departed.

Screams Bring Rescue.

Weary and sickened and fearing a night of further torture, she screamed for help. A searching party among the many enlisted in her aid was brought to the scene by her screams at 8:45 o'clock tonight.

She is a daughter of Lee Musante, a carpenter, and lives about 6 miles north of here on the Fredericksburg-Washington highway. She is a pupil at the Stafford Court House School and has to travel about 10 miles on the school bus.

Girl's Body Found; Note Asks Ransom

Child Is Discovered Dead on Long Island as Letter Arrives.

Mineola, N. Y., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—A letter demanding $1,000 ransom for the return of his 15-year-old daughter was delivered at the home of James J. O'Connor, Rockaway Beach contractor, a few hours after the girl's body was found in a lonely Long Island woods today.

The girl, Mary Helen O'Connor, had been assaulted, medical examiners said, and beaten to death. Two wounds in her head appeared to have been inflicted with the rounded end of a mechanic's hammer. The ransom letter, signed with one finger print, arrived at the bereaved O'Connor home with the evening mail. It directed O'Connor to deposit the money at the home of Joseph J. Fitzhenry in Floral Park and await further instructions.

The girl was on the way to the Fitzhenry home when she disappeared on January 27. She had planned to spend the week-end with Fitzhenry's daughter, Virginia, 16.

WATCHMAN'S SLAYER IS BELIEVED CAUGHT

Suspect Is Held in Virginia After Alleged Attempt at Burglary.

The man who allegedly crushed the skull of William Simms, 65 years old, colored watchman of the Dickey & Sons feed and coal establishment at Benning, D. C., on January 22, is under arrest in Accomac, Va.

He is Joseph Goodman, alias Joseph Smith, 27 years old, colored, of Baltimore. He was named by George McK. Pittmond, 33 years old, colored, of Baltimore, as his accomplice in the murder of the aged watchman, who was killed while resisting a robbery of the safe in his employer's office.

A missing portion of his right thumb, observed by the sheriff of Accomac, caused the identification of Goodman, who was caught Saturday night in Accomac while allegedly attempting to burglarize a house.

The missing thumb, mentioned as an identification mark in a circular sent out by Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke, coupled with the similarity of fingerprints of the burglary suspect and the man sought in the Simms murder, convinced police that their quarry had been caught.

Pittmond told police in his confession that Goodman crushed the head of Simms with a combination hammer and punch and shot him when the aged watchman refused to admit them to the place under the pretext of obtaining a night's lodging.

Chief of Detectives Burke said a United States commissioner's warrant, charging Goodman with murder, would be sworn out today. Detective Sergts. John C. Daiglish and Jerry Flaherty, of the homicide squad, will leave with the warrant to bring Goodman to Washington.

Shipping Board Fund Is Approved in House

The House yesterday approved a $3,202,744 appropriation for the Shipping Board in the next fiscal year and extended the $50,000,000 construction fund for another year.

Another Cut Seen In Cigarette Prices

Popular Brands Reported Aiming at Recapture of Volume.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The New York Evening Post said today that another slash to $5.40 a thousand in the wholesale price of popular brand cigarettes was believed imminent by sources usually well informed regarding the cigarette manufacturing industry.

The cut, the Post said, was expected to affect the leading brands of the "Big Four" companies, American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, R. J. Reynolds and P. Lorillard.

Coming so soon after the January 1 reduction to $6 a thousand, an additional slash now, said the Post, would be interpreted to mean that the Big Four not only are aiming at competition from cheaper brands but are planning a concerted effort to recapture some of the business lost to the "roll your own" smoker.

SENATE'S VOTE PAVES WAY TO FEDERAL CUTS

2 Departments Allowed to Reduce Personnel But Not Pay.

ACTION OF CHAMBER NOT FINAL, HOWEVER

Bratton's Original Proposal of Ordering Slash Is Amended on Floor.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Treasury and Postoffice Departments were authorized yesterday by the Senate to save 5 per cent from their 1934 appropriations, but without additional furloughs or cuts in Federal pay.

Exemption was voted employes, 42 to 29, on motion of Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado. Immediately afterward the Senate adopted the Bratton amendment, authorizing executives to make the 5 per cent reduction, by a vote of 51 to 24.

Although the amendment prohibits furloughs or wage cuts, other than now in effect or proposed in the economy bill, there is no restriction on saving the 5 per cent by discharging workers.

Tydings Sees Dismissals.

"What we really have done," Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, told the Senate, "is to force department heads to save this money by dismissing Federal employes."

The action of the Senate was not final, in the sense that the whole battle will have to be fought over again when the economy section of the bill is reached. Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, author of the 5 per cent cut plan, yesterday laid on the table an amendment to the economy section, which would make the cut applicable to all departments. Senator Costigan served notice he will propose an identical exemption for employes when the Bratton proposal comes up.

Senator Bratton's original proposal "directed" Treasury and Postoffice heads to make the 5 per cent cut, and was ruled out by the chair on a point of order Wednesday. Senator Bratton appealed, but yesterday withdrew his appeal and submitted a new amendment merely "authorizing" executives to make the slash.

Nevertheless, he said he thought heads of departments would regard Senate action on the proposal as a mandate. The amendment he has offered to the economy section contains the original language, "directing" the cut. It exempts appropriations for public buildings.

Meantime, Senator Byrnes (Democrta), Maryland, proposed a substitute for the reorganization provision in the economy section. It provides for regroupings ordered by the President to become law within 60 days, making no provision for congres-

Gen. Sandino Calls On Sacasa and Ends His Long Rebellion

Asserts Peace Is Fact, Now That Marines Have Departed.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Gen. Augusto Sandino, Liberal Nicaraguan leader who has been carrying on a long and sanguinary conflict against the government, announced after a surprise conference at the presidential palace tonight that "peace is now a fact."

The picturesque general, who had been in revolt since 1927, came here by airplane from his mountain headquarters and will return by the same method tomorrow. Tonight he slept in the presidential mansion.

"Nicaragua entered a new era when the last United States marine departed from our soil," he said. "Our fight is finished, and this enables all Nicaraguans to embrace each other fraternally and to be worthy of the moral respect of the whole world now that we have proved and will continue to prove that we are capable of governing ourselves alone. Peace is now a fact."

The general said that he had absolute control over all his officers and men. He foresaw absolutely no trouble when he returns and orders them to lay down their arms.

"In case some unforeseen objection is raised by my soldiers situated far from central control, and they continue the rebellion, I have placed myself at the orders of President Sacasa and will aid him in forcing them to follow my example," he declared.

GEN. AUGUSTO SANDINO.

The consensus in high government circles was that Gen. Sandino meant what he said. An official spokesman asserted that much good was expected from the general's surprise visit. The details of peace conditions have not been officially divulged.

WEEKLY CAPITAL AID BOOSTED TO $30,000

Delegation Asks Committee of Senate Right to Get R. F. C. Loan.

The emergency relief committee of the board of public welfare decided last night to increase the weekly allowance for unemployed from $25,000 to $30,000 and to reduce the residence requirement, but it will continue to refuse aid to unmarried men because of the shortage of funds.

Various problems connected with the administration of the recently appropriated $625,000 were discussed at a four-hour session.

Formerly applicants for aid had to be residents of Washington for a year prior to July 1, last year, but under the modification the required residence is cut to a year from the date of application.

As much as the committee would like to provide for single destitute men, the scarcity of funds makes it impossible at this time, Sidney F. Taliaferro, chairman of the committee, said.

Although the amount of relief distributed each week is to be increased to $30,000 for several weeks, probably throughout the winter season, there will be no increase in the approximately $3.85 allowed each family, or an average of four persons. The in-

JAPANESE BAYONET STOPS U. S. OFFICER

Colonel Plans Protest on Challenging of Marine Lieutenant in China.

Peiping (Friday), Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Col. L. M. Gulick, of the United States Marine guard, stationed here, decided today to make informal representations to the commandant of the Japanese guard concerning an incident involving an American Marine officer and a Japanese sentry.

The incident occurred when Lieut. Robert L. Skidmore, of Indianapolis, Ind., was accosted by the Japanese sentry when the American was passing the Japanese barracks.

Col. Gulick, after studying Skidmore's report of the incident, decided that it did not warrant diplomatic correspondence and that no formal representation would be made. He indicated, however, that he would take it up with the Japanese colonel in charge.

Skidmore, intelligence officer in the Marine detail of the legation guard in Peiping, in his report on the incident said the sentry blocked the public sidewalk. As he was passing, the lieutenant reported, the Japanese wheeled and thrust his bayonet close to Skidmore's abdomen.

He said he quickly grasped the bayonetted rifle, however, and before it could reach him, pushed the sentry "to a safe distance." Skidmore said he made no attempt to take the rifle away from the Japanese or disarm him, but merely pushed him away.

The lieutenant reported the Japanese threw cartridges into the rifle chamber, but that he proceded on his

Tokyo Hears Roosevelt Will Recognize Soviet

Tokyo (Friday), Feb. 3 (U.P.).—Reports current in official circles today said the government had learned informally that President-elect Roosevelt is considering appointment of a United States Ambassador to Russia and resumption of Russo-American diplomatic relations.

It was intimated that Japan would consider such a step as unfortunate, since it is the general opinion here that the American Government is supporting the Soviet's "anti-Japanese policy" in Asia.

Trade Commission Fund Is Increased

House Boosts Allowance to $801,000 to Complete Present Inquiries.

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday raised the appropriation for the Federal Trade Commission from $510,00 to $801,470.

The teller vote on the amendment by Representative Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, was 111 to 85.

Just previously, however, the House voted down a proposed amendment by Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, to raise the Trade Commission appropriation to $1,000,000. This would have allowed the carrying ahead of proposed new commission investigations.

The Bankhead amendment provides only for the carrying out of inquiries now under way, including the inquiry into public utilities.

Pupils Lack of Lunch Cash Causes School Conference

Dr. Ballou Finds Many Children Can Not Afford 25 Cents Per Week for Milk and Crackers; Plans to Provide Relief.

Discovery that an increasing number of elementary school children are unable to bring the customary 25 cents each week to pay for midmorning cracker and milk lunches prompted Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou yesterday to call a conference to work out ways and means of providing this nourishment.

The conference, to be attended by school officials, Parent-Teacher heads, relief workers, medical authorities and supervising principals, will take place at 10 a. m. Monday at the Franklin School.

In announcing the conference, Dr. Ballou said that the children are believed to be in greater need of these lunches than ever before.

The superintendent revealed that the school officials and officers of the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers have now under consideration the revival of a central committee which was organized a few years ago for the purpose of disseminating food.

"We desire also," Dr. Ballou said, "to consider ways and means of handling this matter so that the schools and those connected with them will assume full responsibility for providing this midmorning lunch, and do it in such a manner that it will in no way overlap or interfere with the systematic relief work now being provided in the homes through the various welfare agencies of the city."

FOREST-POWER PLAN LAID OUT BY ROOSEVELT

Tennessee Valley Will Be Scene of Gigantic Experiment.

REACTION OF PUBLIC IS FLOOD OF PRAISE

Eventual Work for 200,000 and Current for Farms Among Highlights.

Warm Springs, Ga., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The paeans of praise rising from the Tennessee Valley over the Roosevelt program for a broad-scale experimental development encouraged the President-elect tonight to spread his hopes to a national basis.

The dream for a vast undertaking on the highlands and valleys of the ranging Tennessee watershed, that will bring about a new balance of population and wipe out unemployment, was unfolded today by Mr. Roosevelt to newspapermen.

The afternoon mail and messenger boys brought in an astonishing response and the smiling President-elect began listing his plans immediately to encompass all sections of the Nation.

Main Points in Program.

The experimental Tennessee program involves:

1. Reforestation in the highlands.
2. Creation of flood control basins, beginning at Cove Creek in the Clinch River.
3. A huge waterpower development to spread cheap electricity throughout the farms and cities.
4. Reclamation of the flooded bottom lands for agriculture.
5. Elimination of the nonprofitable marginal lands from farm pursuits.
6. A back-to-the-farm movement that will restore balance of population.
7. Improved navigation.

Reaction Favorable.

Listening to the outbursts of enthusiasm that greeted his announcement, Mr. Roosevelt told newspapermen: "I am very much gratified. If national planning works in these States, I am confident it can be made to work on the other watersheds of the country."

Immediate employment for 50,000 to 70,000 men in the reforestation and eventual new work for 200,000 persons is contemplated by the Tennessee watershed project, which the President-elect will put up to Congress at the earliest moment.

But the Roosevelt dream goes beyond this. It is his hope for wiping out the bloc of ever-existing unem-

End of Farm Board Funds Voted Down

Full Amendment to Kill $500,000 Appropriation Defeated in House.

(Associated Press.)

The Fuller amendment to the independent offices supply bill to kill the $500,000 appropriation for the Farm Board for the first six months of the next fiscal year was defeated yesterday in the House.

Chairman Woodrum of the committee that recommended the Farm Board appropriation opposed its elimination, but told the House that "some disposition is going to be made and is going to be made shortly" of the Farm Board.

Another amendment by Hart (Democrat), Michigan, to prevent the expenditure of any of the $500,000 for traveling expenses of "any persons" was rejected, 59 to 34.

3 OF PROJECTS IN MALL ADOPT $8 WAGE SCALE

General Walkout Looms in Labor Dispute.

LAW VIOLATED, UNION INSISTS

Leaders Will Protest to Doak; Wire Sent Roosevelt.

Surprise posting on three Federal building projects in the Mall of an $8 a day wage for union carpenters, effective February 9, last night lent a more serious complexion to wage troubles that began with squabbles between contractors and union officials over wages paid carpenters by contractors building the inaugural reviewing stands in front of the White House.

Informed of the posting of the new wage scales for carpenters, Richard A. Dickson, president of the Central Labor Union here, declared:

"This is in direct violation of the Bacon-Davis law and of an executive order governing wage scales on the Government building projects here.

General Strike Possible.

"The prevailing wage is $11 and has been agreed to by both the union and contractors, and no decision has been rendered by the Labor Department that I know of that would provide a change."

The labor union officials said a committee of carpenters will visit Secretary of Labor Doak today in an effort to ascertain whether he has

While believing that conciliation would bring about an adjustment of the wage controversy, Dickson admitted, when questioned, that a strike, tying up the entire Mall project, was in the realm of possibility.

Position of Conciliation.

Dickson reiterated that he had no power to call a strike, that his position was one of conciliation and adjustment and that the call for a strike would have to come from a particular union.

Labor officials pointed out that under agreement, however, if the carpenters decided to strike, then the other trades represented in the Washington Building Trades Council would be obligated to follow suit.

It was learned, however, last night that a temporary estrangement exists between the carpenters and the trades council. Despite this, labor leaders hinted that in the event of such a drastic step as a strike the building trades would probably go along with the carpenters.

Wire Sent to Roosevelt.

Officials of the local carpenters' union yesterday dispatched a telegram to President-elect Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., asking his inter-

SENATE 'KEG' PARTY EVIDENTLY DROPPED

Dill's Proposed Beer Testing Soiree Seen Failure as Percentage Is Cut.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Something seems to have happened to the official senatorial beer evening or keg party which was proposed some time ago by Senator Clarence C. (Daffodill) Dill, of the State of Washington, to test the offensive power of 3.2 beer and the beer-resistance of a mixed jury of statesmen and citizens. The proposal was received with enthusiasm by a number of Washington citizens and many names were quickly volunteered for jury duty, but up to this time there has been no keg party in the Senate. In the meantime, too, the strength of the beer proposed in the beer bill has been reduced from 3.2 to 3.05, which is a good deal like putting a muzzle on a stuffed lion, and the net result has been some publicity for Senator Clarence C. (Daffodill) Dill.

You might think that a senator, being a member of the world's greatest deliberative body, would be above caring for theatrical publicity, but some of the brothers are chorus ladies at heart and are always losing their jewels in one way or another next to pure reading matter. It is very enlightening to hear Washington journalists plotting certain types of

House Votes Boost In Veterans' Funds

Total of $966,838,634 Is Approved, Increase of $18,039,634.

(Associated Press.)

A total of $966,838,634 was approved yesterday by the House for the Veterans' Administration in the coming fiscal year. It is larger by $18,039,634 than the appropriation for the current year.

Of the total, $372,800,000 is for military and naval compensation; $219,930,000 for Army and Navy pensions; $110,538,514 for hospital facilities; $134,000,000 for insurance; $100,000,000 for loans on service certificates, and $5,000,000 for hospital construction.

No effort was made in the House to reduce the veterans' appropriation.

HOOVER TO ADDRESS LEGISLATORS' GROUP

Meeting at Shoreham Aims to Reconcile State and Federal Taxes.

President Hoover will today address the American Legislators Association, meeting at the Shoreham Hotel, for the purpose of attempting to reconcile State and Federal tax systems by sponsoring the creation of an agency able to represent the States.

White House aids said the Chief Executive would deliver principally an address of welcome, but that he might discuss briefly some of the problems which are due for consideration by the assembly, which is composed of representatives of the governors and Legislatures of 32 States.

It is the design of the association to create an agency to represent the States to confer with the subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, which was appointed to study conflicting taxation, so that there may be a simplification of tax procedure throughout the country.

The association, which will meet for two days, views the overlapping of tax exactions as one of the vital factors in the costliness of government. Both the Federal and State Legislatures are viewed by the group as waging intense competition for revenues.

Their aim is not only to reduce the multiplicity of taxes, but to effect greater economy by the elimination of the duplications of functions, caused by the 49 systems of taxations, including accounting, recording and collecting, now in use by the States and Federal Government.

The lack of coordination between the taxing systems of the States and that of the Federal Government will be discussed today by Clyde E. King, former secretary of revenue and finance, of Pennsylvania; while Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, of Massachusetts, will discuss the possibility of securing certain sources of revenue for the exclusive use of the Federal Government, and other sources for the exclusive use of the State governments.

Bullitt Activities in Europe Provoke Gaiety in Senate

Democratic Leader Holds Roosevelt Repudiated Him in Every Way.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The presence in London and Paris of a man believed to be an unofficial emissary of Col. E. M. House regarding intergovernmental debts yesterday provoked a wave of discussion in the Senate. Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, demanded that the United States "apprehend" William C. Bullitt, protege of Col. House, who has been reported in various European capitals negotiating the problem of war debts. The entire discussion finally ended in good humor after Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, declared President-elect Roosevelt had "repudiated Mr. Bullitt in every way."

Bullitt Denies Stories.

In discussion of the identity of Mr. Bullitt, Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, asked:

"I don't suppose he could be Col. House in disguise?"

Senator Robinson returned to the charge:

"If so, the senator will please excuse me and President-elect Roosevelt for any responsibility for Col. House."

Democratic Senator Logan, namesake of the law which the Arkansas senator wanted to invoke against Mr. Bullitt, declared:

"I suggest that a cablegram be sent to Mr. Bullitt to request him to discontinue his activities to spare President-elect Roosevelt from embarrassment and that the President-elect be notified of this action."

Cabled reports from Europe last night indicated that Mr. Bullitt, the "man of mystery" in the case, had been reported in Vienna, where he had been in close touch with several house agents for a home there in preparation for his nomination as Democratic Minister to Austria. However, the cabled reports revealed that Mr. Bullitt had been in Austria long before the elections and he had been reported as intending to write a book at that time. Reports from both Vienna and Paris tended to confirm the impression that Mr. Bullitt had been the first to deny his unofficial diplomatic status. In both of these cities he had denied these reports to friends. In his Vienna hotel he had been reported "out of town."

Introduced to Roosevelt.

Here in Washington last night it was learned that Mr. Bullitt was known as a protege of Col. House, who had introduced him to President-elect Roosevelt with the suggestion that the incoming administration might find opportunity for the talents of Mr. Bullitt. He is the scion of a wealthy Philadelphia publishing family with a flair for international affairs.

While the Senate exchange of pleasantries was going on, Roumanian Minister Charles A. Davila was calling at the State Department to request the United States to include Roumania in its list of countries to be invited to a discussion of war debt revision. The handsome Balkan diplomat declared yesterday that Roumania was the only country which had faithfully fulfilled its debt obligations and had not been invited to a discussion of its debt revision.

Pittsburgh Women Get Life For Three Poison Murders

Jury Finds Them Guilty in Deaths of Two Stepsons of One and Baby Left in Care of Other for Insurance.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—A verdict convicting Mrs. Anna Alias, 38, and Mrs. Mary Chalfa, 31, of first-degree murder was returned late today by a jury on charges of poisoning Steven Alias, 12-year-old stepson of Mrs. Alias. The penalty was fixed at life imprisonment.

The two women, whom the prosecution charged also poisoned Steven's brother, Andrew, 18, and an infant in Mrs. Chalfa's care, stood with stolid faces as the verdict was read.

The State's star witness at the trial, Mrs. Gizzella Young, a fortune teller, testified that as she told the women their fortunes over a deck of cards they related a plan to poison the children to collect insurance. Both defendants denied the charges and said Mrs. Young had put "a curse" upon them.

Other witnesses for the State said Steven died after being fed "teaspoons of holy water" as he lay critically ill. The State charged poison had been put into the water. The defense introduced the testimony of a physician, who attended Steven, to the effect that the boy died of injuries suffered in a sandlot football game.

The jury of five women and seven men returned the verdict after deliberating 22 hours. The trial closed yesterday with Louis Little, defense counsel, declaring in his closing arguments that the defendants were "good wives and mothers, misled by a witch woman." Little referred to Mrs. Young, attacking her testimony and telling the jury that one witness at the trial had testified she was "in cahoots with insurance companies."

Mrs. Alias testified at the trial she took out insurance amounting to about $11,000 on the lives of Andrew and Steven, after Mrs. Young told her "a man or a boy would die in my house."

Prosecuting attorney John Haggerty in his final arguments asked for conviction of these "she devils, who, by diabolic means, did away with three children to collect their insurance."

"No punishment under Heaven is too severe for their crime," Haggerty said. "They didn't poison their own children. Their victims were Mrs. Alias' stepson and a baby left in Mrs. Chalfa's care."

Buck Says He, Not Waller, Fired Shots at Slaying in Stuart, Va.

Stuart, Va., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Oral Buck, sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday in connection with the slaying of Constable R. B. Sheppard and wounding of Joe Francis, town sergeant, testified today in the trial of William Waller in the same case that it was he who fired all shots at the officers on the early morning of December 11. Yesterday Buck testified he fired only five shots.

The case was moving with dispatch today, with the same witnesses being heard as in the Buck case and about the same testimony being given.

Joe Francis, the wounded town sergeant, said he saw by the flash of gunfire the profile of William Waller's face and that he was positive of his identification.

Augusta Teachers Have Salaries Cut

School Board Members and Janitors Also Get Reduction.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Feb. 2.—A 7 per cent cut in salaries of Augusta County teachers for the remaining four and one-half months of the school term is provided for in resolutions adopted by the county school board.

The salary reduction decision was made at a special session in lieu of a curtailment of the school term. This reduction makes the minimum salary of teachers in the county approximately $59 a month.

A 2 per cent decrease in salaries of janitors also was voted, while another resolution provided for a 10 per cent cut of the salaries of the board members.

sional veto. Under this plan, only by joint resolution could the President's reorganization plan be blocked, and the resolution could of course be vetoed by the President.

The Costigan amendment to spare Federal workers additional furloughs and pay cuts provoked a bitter floor fight, with Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, leading the attack on the Federal worker, and Senator Costigan his defense.

Wheeler Charges "Hysteria."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, charged the Senate is allowing itself to be stampeded by a wave of "hysteria" fostered by the United States Chamber of Commerce and "the banking crowd in New York."

"You voted to give money to the railroads, banks and insurance companies through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation," he told the Senate. "You told them to help themselves, and then you proceed to grind down the workers a little bit more."

Others who vigorously opposed additional hardships for Federal workers included Senator Cutting (Republican), New Mexico; Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Laborer), Minnesota, and Senator Neely (Democrat), West Virginia.

The latter offered an amendment Wednesday which would have exempted employes earning $2,000 or less from an additional cut, but it was voted down.

Senator Cutting quoted a tract by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who argued that the policy of wage-cutting has brought the country to its present pass.

Ban on Foreign Goods.

"I think the Government pay roll has been cut already far too much," said the New Mexico senator.

He argued that instead of striving to balance the budget, Congress should try to balance the disparity between consuming and producing power. From now on, he announced, he will vote to cut all expenditures that go to increase production, and vote to increase expenditures that would expand consuming power.

It was when Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, announced he would oppose the Bratton 5 per cent cut amendment, unless there is assurance the same cut will be made in all appropriations bills, that Senator Bratton announced he would make it general and attempt to attach it to the economy section.

Bratton asked unanimous consent to take the more general amendment up at once, but Sentaor Hale (Republican), Maine, who opposes any cut in War and Navy Department appropriations, objected.

Later in the day the Senate voted to suspend its rules to permit consideration of an amendment by Senator Johnson (Republican), California, to require departments to purchase only American-made goods. The vote on his amendment will be taken early this afternoon.

TARIFF GROUP HEAD OPPOSES INCREASES

O'Brien Tells House Body It Might as Well Vote to Quit Gold Basis.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican chairman of the Tariff Commission ripped hard into the plans of his party in the House to vote the tariff wall higher yesterday, but left undiminished the determination of the party leaders to go ahead with their project.

Robert L. O'Brien, the chairman, told the Ways and Means Committee that those who vote for the Crowther bill, on which the Republicans of the House have forced a vote on February 13 despite Democratic opposition to any tariff legislation now, might as well and should vote to take the United States off the gold standard.

He likened the proposition, which calls for automatic tariff increases to compensate the depreciation of foreign currencies, to reducing the graduations on a thermometer when it shows the patient's temperature too high.

This blast of opposition, seconding what Secretary Mills and other tariff officials already have told the committee, was emphasized further by Thomas Walker Page, Democratic Tariff Commissioner, who said he might differ with O'Brien on the benefit of high tariffs as a whole, but as to depreciated currencies he was with him wholeheartedly.

O'Brien said the House might as well vote an embargo.

As he spoke the Commerce Department was announcing foreign trade figures for last year which showed a decline in goods moving both in and out of this country. The value of exports had tumbled from 1931's $2,424,288,000 to $1,612,305,000. The value of imports dropped from $2,090,634,000 to $1,322,745,000.

The figures showed that exports to the leading customers, Great Britain and Canada, had dropped off nearly $150,000,000 each. Canada and Japan made the biggest shipments to this country but they were $90,000,000 and $72,000,000 lower than the year before.

The United Kingdom's shipments to the United States were worth $74,688,000 against $135,452,000 in 1931.

Quezon changed his mind again about making the trip after Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, independence sponsor, said the Filipino leader would not oppose the act if he had been in Washington during its passage.

Francisco Varona, majority House leader and advocate of acceptance of the act, will accompany Quezon.

Employers of 200 Chinese who Wednesday were ordered excluded from the country by special boards of inquiry at New York yesterday filed an appeal with the Labor Department.

The Chinese, it is claimed, were brought to New York, one group of 180 to become the crew of a steamer due to start a round-the-world tour next week, and the others to join the crew of another liner. The Seamen's Union complained to the Labor Department, and the Chinese were held at Ellis Island pending outcome of the case.

Congress Asked to Pay Marines' Loss in Quake

(Associated Press.)

Marines and sailors who were on duty in Managua, Nicaragua, at the time of the earthquake in March, 1931, were too busy saving other persons to bother about their own personal effects. In consequence, the Navy Department reminded Congress yesterday, 67 officers and enlisted men lost clothing, furniture or whatever they happened to have in the buildings that were razed by the earth shocks or the fire which followed.

It is only fair, the Navy thinks, that the Government should pay for the damages. Secretary Adams sent the draft of a proposed bill for $37,229 to the House and Senate.

NATION IS SPENDING TWICE ITS RECEIPTS

7-Month Deficit Tops Billion as Income Continues to Fade.

(Associated Press.)

The Government ended the first seven months of its 1933 fiscal year with a deficit of $1,271,721,031, having collected from all sources $1,138,505,910 and spent $2,410,226,941.

The public debt on January 31 amounted to $20,901,707,134, an increase of almost $3,000,000,000 in the total in twelve months. On January 31, 1932, it was $17,815,861,117.

The Government's income continued to fade away despite an increase in miscellaneous internal revenue coming from new taxes.

Income tax in the seven months amounted to $358,856,709, as compared with $635,817,908 in the same period of the previous year. Miscellaneous internal revenue, however, increased $147,000,000, amounting to $457,039,677.

Customs duties dropped to $156,008,026 from $224,569,945 in the seven months of 1932. General expenditures were lower by $209,000,000 than for the same period of a year ago and amounted to $1,358,128,142.

Total ordinary expenditures of the Government also were lower than a year ago. They were $2,361,911,226 compared with $2,716,119,849.

The sinking fund this year has required to date $418,764,000 as compared with $355,299,200 a year ago. The postal deficiency has amounted to $55,078,567 as compared with $105,000,000 last year.

The receipts for the present year fell $150,000,000 below those of a year ago, but the deficit on January 31 was $241,000,000 less than on January 31, 1932.

As yet the Government collections have not reflected the increased income tax levied on 1932 incomes and officials look to this payment on March 15 to reduce the deficit some.

March of Veterans Predicted by Red

Levin Tells Senators About Plans for Demonstration at Extra Session.

(Associated Press.)

A new march of veterans to the Capital to present former soldiers' demands to the expected special session of Congress was predicted yesterday by Emmanuel Levin, member of the Communist party, in testifying before the joint congressional committee on veterans' affairs.

"We can not say now whether there will be 10,000 or 50,000," Levin said, "but they will be here."

Pressed by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, for details of the proposed march, Levin submitted to the committee the names of those laying plans for the demonstration.

He named James W. Ford, Negro, Communist vice presidential candidate in the November elections; E. P. Wagner, of Pennsylvania; Edward Williams, of Newark, N. J.; Albert G. Sellers, of Pennsylvania; Harold Hickerson, of New York City, and George Brady, formerly registration officer of the bonus army.

2,000 Hoover Nominations Now Snowbound in Senate

Old Guard Republicans Not Displeased With Democratic Determination to Withhold Approval of White House Selections for Office.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Almost 2,000 nominations sent the Senate by President Hoover since the present session of Congress convened are dammed up in the Senate by the determination of the Democrats not to approve the appointments of the departing Chief Magistrate.

They range from the nomination of Miss Pearl McCall, assistant United States district attorney of the District, to be judge of the District Juvenile Court, to ambassadors to foreign lands, and include almost the length and breadth of the governmental machinery.

A list of several hundred names was sent the Senate by the President yesterday of persons whom he would like to appoint postmasters in various towns throughout the country. The list brought the total of men and women who have been nominated for postmasterships to 1,491.

None of these nominations have been acted on and none will be acted on at this session of the Senate. The Democrats argue that President Hoover has been repudiated at the polls and that there is no reason why they should go ahead and approve a continuation of his policies, through approval of his appointments to either big or little jobs.

Recitation of the list of unapproved nominations would read like a roll-call of the executive branch of the Government. They include appointments to places on the Federal Power Commission, the Mississippi River Commission, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the United States Shipping Board, ambassadors and ministers, vice governor of the Philippines, collectors of customs, internal revenue collectors, generals in the reserve corps, judges, United States district attorneys, United States marshals, the naming of Lyman J. Briggs, of Michigan, as director of the Bureau of Standards, and scores of other appointments to various other jobs.

Not since the days when the sun of Democratic power sank beneath the horizon with the waning of Woodrow Wilson has there been a similar situation. But the present situation, despite its similarity, is not truly comparable to that which existed in the closing days of the Wilson administration when the Republican Congress was chortling in glee over its power to frustrate the dying President they hated so intensely.

Then the Democrats in Congress included persons who admired and were willing to fight for Wilson with as great fervor as his enemies were willing to attack him. But President Hoover never has been in good odor with the Old Guard Republicans, and, justly or unjustly, they are willing to see him made the scapegoat. They feel about him something like the storm-tossed sailors must have felt about Jonah on that ancient sea. If they throw him overboard and let everybody understand they have tossed him overboard, then they can set their sails for the next wind. Consequently there is not now among the Republicans the feeling and protests there were in the days of the Wilson sunset.

There is, of course, a much more practicable reason for the refusal of the Democrats to approve any of Mr. Hoover's recent appointments. They do not want the Republicans to fill any jobs which can be filled by Democrats. Not within memory of active legislator and patronage dispenser has there been such a demand for jobs as during the present depression. The Democrats won't be able to meet a fraction of the demands on them. Therefore what they can get is the more precious.

Anti-Hoover Republicans are willing to let the Democrats take the blame because they are afraid that there may be something in this talk among President Hoover's friends that they intend to run him for President again in 1936 and they don't want to help him build up anything approaching a personal political machine on the eve of his departure from the White House.

55 LEADERS INVITED TO FIND SLUMP CURE

Al Smith, Davis and Cox Are Among Notables Whose Views Smoot Seeks.

(Associated Press.)

The views of 55 of the Nation's leading citizens, including 3 former Democratic presidential nominees, will be sought by a Senate committee in connection with a far-reaching inquiry into the economic situation.

Chairman Smoot, of the Finance Committee, yesterday sent out invitations requesting experts in virtually every field of American endeavor to appear and give their suggestions at hearings to begin February 13, on the Harrison resolution, which seeks to lay a foundation for relief policies by the Roosevelt administration.

Besides Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox, Democratic presidential candidates in 1928, 1924 and 1920, respectively, the invitations went to manufacturers, industrialists, bankers, college professors, writers, publishers, economists and lawyers, all prominent in their respective fields.

Promises Sweeping Probe.

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, said the inquiry would be broad enough to exclude no suggestion for economic relief. This means that currency inflation, free silver, the tariff, stabilization of money exchanges, stock speculation curbs, governmental economy and all the other subjects that have embroiled Congress in the short session probably again will receive attention, perhaps along with many new ideas.

"As to the wisest and sanest method to be employed in order to deal with these questions, and others which may be interrelated to the general economic depression," Harrison said, "financiers, economists and statesmen may differ, but certainly in such circumstances every one should give his best thought to a solution of these problems and, as far as possible, present them to the Congress as helpful guidance.

Speed Essential.

"The quicker we start, the sooner will be the recovery, and every selfish consideration should be laid aside in the higher duty of serving a depressed and discouraged people and a sick world."

In addition to Smith, Davis and Cox, the list of witnesses invited to appear includes:

Jackson Reynolds, First National Bank, New York; Winthrop Aldrich, Chase National Bank, New York; Gerard Swope, General Electric Co., New York; A. W. Robertson, Westinghouse Electric Co., Pittsburgh; Robert Wood, Sears Roebuck & Co., Chicago.

James Bell, General Mills Co., Minneapolis; C. C. Teague, Santa Paula, Calif.; Newton D. Baker, Cleveland; George Horace Lorimer, Saturday Evening Post, Philadelphia; Lammot Dupont, Wilmington, Del.; Henry Haskell, Kansas City Star.

Sloan and Butler.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia University, New York; Roy Howard, New York; Prof. Fred R. Fairchild, Yale University, New Haven; John J. Pelley, president, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, New Haven, Conn.; Myron C. Taylor, U. S. Steel Corporation, New York; E. L. Weir, National Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh.

The State chairman, in a brief announcement of his appointment, made no mention of the reported disagreement between himself and Miss Butler, who was understood to be supporting Mrs. Rosalie Lowe Whitney, of Brooklyn, as her successor.

"Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler having handed me her resignation to be made effective at once," Macy said, "I have appointed Miss Lillian A. Garing, of Queens, to the vice chairmanship and she has accepted.

"Miss Garing is the vice chairman of the Queens County Republican committee, having served previously as a member of the State committee."

Miss Butler, the daughter of President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, is to be married late in April to Capt. Neville Lawrence, of London, England, but she had agreed to remain as vice chairman of the State committee until the close of the present legislative session.

Decision Staggers Rum Row, Guilt Depending Upon Speed

12-Mile Limit Knocked Off National Statutes by Attorney Toland.

A young Washington lawyer, Edmund M. Toland, has knocked "rum row," which heretofore has hovered just beyond 12 miles off the United States coast to purvey forbidden beverages to thirsty Americans, into something which might well resemble the outline of one of the tricky pieces in a jig-saw puzzle.

The United States Supreme Court read and listened to the arguments and precepts of law presented by Mr. Toland and his associate, Joseph E. Fitzpatrick, of Providence, R. I., and in one of the most important decisions it has made in prohibition cases, wiped the purely arbitrary 12-mile limit off the slate.

No arbitrary limit on distance from the coast, but the sailing speed of a vessel under the conditions existing at the time and place of its boarding and seizure shall determine whether a foreign vessel is within legal reach of the long arm of the prohibition forces, the Supreme Court decided, in reversing the appeals court decision, which upheld the legality and propriety of the seizure of the Canadian motor ship Mazel Tov, on the evening of November 1, 1930, at a distance of 11½ miles beyond an island which lies off the coast of Massachusetts.

Any vessel within 3 miles of the American coast comes within the authority of the Nation. The seas, for 3 miles out from low tide mark are territorial waters and are so recognized in international law. Setting of the 3-mile limit for territorial waters wasn't nearly so arbitrary as was the 12-mile dictum. The 3-mile limit was set back in England in the days when the people of the country were in rebellion against the heavy imposts of the crown against foreign goods. The profits from those tariffs, of course, went into the pockets of the crown. Smuggling of silks and other things from France became a profitable business, the danger of which did not deter rebellious Britons, as well as others, from loading their luggers in foreign ports and sailing for the cliffs of Albion, there secretly to discharge their forbidden cargoes, to the enrichment of both seller and buyer.

Then Came Hovering.

The 3-mile limit had been fixed as territorial waters with an eye of the effective range of a cannon shot. But the wave of smuggling induced the outwitted and flouted crown to proclaim a "hovering" act and to fix the "hovering" limit at 4 leagues, or 12 nautical miles from the shore.

The "hovering" act of the United States is contained in our tariff law, and it was this law which the Government attorneys sought to persuade the courts justified the boarding and seizure of the Mazel Tov.

Until prohibition came along and the rebellion of millions of American citizens against it became apparent, there wasn't much trouble or difficulty with vessels which hovered along the American coasts outside the 3-mile limit of territorial waters.

Then appeared the hovering fleet of rum ships off the coast, beyond the territorial waters. These, either by their own small boats or by means of American-owned boats, which put out from the shore to buy liquor from them and take a chance on running it to land and getting it safely to market, prompted the rabid prohibitionists to dictate that any vessel within 12 miles of the coast was subject to the authority of the United States.

Merrie Olde England, who remembered the War of 1812 and the protests of the United States about the freedom of the seas, promptly protested that America should abide by its own historic contentions. It was a point well taken. Its justification was recognized in the Senate even before the 12-mile limit amendment was put into tariff law. It was agreed that the United States might extend the sway of its laws any distance it wanted to beyond its shore, but it could not under international law and usage and in conformity with its own past contentions, extend the sway of its laws beyond the 3-mile limit without running into international complications. Of course, if Great Britain and other nations accepted the arbitrary advancement of territorial waters limit to 12 miles there would have been no reason why the next year the United States could not have, just as logically, extended its territorial waters 40, 50, or more miles from its shores.

A Vicious Circle.

Just as logically, too, other nations could have done the same thing and the mighty seas on which little mankind sails about in puny ships at the mercy of tide and wind, would no longer have been theoretically free, and all sorts of international conflicts and ill-feeling would have been engendered out of the fanaticism of the prohibitionists of the Land of the Free.

Out of the dispute there was developed a treaty between the United States and Great Britain. Under its provisions Great Britain agreed that it would not protest if the United States, in its frantic and futile effort to enforce prohibition, boarded, searched and seized rum-laden boats within one hour's sailing distance from its coast, even though that sailing distance was beyond the 3-mile limit of the territorial waters of the United States.

Undoubtedly a decision of the United States Supreme Court had much to do with bringing Britain to the acceptance of a treaty. Several proposed prohibition enforcement treaties had been bluntly rejected by the British Lion. Then the Supreme Court decided that all foreign vessels coming within territorial waters of the United States would be subject to the punishment provided in the prohibition laws if they carried liquor, even if the liquor was solely for use on board ship. That meant that British and other ships sailing into American ports would have to do away with their bars and serving of liquor, at least on the home voyage, inasmuch as they could not legally bring liquor into American ports and would therefore have to sail home empty of cellar—only, of course, ships don't have cellars.

All of which brings us back again to the successfully maintained contention of Mr. Toland, who is associated with William E. Leahy, and of Mr. Fitzpatrick, that the arbitrary 12-mile limit in the tariff law was superseded by international law and by the national word given in the treaty with Great Britain.

Speed All-Important.

How much difference the distinction makes can be gleaned from the fact that the Mazel Tov was seized 11½ miles off the coast. Its speed is between 9 and 10 miles an hour. Had its speed been 12 miles an hour, or even just enough less to have made the coast in an hour, its seizure would have been justified under the treaty, assuming no other questions intervened.

The decision of the Supreme Court was handed down by Justice Brandeis. How completely the majority of the court was won by the arguments of Messrs. Toland and Fitzpatrick may be gleaned from reading the attorneys' brief and the court's decision. The latter might have been written from the former.

The jigsaw analogy about the line-up of "rum row" is made apparent when the varied speed of vessels, under varying conditions, is considered. For instance, a vessel which could make only 3 miles an hour might safely lie just beyond the 3-mile limit of territorial waters and dispense its cargo. A boat of 10-mile speed would have to stay beyond the 10-mile limit. One which had a 20-mile speed would have to stay beyond 20 miles. And an important factor, which must be taken into consideration, is not only the normal speed of a vessel, but its actual or prospective speed under the conditions at the time and place it was seized. In that computation enters such considerations as tide and current, wind and weather, the condition of the vessel and whether it was loaded or not and how heavily.

In any event Mr. Toland and Mr. Fitzpatrick have moved "rum row" several miles closer to the shore of the Land of the Free for slow-moving boats.

LOUD SPEAKER NET GIVEN FOR MARCH 4

Inaugural Crowds to Hear Everything Through Horns of Radio Systems.

Loud-speaker equipment, which will enable the crowds that will be in Washington to follow all of the official proceedings on Inauguration Day has been donated to the Roosevelt inaugural committee by the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Co., it was announced last night by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman.

Estimates of the engineers of the two companies who will be in charge of the work are that there will be sufficient sound-reproducing apparatus in Washington to carry all details of the ceremonies to the ears of every person who can possibly be accommodated in the area which the exercises will embrace.

Occupants of grand-stand seats will be able to follow not only everything that goes on before their eyes, but also to participate in the events which are staged in other portions of the city.

Admiral Grayson announced the appointment of Mrs. Minna S. Adams as an additional member of the program committee of the inaugural committee, of which J. Fred Essary is the chairman, and the appointment of Robert Jackson and John Goodloe, members of the Young Democratic Club, as members of the inaugural publicity committee, of which Charles Michelson is chairman.

Award of the first prize in the contest for the inaugural program cover to Norman S. Sudduth was announced by J. Fred Essary, chairman of the inaugural program committee. The $100 prize was given to Mr. Sudduth yesterday. The winning cover was selected from more than a score of entries, all of which a jury headed by Clifford K. Berryman considered it to be of exceptional merit. Honorable mention was given the cover submitted by Julian Middleton Archer. Mr. Sudduth is repeating a previous success. A design he submitted won the prize for one of the past inaugural programs.

Parade plans to date were described last night in a radio address over station WRC by Dr. George C. Havenner.

FORD DUE TO REOPEN PLANTS NEXT WEEK

Bodies Are Being Shipped to Company as Briggs Strike Closes.

Detroit, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Reopening early next week of Ford Motor Co. factories throughout the country, shut down a week ago when a strike at the plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. cut off their supply of auto bodies, was indicated tonight.

Officials of the Briggs Co., reporting nearly 4,000 men had returned to work, today said they were shipping a "steady flow" of bodies to the Ford company. It was learned at the same time that workers began returning in small numbers to the Ford company's Rouge plant in Dearborn as the various departments reopened.

When bodies shipped by the Briggs company maintain a steady flow at the Detroit and other factories of the Ford company, it was indicated that production will get into full swing in all Ford plants. This, it was estimated today, probably will be early next week.

Connery to Push 5-Day Week at Extra Session

Chairman Connery of the House Labor Committee announced yesterday he would press for action in the forthcoming special session on his bill for a five-day week and six-hour day. After a conference with Speaker Garner, Connery said in a formal statement:

"The Speaker felt that such far-reaching legislation should not be brought before this short lame duck session of Congress, but should be left to the new Congress, particularly as we shall then have a Democratic President and Democratic House and Senate."

BRIDEGROOM'S SON KILLS STEPMOTHER

Lacking Second Shot in Rifle He Strikes His Father With Hammer.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The wedding celebration of John Coyne, 66, and his 20-year-old bride, Irene Carbert, was interrupted tonight by the aged man's 22-year-old son, who shot and killed the bride and beat his father unconscious with a hammer.

The shooting occurred less than six hours after the father and his young bride had been married in St. Stephen's Church, Hazlewood.

More than 15 guests helping the couple celebrate their marriage fled from the house in terror as a rifle shot that ended young Mrs. Coyne's life rang through the spacious house, located in a well-to-do neighborhood. The father is in "fair" condition in a hospital.

Police Capt. John Barry, who arrested the youth, John Coyne, Jr., said the son came by airplane today from Detroit, hoping to arrive in time to halt the wedding. He had been visiting a sick brother, Patrick Coyne, in Detroit, when the two learned of the impending marriage.

The elder Coyne, a caretaker of a public comfort station, and his bride, a former domestic, had known each other three months, friends say. Capt. Barry said Coyne owns considerable property.

The son hurried to his father's home, Capt. Barry said he was told, and went directly to the basement when he saw the wedding celebration in progress.

"I got a rifle which I knew was there," Barry quoted young Coyne as saying, "there was only one cartridge, so I picked up a hammer lying there and dropped it in my pocket."

Going upstairs, witnesses said, Coyne met his stepmother in the kitchen and without a word, leveled the gun at her. She fell as he fired, apparently dying instantaneously.

As the guests fled, the father rushed into the kitchen and was beaten on the head with the hammer.

vention with regard to the $8 a day rate paid here to union carpenters by the Skinker & Garrett contractors for the inaugural reviewing stand in front of the White House.

No reaction had been received from the President-elect late last night. Work on the stands was proceeding yesterday.

The carpenters' local was understood from some sources yesterday to have revoked the cards of the men at work on the inaugural stand for working at the $8 wage, but this could not be confirmed. This local is to meet tonight and it is expected the matter will be taken up at that time.

Influence of Minor Dispute.

With regard to the inaugural stand wage row, Mr. Dickson said that inasmuch as the stands were being constructed from private funds, the Bacon-Davis law could not be invoked as a means of protest. He added that this wage controversy rested between the local union and the contractor.

Observers of the wage situation last night were inclined to believe that the acceptance by union carpenters on the inaugural stand job of Skinker & Garrett of the $8 rate had brought about the lowering of scale on the Federal projects.

M'DONALD ACCEPTS TRADE PARLEY HELM

Consent, However, Is Based on Condition London Will Be Site.

London, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today accepted an invitation to preside at the proposed world economic conference on condition that the meeting be held in London.

This would defeat a proposal to hold the conference in Washington, where a series of debts conferences will be held after the Roosevelt inauguration, and still keep the prime minister as chairman.

It seems certain that the conference will not get under way before May or June at the earliest if it is held here, for at least three months must elapse between the time of issuing invitations and the meeting of the conference.

Information from the highest quarters is that the British government is giving all its thought just now to preparation for the debt discussion next month and that the world conference will have to wait until these discussions are completed. Meantime no invitations to the world conference will be issued at least until the government here sees its way more clearly through the discussions with America than is possible at present.

Fleeing Bank Bandit Killed in Oklahoma

Spencer, Okla., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Jim S. Doyle, 50-year-old blacksmith, shot and killed one of four robbers when they emerged today from the Spencer State Bank.

Less than an hour later he was handed a $500 reward check, the price paid by the Oklahoma Bankers Association for each dead bank robber. The slain man was not identified. His companions escaped.

Doctor, Attacked, Averts Knife Death

Locks Door and Fights Off Patient From Wife and Children.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—To save his wife and children from possible attack of an apparently insane patient, Dr. Andrew Porracco cut off escape into his apartment, locked his office door and battled barehanded today against the man, who wielded a 5-inch knife.

The physician's office in Brooklyn was wrecked in the 20 minutes of battling before Dr. Porracco could grasp his pistol from a desk drawer and drive off the patient.

Frank Biandino, the assailant, was arrested by police as he fled from the physician's office. He had been treated several months for a nervous disorder.

The physician was not wounded in the battle. He fired two shots at the man, but both went wide. Mrs. Porracco, attracted by the fighting, called the police and they were outside the physician's office as Biandino fled.

Court Given Will Of Mrs. Spalding

Five Bequests That Total $7,000 Are Provided in Document.

Five cash bequests, totaling $7,000, were provided for in the will of Mrs. Sarah Adele Spalding, wife of William W. Spalding, it was shown yesterday when Attorney Guy Mason filed Mrs. Spalding's will in the District Supreme Court.

Frances Agele Ugost, Frederick Boyd Ugost, Ingham Mack and Sarah Davis are to receive $1,000 each, and Mrs. T. J. Kavanaugh, of Wisconsin, is to receive $3,000. Mr. Spalding is to receive all his wife's personal estate and other portions.

Mrs. Spalding directed that all insurance that may be due her from the war risk insurance of her deceased son, John Boyd Wolverton, is to go to the District chapter of the Red Cross. After bequeathing large blocks of stock of the Shadbolt & Boyd Co. of Wisconsin, to employes of that company, Mrs. Spalding requested that her husband, a cousin, Ruth Wilson, and a nephew, Robert Boyd, are to divide the remainder of the estate. The husband is named executor.

Late Eugene B. Ely Voted Flying Cross

(Associated Press.)

The posthumous award of a Distinguished Flying Cross to Eugene B. Ely for contributing to the development of naval aviation was voted last night by Congress. The President will present the medal to Col. Nathan Dana Ely, U. S. A., retired. Col. Ely, the father of Eugene Ely, is a local resident.

Secretary Adams reported that Eugene Ely, a civilian flier, by "his feat of flying aboard the Pennsylvania in 1911, which was assisted by retarding gear of primitive design, called attention for the first time to the possibilities of land planes landing on shipboard."

Patronage Bureau Is Denied by Howe

Roosevelt Advisor Riddles Report of Office to Be Opened Here.

(Associated Press.)

A wet blanket was tossed yesterday by Frank McHenry Howe, confidential adviser to President-elect Roosevelt, on the plans of any Democratic job-seekers who have arranged to come to Washington on reports that patronage headquarters would be opened here.

Referring to published reports that he and James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, soon would open an office here, he said, "We do not plan anything of the kind."

Howe went over plans for the inaugural ceremonies on March 4 with Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, and then headed for New York by train. He said he had received a great deal of data concerning jobs available to the Democrats, which would be turned over to the next President at the proper time.

Mrs. Eslick Introduces Celebrity; Breaks Rule

(Associated Press.)

Breaking a rule laid down by Speaker Garner last year, Representative Willa B. Eslick, of Tennessee, newest woman member, yesterday presented to the House Mrs. Charles Henri Fisher, of New York City, president general of the National Society of Colonial Descendants of America.

Gaining the floor, Mrs. Eslick called the attention of the House to the presence of Mrs. Fisher sitting in the Speaker's gallery.

"I wish to present Mrs. Charles Henri Fisher, president general of the Colonial Descendants of America," she said.

Mrs. Fisher arose and bowed as the House members stood and applauded.

Last session, after many celebrities had been introduced from the floor, Speaker Garner announced he would not recognize any members for that purpose. However, yesterday Representative Rayburn, of Texas, was presiding when Mrs. Eslick made the introduction.

HITLER MAY OUTLAW COMMUNIST PARTY

Plunges Vigorously Into New Campaign; Wide Raids on Reds Made.

Berlin, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, Fascist chief of the new government, threw himself into the brief election campaign today with an intimated threat that if his party fails to get a working majority in the next Reichstag, he will outlaw the Communist party.

Hitler counted on Nationalists' support in the campaign. But if he fails to seat enough Nazis in the new Reichstag, even with the Nationalist support, he will not hesitate to outlaw the Communists entirely, it was understood.

To indicate that the new regime had no sympathy with Communist-inspired riots continuing in many parts of Germany, Hitler ordered the police to raid their headquarters in Berlin and elsewhere and widened the order prohibiting Communist demonstrations.

The chancellor, however, was not expected to initiate any general anti-Communist action before the March 5 elections because such action might force the Communists to vote with Socialists and strengthen that wing of the opposition.

Communists' raids and outbreaks continued. Police raided the local headquarters at Liebknecht Haus and confiscated pamphlets.

Authorities also raided Communist branches all over central Germany, confiscating inflammatory literature. Restaurants patronized by Communists were raided, and 19 resisting police arrested.

In Hamburg, one person was killed and eight shot when police intervened in a clash among Communists and the Fascists. Reports from Luebeck said Socialist workers proclaimed a 24-hour general strike in protest against the arrest of their leader.

At Koenigsberg, three Fascists and two police were injured when police and Hitlerites dispersed a throng of Communists and unemployed.

All political open-air demonstrations throughout Prussia were banned during the campaign.

Italo-German Alliance Is Feared by Herriot

Paris, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Former Premier Edouard Herriot in a public address tonight warned of the purported dangers of an Italian-German alliance following the rise of Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, as chancellor of Germany.

"France would make the most grave of mistakes," Herriot declared, "if she did not recognize the latent possibilities of the success of Fascism in Germany, or if she neglected to ponder on the similarity of the two regimes and failed to pulse the undercurrent of Italian-German sympathies."

Missouri Governor Pardons Smeeman

Releases Him From Term of Two Years for 1916 Auto Theft.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Glenn Smeeman, who became a successful Cleveland business man while a fugitive from justice from two States, today was granted a pardon by Gov. Guy B. Park, releasing him from serving any part of a 2-year sentence for automobile theft in St. Louis in 1916.

After a hearing lasting more than half an hour, Gov. Park told Smeeman: "I'm going to let you go home. It would serve no useful purpose to keep you here."

Only a few days ago Smeeman was granted a commutation of sentence by Gov. Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado, his 3½-year sentence being reduced to the six months he had served previous to his escape from a road gang in 1918.

Gun Flaws Found In Newest Cruiser

Indianapolis Is Ordered to Yard for Repairs; Tour Canceled.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2 (U.P.).—The Navy's new cruiser Indianapolis, scheduled to leave immediately for Cuba, Chile and finally the battle fleet on the West Coast, instead is returning to Philadelphia Navy Yard tomorrow for repairs and adjustments, it was learned tonight.

The United Press was informed by authoritative sources that the cruiser's firing practice in Hampton Roads has revealed mislocation and misadjustment of its eight-inch guns which must be replaced before the ship assumes its regular functions.

It was said that explosions of the guns during practice rocked the cruiser so violently that a gigantic searchlight was broken and the entire vessel suffered from repercussions.

FISH WOULD EJECT HECHT FROM R. F. C.

Charges 'Rotten Mess' When Failures Follow Loans; Long Is Involved.

(Associated Press.)

A demand that Rudolph S. Hecht resign as chairman of an advisory committee of the Reconstruction Corporation was coupled yesterday by Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, with an urgent appeal for a general investigation of businesses which have gone into receiverships after obtaining financial aid from the Government agency.

Fish took his case first before the Banking Committee, which has under consideration his resolution for an investigation by the Attorney General, and later placed in the Congressional Record a statement of his position. He said the facts "disclose a rotten mess that should and must have the searchlight of full publicity cast into every official transaction."

The New Yorker said the Union Indemnity Co. of New Orleans and the Union Title Co., its affiliate, received loans amounting approximately to $4,000,000.

Was Advisory Chairman.

"The last loan, amounting to $970,000, was made on December 28, 1932, and the Union Indemnity Co. failed on January 6, 1933, and the Union Guarantee Title Co. on January 7, 1933," Fish's statement said, adding:

"The records disclose the fact that Mr. Rudolph S. Hecht was chairman of the advisory committee for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at New Orleans, to pass on the loans and collateral for the loans. It appears that the same Mr. Hecht is a director of the Union Indemnity Co. which failed shortly after receiving a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"It now develops that one or more of the loans made to the Union Indemnity Co., or its holding company, was turned over to the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. of New Orleans, of which Mr. Rudolph S. Hecht is president.

Huey Long Involved.

"In addition, it is alleged that the security given for loans included bonds of the Union Indemnity Co., now defunct."

When Fish was given similar testimany before the Banking Committee, Representative Hancock, North Carolina Democrat, asked if Hecht was not "closely associated with Senator Huey Long."

"I didn't want to bring up Senator Long's name, but now that it has been brought up I want to say I have received hundreds of letters on the subject."

In his later statement, Fish made this reference to Long:

"An attempt was made at the hearing this morning by one member of the Committee on Banking and Currency to give the impression that there was a political motive behind my resolution, aimed at Senator Huey Long. I wish to disclaim any such thought and am not interested in any political angle that may develop."

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that the future of our country." Speaking before the State conference on malnutrition, the wife of the President-elect declared a low resistance and undernourishment of children will subject "them to every kind of illness."

She added that the child who is brought up in an undernourished condition is "usually the one we find later in our prisons and insane asylums."

Oklahoma Plans Homeless Colonies

Senate Would Establish Destitute Families in State Reservation.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Establishment in the mountain regions of southeast Oklahoma of colonies made up of families now in destitute circumstances was authorized in a State Senate measure approved today.

Senator Paul Stewart author of the resolution, said he believed 1,000 homes could be built from timber cut with convict labor for an average of $50 a house. The resolution directed that a committee headed by Allen G. Nichols, of Wewoka, conduct hearings to determine where such colonies might be started.

"Thousands of families now on charity, could become self-sustaining," Senator Stewart said.

MANCHUKUO BENEFIT TO U. S. IS FORECAST

Japanese Envoy Declares Trade Will Come to America.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese Ambassador at Washington, declared here today that, of all the western nations, America will derive the greatest benefit from the "economic regeneration" of Manchukuo.

Outlining his country's policy in her fight with China over the Far Eastern state, he told the New York State Chamber of Commerce that the United States would enjoy an increased volume of trade as soon as Manchukuo becomes economically sound.

"It is a matter of profound regret," he said, "that there have been differences of opinion between the United States and Japan concerning the Manchurian incident. But such disagreements are not new. More than once the relations between our two countries have experienced some strain, but each time we have emerged better friends.

"There is no reason to doubt that we will again emerge still better friends. * * * The United States and Japan have already demonstrated the practicability of their economic cooperation and I am of the opinion that, of all Western nations, America will derive the greatest benefit from the economic regeneration of Manchuria."

The Ambassador said the national security of his country depended upon Manchukuo's stability, that the Japanese consider this territory their "life line," and that "historically, ecomically and geographically Japan's special position in Manchuria can not be disputed."

"Given reasonable time," he declared, "this new state is bound to become a world economic factor."

way, leaving the sentry shouting imprecations after him.

Meanwhile, there were reports that the Japanese, taking advantage of spring-like weather, have completed large troop concentration preparatory to early resumption of their campaign for the subjugation of Jehol Province.

(Associated Press.)

While Chinese and Japanese engaged in new battles for the control of Jehol Province, abutting Manchuria, Japan awaits recommendations from the League of Nations concerning the Manchurian dispute, with a decision whether to withdraw from activities at Geneva depending upon the report.

A North China headquarters bulletin at Peiping yesterday told of Chinese volunteers twice engaging the Japanese, at Siucheng and Chiumenkow, "the pass of the nine gates" in the Great Wall of China.

At Geneva the committee of nineteen of the league prepared to meet tomorrow, when it was thought a subcommittee of nine would be empowered to draw up recommendations concerning the Manchurian dispute. The belief prevailed in official quarters that the league was preparing a condemnation of the Japanese Manchurian policy, but whether such a condemnation would lead to Japan's withdrawal from the league was a subject for debate.

In Tokyo the question of that nation's control over islands she holds under mandate from the league formed a topic of wide discussion. The prevailing opinion appeared to be that despite any possible withdrawal from the league as the result of the Manchurian report, the Japanese would insist upon retaining control of the islands.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3, 1933.

MY DEAR MARIAN:

Just a few lines to tell you what you missed last night by not being at the Federal Diary grand ball at the Shoreham. It was one gay time. I am sorry you were not one of the 500 from every bureau in the city. It was about the most gorgeous event I have ever attended.

And the beautiful evening dresses. Let me tell you about them. There some some in solid black, others pale pink, deep red, and well, if you had been there you could have admired them for yourself.

It is difficult to picture the whole scene to you. There was something doing every moment. Never a dull second. And the floor show, which I understand was presented by Jack Mullane, was one of the most elaborate I have ever witnessed.

And at 10 o'clock they cleared the ballroom for dancing and the music, supplied by Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra, it was simply wonderful. They first played "The Washington Post March," and then followed the slow, dreamy waltzes and the faster music. The light effects were exquisite.

The funniest part of the whole affair was when the trumpets sounded and Swarmi Fedd was announced. Of course, you have heard of Swarmi Fedd. Here, I thought was the time I would see for myself just who was Swarmi Fedd. But, to the amusement of all, instead of one Swarmi Fedd, there were three to appear. No, I am positive, there were three.

And Mr. Swarmi's lieutenants mingled in the crowd and each led forth a beautiful young woman. Up they went to the rostrum and it was announced that Underwood & Underwood would photograph the three specimens of pulchritude.

Phil Lampkin and Carter Barron were there from the Fox and Phil played a wonderful trumpet solo.

I am sorry words are so inadequate in describing the entire party. I can only say that when the second annual Federal Diary grand ball comes off I will try to be counted in and I hope you will, too. After all, I understand the 250 tickets were sent out in a very big hurry.

I will try to tell you more when I see you.

And so it is in the case of Jack Fehr, fisherman extraordinary, Wood Utilization. He likes to fish. He likes to fish better than he likes to eat—fish. When he catches fish, the thrill's over for him. Someone else may have the fish. May we say fish hold Fehr for Jack?

Little Tommie Tucker jumped for his supper and the camera took it all in. Arthur Ellis, armed with a speed flashgun, timed at one two-hundredth of a second, and his trusty picture box were just as fast as Tommie. The best part of this story from Commerce Aquarium is that Fred Orsinger needs only snap his fingers and up comes this albino trout and his fellows. They're tame and peppy, they've large quantities of it in those nimble, quick bodies that jump completely out of the water. Don't think this photo is the result of one day's work. Fred and Arthur rehearsed their parts several days before they were quick enough to snap Tommie, graceful and beautiful.

He Gets Pay to Crash Dishes for Uncle Sam

DONALD EVANS.

AND he gets paid for it, this job of breaking dishes. Donald Evans, Bureau of Standards, is shown testing a new supply of crockery for the Panama Canal.

If you had a maid who broke 75 or 100 of your very best dishes every day, you'd fire her quickly wouldn't you? But your Uncle Sam is more lenient, and actually pays a young man good money to destroy numerous dishes. It came about this way: Having found that a good dish breaks as readily as a poor one if dropped hard enough, the Federal purchasing agent called upon the Bureau of Standards for some more accurate method of comparison and after a little research by the bureau another "queer" job was born.

Let us drop in and see how the tests are made. The dish is placed against a piece of circular tubing, fastened to a frame, and a small weight, resembling an old-time battering ram is swung against it. Mr. Evans lifts the weight a short distance along a calibrated scale and releases it. Wham! it strikes, again it is released, further up the scale, and again each time with a longer swing until crash! The dish breaks.

"THAT'S a pretty good one" Evans remarked, "but let's try another, you know we test nine samples from every 100 dozen ordered, before a final decision is reached." Do they all stand up as well as this, was asked "Gracious no, some are pretty poor stuff;" he drops the weight and a long crack springs across the platter, "but, however, there are a number of good makes, and they all run very much alike."

Cups and saucers are also put through the same test. As a matter of fact all the crockery used by the Army, Navy and other Federal agencies, although the dainty fragile gold crested service such as adorns the White House board has been spared the ignominious ordeal of its more plebeian brethren.

"DID you ever find any dishes you couldn't break?" Mr. Evans smiled, "well not exactly. There have been a number of so-called unbreakable pieces, but in the end, if they are treated roughly enough they fail. About the nearest approach was a disc which was exhibited at a meeting of the Ceramic Society. The fellow who had dropped it and dropped it until a good crowd had collected, and he announced that when it had survived 100 falls he could consider the test closed, and finally on the ninety-ninth fall it smashed into innumerable fragments, just another case of the pitcher which went to the well too often. But pardon me, I must get busy, remarked our host. "I've got all these to break before tonight, and that doesn't mean pushing the pile onto the floor either."

So as we left the room, the satisfying crash of the vicious little weight again biting into its victim announced that a plate had gone west.

DR. MAXWELL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Inventor of Army Mortar and Air Bomb-Range Finder Native of Kentucky.

Dr. George St. Clair Maxwell, 72, well-known Washington engineer and inventor, died yesterday afternoon following a lingering illness at his home at 61 Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Dr. Maxwell came to Washington from New York 20 years ago and conducted a private business here until the World War, when he joined the Ordnance Bureau of the War Department as an inventor.

During this time his outstanding inventions were a bombing range finder for airplanes and the perfection of automatic machines for loading shells and other arsenal equipment. After the war he developed the Maxwell or chemical warfare mortar, which has replaced the Stokes mortar in the United States Army.

Dr. Maxwell was born in Louisville, Ky. He studied medicine and practiced in that city for about eight years, and then abandoned the profession to study electrical engineering. After graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he was employed by the Bell Telephone Co. as a testing engineer. After leaving that company he entered private business and developed automatic machinery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ella Cecil Maxwell, and three sons, J. Robert Maxwell, George S. Maxwell and Wilor M. Maxwell.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the W. W. Chambers funeral parlors at Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

The Petersburg group is said to number 411, including an active advisory board and a staff of officers.

crease merely partially takes care of the ever-growing list of applicants.

The emergency relief bureau, headed by Leroy A. Halbert, is now caring for 7,237 families, and new applicants are appearing at the rate of 75 a day.

Acute unemployment conditions in the District were depicted before a Senate banking and currency subcommittee yesterday by a delegation of local officials and welfare workers, seeking for the District the same right to borrow money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as is now accorded the States.

"Practically every move the Government makes toward economy affects us directly here," George S. Wilson, public welfare director, told the subcommittee, holding hearings on the Wagner bill to broaden the basis on which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans funds.

Asks Equal Rights.

He said conditions have become much worse in the past year, citing salary cuts and loss of jobs by Government workers, as contributing influences.

Accompanying Mr. Wilson were Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, who proposed several amendments to the Wagner bill, giving the District a more certain status in the relief picture.

It was learned that the House District Committee planned to call Dr. Ballou, superintendent of schools, before the next meeting of the group to explain alleged "arbitrary" actions, said to have been discussed at a recent executive session of the committee.

Relief Future Doubtful.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, told the House District Appropriations Committee the District may have to ask for "several million dollars" for unemployment relief next year, according to hearings made public yesterday.

Questioned by Representative Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the committee, Maj. Donovan replied:

"We do not know what is going to happen in this emergency relief situation next year."

F. G. BONFILS DEAD; DENVER POST OWNER

Publisher Ill About Week; Condolence Message Is Sent by Hoover.

Denver, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Frederick G. Bonfils, 72, militant publisher of the Denver Post and one of the most spectacular figures of the West, died unexpectedly today from a complication of influenza and an ear infection.

He had been ill about one week and underwent a minor ear operation last Monday.

Through an incessant policy of voicing the cause of the masses, Bonfils, with the late H. H. Tammen, built a newspaper with a circulation covering the Rocky Mountain region.

His aggressive policy led him into innumerable fights, and he was active in uncovering the famous Teapot Dome oil scandal which resulted in the prosecution and conviction of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall.

Bonfils had directed the post since the death of Tammen on July 6, 1924. They also published the old Kansas City Post from 1909 until 1922.

An extremely wealthy man, he had engaged during his eventful career in such varied enterprises as running a lottery in Kansas City, when that was legal, townsite development in the territorial days of Oklahoma and ownership of a circus.

News of the publisher's death brought many messages of condolence, including one from President Hoover.

Ernest Selby Rites Held in Anacostia

Spanish-American War Veteran Is Buried in Arlington.

Interment was at Arlington National Cemetery. The Rev. Luther B. Franck, of the Anacostia Episcopal Church, officiated.

Mr. Selby entered the automobile business shortly after automobiles were first manufactured for commercial purposes and while they were still an object of curiosity. His place of business was located at 1815 Fourteenth street northwest. Because of ill health he retired from the automobile business in 1925. At the time of his death he operated a filling station at Fourteenth and Corcoran streets northwest. He was born in Washington, and became a member of Company F Volunteers during the Spanish-American War.

He is survived by his wife, Alice Selby, and one son, Roy Selby, both living in Anacostia.

Swarmi Fedd Nominates Candidate in Queen Contest

Exercises Privilege of All to Send in Photograph of Friend in Competition to Find Most Charming Girls for Chicago Fair.

Swarmi Fedd, the mysterious character who is featured in the Federal Diary column of the daily and Sunday Post, last night set an example that may well be followed by other individuals or groups when he selected his own personal candidate for the title of Queen in The Post's search for 51 charming girls to inaugurate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June. Swarmi Fedd was merely exercising the privilege which any individual has to submit the photograph of a friend in the competition for international honors and $10,500 in cash awards.

From all photographs, whether submitted by unmarried girls in person or by their friends, 51 girls will be selected and transported to the exposition as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. They will live at Chicago's most luxurious hotels for a period of two weeks and will enjoy every available entertainment, under proper chaperonage. Their only duties will be to participate in the colorful ceremonies that will mark the opening of the great world's fair. Every item of expense will be paid by The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune and will include beautiful gowns designed by leading modistes.

Preceding the opening of the exposition, three girls will be selected from the group to bear the respective titles of Queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting, and they will be awarded $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 in the order of their selection.

In addition, The Washington Post is paying $5 in cash to each girl whose photograph is selected for publication in The Post's Sunday rotogravure sections. Ten pictures are being published each Sunday up to and including Sunday, April 2, and the second group in this series will appear in next Sunday's paper.

The contest is open, to every unmarried girl, wherever she may live, with the sole exceptions of employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, and professionals, such as stage girls and artists' models.

Photographs should be mailed as soon as possible to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," although the contest does not close until Saturday, April 15. Each should have the "Transmittal Coupon," printed elsewhere, attached to the back of the photograph or the same information written upon any sheet of paper.

KOBER HONOR GIVEN 2 NOTED SCIENTISTS

Dr. Richards Will Receive Medal and Dr. Dyer Is Chosen Lecturer.

Two leading American scientists are to be rewarded this spring by the George M. Kober Foundation at Georgetown University for important contributions to medical research and knowledge. They are Dr. Alfred Newton Richards, professor of pharmachology at the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Rolla E. Dyer, of the United States Public Health Service.

The Association of American Physicians will bestow the Kober Medal on Dr. Richards at its annual meeting in Washington on May 9 in recognition of his work on diseases of the kidney. He was the choice of that group for the honor.

Dr. Dyer, who became infected with typhus fever last fall from the bite of a rat flea while conducting experiments, has been designated as the Kober lecturer for 1933. Chosen by the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, under the terms of the foundation, he will deliver the lecture March 28 at Georgetown University.

The Kober Foundation was provided for by the late Dr. George M. Kober, dean of Georgetown Medical School for many years, and for over a half century one of the leading public health advocates in Washington.

SENATE "KEG" PARTY EVIDENTLY DROPPED

stories and deciding which senators to go to for cooperation in putting them over.

If something pops having to do with foreign affairs they may get their heads together and decide to go down and poke up old Borah on the matter. The next morning the citizens around and about may read where Senator Borah has reared back and let fly an awful roar, without knowing that the initiative lay with a couple of bright, mischievous newspaper reporters who went down and said: "Roar, Senator; roar for the boys."

Of course each of the reliables has a characteristic act and is mentally pigeon-holed according to the specialty on which he may be poked up. Senator Dill's proposal to give a senatorial keg party may give you a fair sort of idea of the sort of senator that Senator Dill is.

It is barely possible, of course, that the senator had some idea of going through with the keg party because there is no telling what some of them will do, just out of boredom. After listening just so long to an involved discussion of the tariff or 30 minutes of intensive effort to understand a financial statement, a statesman may get stuffy and restless like a second-grade child trying to keep up in the fourth grade in school. In despair of ever understanding what it is all about, the brother then breaks into the order of business to start a legislative childrens' hour and this is why you sometimes read about statesmen playing with blocks or pouring things out of bottles or drawing whirligigs on blackboards. It would be unfair to blame them for being what they are when the citizens are to blame for sending them to Washington.

A Sympathetic Background.

When Senator Dill proposed the keg party is was thoroughly understood, of course, that the 3.2 beer was no good, but, nevertheless, a barroom rigged up in the Senate, with sawdust on the floor, might have enchanced the dignity of the present session. At least it would have provided a sympathetic background for the sometimes not quite intelligible orations of Senator Huey P. Long and the test would have shown conclusively that 3.2 beer was no good, and wouldn't raise any Government revenue because nobody would buy it. The senator, in that case, could have used his authority to subpena some of the more prominent determined women of the prohibition movement to witness the debauch and defy them to make practical personal tests with the 3.2 beer. The determined women of the prohibition movement are not the type who would start singing Sweet Adeline on 3.2 beer and the experiment would have proved that the proposed beer was not worth the bother to legalize. It is an odd thing about the determined ladies that although none of them will ever admit having been even slightly plastered, they all pretend to absolute knowledge of what is a good drink and what is not and strictly forbid any drink that even sounds as though it might be good.

But the beer bill might as well be forgotten now. With the strength reduced to 3.05 it becomes a form of raspberry soda and Mr. Hoover, when he puts his veto to it, will confer a favor on the serious drinkers of the Nation though they may not think so at the time.

Davis Is Boomed For Virginia Race

Awaits Programs of All Other Candidates for Governorship.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The candidacy of former Gov. Westmoreland Davis for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination was reported here today as having been strongly urged by an active faction of the party.

The report said that two delegations who called upon the former governor during the past week were assured that the former governor may run if the program laid down by other candidates is not satisfactory to him.

Mr. Davis now is publisher of the Southern Planter.

Lieut. Gov. James H. Price, who also has been mentioned prominently as a possible candidate for the nomination, said he would announce his decision in a few days. George C. Peery, of the State Corporation Commission, is the only formally announced candidate in the field at present.

Marian Nixon Asks Decree

Marian Nixon, screen actress, has filed suit for divorce against Edward Hillman, jr., son of a Chicago merchant, obtaining order restraining him from molesting her.

"I Can't Believe It," Says Hillman, When Told of Divorce Suit.

Los Angeles, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Marian Nixon, screen actress, has filed suit for divorce against Edward Hillman, jr., son of a Chicago merchant, obtaining a temporary order restraining Hillman from entering the couple's Beverly Hills home or from molesting her.

Her complaint charges Hillman with using abusive language toward her and indulging excessively in intoxicants on occasions to the detriment of her work. It asserts on last Thanksgiving he struck her.

The actress asks no alimony, despite the fact her husband is reported to have a large income from a trust fund. The complaint revealed no property settlement has been effected.

Hillman appeared to be shocked when told the divorce complaint had been filed.

"I can't believe it!" he exclaimed.

Miss Nixon and Hillman were married in Chicago August 11, 1929. She was divorced from her first husband, Joe Benjamin, boxer.

ROOSEVELT RECLAMATION PLAN BRINGS PRAISE FROM PUBLIC

ployment, which he sees resulting from the present crowded city situation. In it he sees the prospect for decentralization of industry and the opportunity for the Government to guide a new rural race into happier days.

One point of difficulty was raised today in some of the comment upon the project—that it might increase the already existing agricultural surplus.

Worth Trying Anyway.

"Of course, we can't prove that it won't until we try," conceded Mr. Roosevelt, "but the best thought is that this movement actually will not increase agriculture supplies.

"You see, we will be removing some agricultural lands from operation—the nonprofitable marginal lands. Then, I have found that the people who go back to the country eat much more than when they are in the city. This also will release large sums now being spent for unemployment relief in the cities, to be used for the purchase of foodstuffs."

The President-elect explained that he selected the Tennessee watershed, reaching over the States of Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Alabama and Mississippi because it afforded every range of physical climatic conditions.

Ohio and Arkansas Next.

Looking over the United States map for next points of development, he pointed to the Ohio Valley, the Arkansas Valley and the Columbia River basin in the northwest. He emphasized that these and other possible projects must await the big Tennessee experiment.

Reforestation is the first step in the program. This would be undertaken in the highlands with a view to producing lumber and retarding floods.

By construction of the various flood control basins in the Tennessee tributaries, he believes the amount of primary power at the gigantic Muscle Shoals, Ala., power plant can be doubled to between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 horsepower.

Current for Farms.

Granting this amount of power can not be used by the present population of the Tennessee Valley, he nevertheless would electrize every farm home and barn, as well as provide cheaper current for the urban users. However, land use rather than power development is the principal aim of the undertaking.

He would reclaim the rich bottom lands now subject to constant floods and turn these over to those experienced in farming whom he expects to return from the cities.

Wherever necessary, he would have the Government buy up the marginal lands to be converted into forestry. Moreover, he thinks the whole deal "bankable" and one that would warrant a bond issue, to be paid for out of returns from the timber crops.

"Attacked from all angles," he said, "this ought to give work for 200,000 unemployed. I think we are making a start on one of the most interesting experiments a Government has ever undertaken. If successful, I think it can be made self-sustaining.

Jobless Cure Sought.

"We have between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000 wage earners unemployed today. If we would return tomorrow to the high 1929 level we would still have 5,000,000 unemployed, and on the dole, our population would still be out of balance. If by Government intervention we can restore the balance, then we have taken a great step forward.

"This is applying the most modern thoughts of city planning to the whole Nation."

Unfolding his plan, Mr. Roosevelt spoke extemporaneously to newspapermen with only an occasional reference to a map. He said he had been thinking over and studying the proposition for months. He hopes to have the Government agencies involved set to work immediately with a view to getting a survey ready for presentation to Congress within the shortest time possible.

Night Sessions Threat.

Dissatisfied with progress made on the Treasury-Postoffice bill, Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, yesterday served notice that unless consideration is speeded up today he will ask that night sessions be held.

The Costigan amendment to the Bratton proposal adopted yesterday provides:

"That in making such reductions in expenditures (5 per cent), no wage cuts or furloughs other than those heretofore in effect, or in this act provided, shall be ordered."

Senator Costigan, while not denying Senator Tydings' contention that this does not preclude dismissals, nevertheless said he thought wholesale dismissals unlikely.

"The senator from Maryland's tears are only crocodile tears," he said.

Congress Pay Guarded.

Senator Tydings said he thought it likely small salaried workers would be forced out of their positions by the amendments, while influential higher salaried employes would be protected.

While the Senate moved to safeguard Federal employes' pay, members of the House were not inactive in protecting the salaries of Congress members from further slashes. Chairman Cochran, of the House Expenditures Committee, indicated the several Congressional pay cut bills now pending will not get out of committee.

A new measure was introduced yesterday by Representative Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, to make cuts of from 10 to 30 per cent in Federal salaries over $1,000. He said the bill would save $150,000,000, and should be substituted for the Hoover furlough plan.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST PRESENTS LECTURE

James G. Rowell Speaks at First Church; Is From Missouri.

A lecture on "Christian Science: A Religion of Scientific Trust in God" was delivered last night in First Church of Christ, Scientist, by James G. Rowell, C. S., of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Rowell is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. He was introduced by Walter H. Moling, first reader of First Church, under the auspices of which this lecture was given.

The lecturer said, in part:

"What shall we say of world conditions? Will scientific trust in God heal them, too? It can, and will. The present condition of want and woe is teaching more plainly than words could the law of God, 'As ye sow, so shall ye reap.' Lust is at the bottom of it—and lust let loose is war—lust for power and prestige, lust for money, lust for blood, lust for sense satisfaction. As we have sown in lust, is it any wonder that we should reap in lack? For is not lust confession of belief in lack?

"Behold the world believing in lack and experiencing lack in the very midst of the greatest abundance of good things that the world has ever known! Is it not anomalous? However can it be explained except as fear and greed? And whatever can heal fear and greed except scientific trust in God? God's abundance is now and always has been sufficient for all of His children. Again we have the privilege and are forced by necessity to prove this scientific fact. And many are doing it. All could do it if they but knew how—how to prove that each one of us is in his right place, serving God as a channel for the expression of His endless and bountiful supply of right ideas.

"Mrs. Eddy says in a little article entitled 'Angels,' 'God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies' (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 307). Meanwhile let us lend a helping hand whenever possible. Let us share of our abundance as well as show our brothers how to claim their heritage. Our infinite supply of true substance can only become apparent through using what we have demonstrated of it. Mrs. Eddy says of science that it operates unspent (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 353).

"In the light of Mrs. Eddy's spiritual discovery, there must necessarily follow a great overturning in human thought. Trusts that the human mind has considered righteous and legitimate are being found to be false, lawless and worthless, and trust that measures up to the standard of scientific Christianity is taking their places."

Bank Robber Trio Sent to Sing Sing

Two of Men Sentenced in New York Wanted in Washington.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Three of five robbers who held up the Seward National Bank in Upper Manhattan on December 20, 1930, taking $31,623, were sentenced to Sing Sing today by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky.

Barney Neifeld, 37, wanted on bank-robbery charges in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Washington, and Sam Ruben, 39, who police believe participated in five bank robberies that netted thieves $120,000, received flat ten-year sentences as second offenders. Joseph Flynn, 28, being a first-offender, was sentenced to an indeterminate term. He is wanted in Pittsburgh and Washington.

The trio pleaded guilty, along with Bert Boden, 40, on last January 23, while they were being tried. Boden, who is ill, will be sentenced later.

TAKES BRIDE

Bachrach.

MAJ. GEN. ADELBERT CRONKHITE.

GEN. CRONKHITE, 72, MARRIED TO HEIRESS

Commander of 80th Division in France Is Wed to Gertrude Horn.

Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, who commanded the Eightieth Division in France during the World War and who retired in 1923, and Miss Gertrude Horne, a Pittsburgh heiress, were married yesterday afternoon in the rectory of St. Patrick's Church.

Earlier in the day they obtained a license at the courthouse. Gen. Cronkhite, born in New York 72 years ago, is now living at Phoebus, Va. The age of the bride was given on the marriage license as 47 years.

The Right Rev. C. F. Thomas performed the ceremony. Late yesterday Gen. Cronkhite refused to admit it had been performed.

Gen. Cronkhite was retired at the age of 62 after his efforts to clear the military record of his son put him in difficulties with the War Department. He charged that his retirement did him a great "injustice."

His son, Maj. Alexander Pennington Cronkhite, was killed in a mysterious manner during training maneuvers. Gen. Cronkhite refused to accept the verdict of a board of inquiry which found that Maj. Cronkhite had accidentally killed himself.

He sought aid from the War and Justice Departments with the result that two men were arrested—one of whom confessed killing the major. Neither was convicted.

The general served in the Indian and Spanish Wars and took the Eightieth Division to France. It was the only American division thrice called into the line during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Firemen estimated the loss at $50,000.

Bankruptcy Bath Tried

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Walter R. Kirk, millionaire soap manufacturer, testified today at his daughter's bankruptcy hearing that he couldn't tell her age without looking it up in his office files and that he had bought "for about $100" all her jewelry, originally costing about $3,000.

His daughter, Beatrice, is seeking to be declared a bankrupt. She had said previously that she was 20, but Kirk today said he believed she was 19 and then that he would have to look it up to be sure.

He was questioned by attorneys for Herman Goldberg, who sold Miss Kirk a horse for $2,000, but for which she refused to pay because "it didn't fit my saddle." She had testified that she would be unable to pay the $2,000 or its $800 food bill for the last year.

Her schedule of assets, filed today, listed two riding habits, $10; four evening dresses, $15; four street dresses, $10; four cloth coats, $20; eight hats, $8; three pairs of shoes, $5; miscellaneous wearing apparel, $10; a trunk, $20; four small suitcases, $10.

BILL ASKS TO BAR TREASURER'S FEES

Would Place State Official in Maryland on Salary of $5,000 Yearly.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—Senator Ridgely P. Melvin, Anne Arundel County, placed before the Senate today a proposal for a new county treasurer law, the outstanding feature of which is to place the treasurer on a flat salary of $5,000 per year, and eliminates all fees such as collection of State taxes, and assessing new property.

Under existing law, the treasurer's salary is fixed at $1,200 per year, and the county pays him 4½ per cent for collecting State taxes, and $2 per $1,000 for assessing new property, and it is estimated his annual income is around $9,000. The bill provides a maximum of $6,500 for clerical hire, compared to $8,940, now being paid by the county for six clerks.

New assessments and reassessments would be placed entirely in the hands of the assessors department, officials of which would continually cover the county, thereby avoiding a general assessment in 1935, and guarding against an expenditure of $40,000, such as was entailed in 1930, or a saving of $8,000 per year.

The bill also takes cognizance of the depression and the inability of many property holders to meet obligations, by extending the time limit for tax payments as stipultaed in the present law, enacted two years ago, which provided that taxes be paid within the current year. In other words, taxes for the last half of 1931 when the county's fiscal year was changed, the time has been extended to October of this year, and for 1932 and 1933, from June, 1933, to June, 1935. Senator Melvin also presented a revenue bill, revising the scale of permit fees for new building construction. The proposed scale ranges from $1 for buildings of from $100 to $5,000 and so on for construction up to $50,000 or more.

Body of Collector Is Found at Hotel

Elks Lodge of Coraopolis, Pa., Sends Escort to Cumberland, Md.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 2.—Representatives of the Elks' Lodge of Coraopolis, Pa., came here tonight to accompany to that place the body of Harry A. Lach, tax collector of the Coraopolis Borough, whose body with a bullet in the head, was found this morning at the Algonquin Hotel. He registered last night after driving to this city in a new car as "George A. Brown, Meadville, Pa.", paying for his room in advance. A Bible, opened at the third chapter of Ecclesiastes, was found in his room. In a letter addressed to Robert A. Lindsay, Coraopolis, he refers to this chapter.

He left other notes, one to the coroner with a check for $100 for the cremation of his body and scattering his ashes "To the four winds of heaven," another "To the press," asking that it simply be stated that his body was found without going into further details.

His will, drawn by a Pittsburgh firm, leaving one-third of his estate to his wife, Lillian L. Lach, and the remaining two-thirds to his two children, had not been executed. He and his wife have been separated. Lach was prominent in the Masonic fraternity.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S PROJECT.

The country can not fail to be astonished by the bold proposal of President-elect Roosevelt to undertake a gigantic project in the Tennessee valley, whereby 200,000 men would be employed in constructing a vast system of hydroelectric power, land reclamation, reforestation, and flood control. Apparently it is intended that the Government shall finance and construct this system, and perhaps operate it. Mr. Roosevelt rightly describes it as "the most interesting experiment a government has ever undertaken."

The first question that arises is, where is the money to come from with which to finance this enterprise? On this point there is little enlightenment at present, although it is intimated that no difficulty will be found in floating bonds. Presumably it is intended that the United States shall go into debt to pay for this experiment. Mr. Roosevelt is quoted by the Associated Press as follows:

> If it is successful, and I am confident that it will be, I think this development will be the forerunner of similar projects in other sections, particularly in the Ohio and Arkansas valleys and in the Columbia River basin of the Northwest.

This announcement is a warning to Americans to revise their ideas as to the proper function of the Government. It must not be assumed that the President-elect is speaking idly of some grandiose ideal which he recognizes as impossible of attainment under present limitations. He regards the project as a practical plan which he proposes to ask Congress to put into execution.

Citizens who oppose the policy of putting the Government into business will look aghast at this plan, which goes far beyond anything yet proposed, and which gives rise to problems that have never before confronted Congress. No mention is made in the preliminary announcement concerning the methods that would be adopted to operate the huge enterprises that are contemplated. It is not clear that Mr. Roosevelt has in mind a new department charged with the duty of operating the various business enterprises that will be connected with the power, reclamation, and farm rehabilitation branches of the great project. It may be that he has in mind the transfer of these activities to the States in which they are located.

Naturally, the Government can not tolerate private competition in any business which it undertakes. Commercial power systems would perforce disappear in areas covered by Government power service. If nothing else would force them out of competition, the Government would tax them out of existence. Within the sphere of its operations the Government would be as much a monopolist as is the Soviet in Russia. Indeed, the plan now outlined has a strong resemblance to the methods which the Soviet has applied to all activities. The plan, so far as it goes, seems to be based upon the idea of the state as the sole owner and operator of business enterprises.

Before this plan reaches the construction stage it may be necessary to consider the system of management to be installed. Direct Government operation would involve questions of civil service personnel, retirement pay, annual leave, &c., which do not enter into the problems of private enterprise. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt contemplates the creation of corporations to manage the project, subject only to the general supervision of the Government.

Further details concerning this project and the attitude of the public toward it will be awaited with interest.

STRANGE ECONOMY.

Strange action is taken in the name of economy when the Senate undertakes to reduce expenditures by striking at essential Government services. Unlike the House, the Senate is impressed with the necessity of trimming down the budget. But instead of proceeding in an orderly manner to eliminate the non-essentials which contribute nothing to the welfare of the Nation, the Senate lets the economy ax fall where it will.

Senator Bratton's scheme to have department heads reduce expenditures by 5 per cent after they have been trimmed in every way known to Congress was approved by a large majority. Precautions were taken against the assessment of this cut against salaries. Administrative officials can not save this amount by use of the furlough. But they can dismiss employes and thus make up the entire saving from funds that would otherwise go into the Government's payroll.

By accepting this scheme the Senate merely passes the buck to department heads. If the Senate can not find ways and means of saving 5 per cent on the appropriation bills, how can department heads be expected to do so, without dismissing a large number of Government workers? The Senate is trying to delegate a responsibility that it should itself exercise. That august body is quite in favor of economy if some other agency can bring it about.

The frenzy of the Senate reached a climax when it struck from the bill the entire appropriation for the airmail, notwithstanding the strenuous opposition of Senator Oddie, who is in charge of the bill. After spending more than $100,000,000 for the development of the airmail service, the Senate suddenly concluded that it couldn't afford $19,000,000 to carry out the airmail contracts which the Government has signed. Obviously, this is not economy, but a fit of temper. The airmail item will undoubtedly be reinstated in conference and the Senate will probably accept it.

Most of the chaos in the Senate may be attributed to its effort to sacrifice the Government service so that extravagant doles and expensive public works may not be disturbed. If the Senate persists in its effort to balance the budget by eliminating from the appropriation bills items that are not fixed by law, more antics of this kind may be expected. It is the so-called fixed expenditures, where hundreds of millions are squandered, from which the major savings must come. The drive to balance the budget by the simple method of trimming down the supply bills would result only in crippling the Government.

EVADING THE ISSUE.

Chairman O'Brien, of the Tariff Commission, treated a House committee to a curious bit of logic yesterday. If Congress votes to put emergency duties on goods from countries using depreciated currency, he says, then Congress should vote to take this country off the gold standard. Mr. O'Brien was trying to emphasize his belief that foreign countries using depreciated currency have obtained no advantages by suspending gold payments. He got off on a tangent that has no connection whatever with the point at issue.

Great Britain, Japan and other countries descended into the morass of unstable currency against their will. While they are suffering from the disadvantages of unsound money they find a temporary advantage in dumping commodities on the American market at prices which producers in this country can not meet. To suggest that any one who wishes to protect American industries from this menace must also favor destruction of the gold standard in the United States is absurd.

The value of being off or on the gold standard is not at issue. No country is foolish enough voluntarily to sacrifice the stability of its money. The question at issue is whether the depreciation of currency in some countries is enabling foreign manufacturers to crush some American industries. The indisputable answer is: yes. Chairman O'Brien admits that fact. Otherwise the Tariff Commission would not have recommended a change in the duty on rubber and canvas footwear from Japan and Czechoslovakia by the maximum amount permissible under the law. It would be unfair to assume that Mr. O'Brien follows one policy and advocates another to Congress.

It may be that the views of Mr. O'Brien have been unfairly represented to the public. His condemnation was of a specific plan to raise duties against countries off the gold standard. Methods are not important. The essential thing is to stop this encroachment upon American industries. By allowing these countries advantages in the American market, because of their depreciated money, this country encourages them to remain off the gold standard and perpetuate the existing chaos in international trade.

NEARING A SHOWDOWN.

At the eleventh hour Japan seems to be convinced that the League of Nations will not countenance her aggression in Manchuria. Japan has stubbornly refused to conciliate the dispute on any reasonable basis. When the time for conciliation has passed and the league is finishing a report on which more drastic action can be based, Japan comes forth with a last-minute offer. Some of her former objections are withdrawn, but the basic situation remains the same.

The report which is being drawn up for the committee of nineteen firmly condemns Japan as an aggressor in Manchuria. The drafting subcommittee has concluded that Manchuria is an integral part of China; that the Japanese invasion was not undertaken in self-defense; that a separate government has been established in Manchuria, not by spontaneous action of the people, but by the force of Japanese arms; that large portions of China's territory have been seized and held, and that the Chinese boycott was not a provocative measure but a reprisal against armed invasion.

These findings are so diametrically opposed to the Japanese viewpoint that no conciliation seems possible. Under pressure Japan is willing to yield on minor points, but Japan also gives notice that she will stand by the following contentions: That her military invasion of Manchuria was undertaken in self-defense; that Manchukuo was established by the will of its own people, and that its so-called independent status must not now be changed. Japan could not drop these points without admitting her culpability before the whole world.

Events at Geneva are moving to a showdown. Indications are that the committee of nineteen will have to accept the findings of the group which is drafting the report, and then proceed to formulate recommendations. If the report is accepted, Japan will probably withdraw from the league. After that it is difficult to forecast what will happen, but indications are that the smaller powers represented in the league assembly will press for economic sanctions against Japan, while Great Britain and France will continue to urge moderation.

The league can not sidestep the issue. Japan's conquest in China is so definitely a violation of the covenant that the league will either have to act or advertise its futility. If Japan is allowed to gobble up Manchuria, the covenant of the league will become only a scrap of paper fit for the scorn of any nation with an army and a navy. Yet if the league should stand firm, Japan would probably throw off the mask of pretense and carry out her full program of conquest. The league would be forced to boycott Japan, with war as the logical result. It is not surprising that the statesmen at Geneva move at a snail's pace, hoping against hope that fate will save the league from a collision with Japan.

IMPORTING CHINESE SEAMEN.

About 200 Chinese were recently brought to this country by an American steamer, to be transferred to another American vessel as seamen. They are not seamen until they have signed their papers, and not having signed such papers they were described as "aliens in transit." The law permits the transit of aliens destined for service on a foreign vessel, but there is no law permitting aliens to come into this country to take away the jobs of American citizens. A ruling that these aliens must be returned to their home country has been appealed to Washington.

It is clearly contrary to public policy to permit American shipowners to import Chinese crews. If there is doubt as to the law, the Department of Labor should resolve the doubt in favor of American citizens. There is no dearth of American seamen.

The senators who howl loudest for economy are also the neatest sidesteppers when asked to cut down gratuities to non-war-disabled veterans.

As the House adds $18,000,000 to the veterans' dole the Senate knocks out the item of $19,000,000 for air mail, and so balances the budget.

Congress is monkeying with appropriations, economy, &c., but soon it will get down to the main business of discussing beer.

Peru is about to discover that Leticia, on the upper Amazon, is full of malaria, anyhow.

GUNS, BUT NO SHOES

From the Los Angeles Times.

Russia's five-year industrial plan as a military measure was a success, according to Dictator Stalin; but while the factories were producing "on a mass scale all the weapons of defense," the great majority of the people went through two Russian winters without shoes. Stalin admitted in a recent address, of which an official copy was delivered to the Associated Press, that "In order to change over to a basis for producing defense materials, many of our factories were forced to go out of operation for four months."

Reports from neutral observers are to the effect that among these factories were the ones where shoes for the people were manufactured. Admitting this shortage in shoes, and clothes also, Stalin made the following excuse: "We all know we have produced less than was needed, resulting in well-known difficulties, but consider the consequences of postponing our heavy industrial production in favor of making more shoes, clothes and other articles of consumption." Further along he says, "That is why the party was compelled to lash the country."

During this same period, while the country was lashed to greater production of war material, grain was forcibly taken from the peasants in the great wheat-growing districts in order to feed the industrial workers. The country was stripped bare and the peasants who had produced the grain left to starve. A cable reproduced in the Literary Digest asserts that "Practically all Russia's peasant class is forced to 'steal' the products of his own labor in order to survive."

So great became the distress in the Ukraine, the great wheat belt of Europe, that 1,000,000 inhabitants fled from that section to other parts in search of food. The farms where the wheat was raised were stripped so bare by the government agents, collecting for the industrial districts, that those who grew the wheat were left without a single pood to feed them through the Russian winter and until a new harvest should ripen.

Evidently the dictatorship of the proletariat is the dictatorship of the industrial districts. The only use to which those defensive weapons have been put is to keep under complete military surveillance the Russian peasants who are deprived of the food they raise "under the lash."

The Hunt for Economy.

POST HASTE

Hitler asks Germany to suspend judgment a few minutes until he puts through a couple of four-year programs. He has more nerve than we thought.

Rather a plain hint to the President-elect not to forget that the Senate also enjoys some veto powers.

John Bull's attitude that he is doing us a favor when he permits us to cancel his debts does not seem to be making a hit in this country.

The Joint Veterans' Committee of Congress evidently is afflicted with arthritis, since it hasn't taken a step since last summer.

By the time debtors and creditors get their differences all fixed up in spite of handicaps Congress will pass the bankruptcy bill.

Of course, Europe knows that the thunder of the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in four weeks will be just the opinion of a senator from Idaho.

Financial history shows that free silver, fiat and inflation are schemes to make it twice as hard to get a dollar that will buy half as much.

Watching the dilatory moves of Congress you will be surprised how it will slam bills through without looking at them the last three days.

Somebody divulged to the Tariff Commission what everybody else has known for six months about the gum shoe industry.

Just for variety we desire to acknowledge entire agreement with and commendation of plans for the celebration of Boy Scout week.

Have you bought your lot for the Florida boom in the Tennessee Valley?

Japan insists that the state of Manchukuo is an accomplished fact and that her policy in Manchuria must not be questioned. That puts her out of the league, and nobody to play ball with.

The White House swimming pool will bring protests from Warm Springs for being taken off the map.

Have you been able to work up sympathy for the carpenters who refuse to work on the inaugural stands for less than $11 a day?

Germany will claim as much right to demand the return of territorial possessions as the allies have to seek debt revisions. Some ill winds blow both ways.

Nothing so stirs a man's enthusiastic eloquence as his first discovery that it isn't overproduction but underconsumption and faulty distribution that is the trouble with the world.

The Senate knocked the props from under the Air Service. Lame ducks weren't flying home, anyhow.

BIRDS AND EARTHWORMS.

Many people believe that birds, such as robins, locate earthworms in the ground by hearing them, says the Pathfinder. The fact is birds find their food chiefly by the sense of sight. Their behavior in cocking their heads while searching for worms and other food on the ground leads some to conclude that the sense of hearing is involved, but this gesture on the part of birds is merely to aid in seeing. Birds do not have bifocal vision and they can see best when a single eye is pointed directly at the spot or object to be examined. They have a poor sense of smell.

Let Him Who Can Dance With the Most Girls Contribute Most to the Fiddler

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PROFESSIONAL friends of the poor man have taught us to regard the sales tax as a new burden for the common people.

If that were true all fair-minded people would oppose it.

But there is nothing new in a tax paid by the consumer of goods—that is, the "ultimate consumer." He now pays every tax levied, and changing the name of the tax or the method of collection need not increase his burden.

As an additional burden the sales tax would be inexcusable. As a new method of carrying the load it offers many advantages.

It is axiomatic that a tax is just only as it matches the citizen's ability to pay it. In America, at least, ability to purchase goods indicates a proportionate ability to pay taxes.

Certainly the man who can buy a $10,000 automobile is able to pay more tax than the man who must content himself with a $600 automobile.

There could be no fairer tax than one imposed on each citizen in exact proportion to his ability to enjoy the products of his civilization.

At present we tax industry and make idle wealth tax-free. That is economic lunacy. Working capital—that is, wealth that cooperates with labor in producing more wealth—should be relieved of all taxation. It provides jobs, and jobs provide cash customers.

Could the sales tax provide sufficient Federal revenue?

The cost of Government in 1912 was about $1,000,000,000. There is no reason under heaven why it should be higher today. Add a billion to save argument, and say the cost should be two billions.

Could a sales tax bring in that much? Even now America's consumers are spending $40,000,000,000 a year. A 5 per cent tax on that sum would be $2,000,000,000.

Keep the import tax for protection. Abolish all other Federal taxes. And let the consumer—the final user—pay a 5 per cent tax on every article he buys—whether a locomotive, a skyscraper, a hat or a knitting needle.

Does that seem high? Canada's painless sales tax is 6 per cent, and some of us are paying a sales tax of 20 per cent on tobacco and 30 per cent on gasoline.

A single Federal tax would rid us of countless jobholders, and Mr. John Consumer, believe it or not, would carry the same old burden with less pain in his neck.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Legislative Mess.
Boston Transcript.

How can a befuddled Congress pass ten appropriation bills in five weeks? That is the serious question suggested by Senator Watson's announcement that some of the major supply bills must go over to the special session. The task would be difficult enough if nothing else were to be considered, owing to the pressure for economy under which Congress is laboring. It must be regarded as virtually impossible, with the Senate still fooling with a hypocritical beer bill it never should have touched at this session, a repeal resolution hamstrung by the drys, a farm relief measure as to the merits of which public opinion has not yet crystallized, and with important fiscal measures hanging fire in one branch or the other. The situation is ideal for filibusters, and as they usually are the persons whose judgment the country most distrusts, the prospect is that the new Seventy-third Congress will sit until fall, if not later.

Discipline and Economy.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

It is becoming steadily more apparent that the failure of the present Congress to effect genuine economies is due in great part to the total lack of discipline in the two chambers. Party lines count for nothing, and responsible leadership counts for nothing. Thinking of the votes of constituents, successive measures of economy are lost when the showdown comes on the floor of House or Senate. Economy is only possible by intrusting a few leaders with the grim task of selecting places to trim costs and then supporting the decisions of those leaders. This procedure is not being followed.

Nothing Doing.
Toledo Blade.

Fancy the survivors of the good old days lining up to the bar three deep for nonintoxicating beer.

Simplicity Itself.
Boston Globe.

"What About Your Income Tax Problem?" asks a headline. That's an easy one. No income, no tax.

Stranger Than Fiction.
Boston Globe.

Simeon D. Fess predicted that signs of improvement will become apparent after Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration, and that prediction amounts to a handsome thing for an Ohio Republican to say.

Is Independence Dead in Samoa?
Kansas City Star.

A House committee approves a bill to set up a civil government for American Samoa, with 10,000 possible citizens. The Samoans are lucky. Congress might be insisting on granting them independence and putting them to the expense of a government of their own.

The Senate's Barber Bill.
Detroit News.

The revelation that in the last fiscal year the senators of the United States charged to the public $8,000 in barber bills and $6,350 for mineral water is not going to sit very well on the overburdened taxpayer. There is nothing wrong with the drinking water of the District of Columbia; but it may very well be that there is something in the mineral water consumed by senators at public expense that causes it to stimulate the vocal cords. The evidence is to be found in the Congressional Record, and in the inability of the Senate, during certain spasms, to get anything done.

The $8,000 barber bill is overwhelming. Is there no senator with a safety razor? Except for that of J. Ham Lewis, there are few senatorial beards to be trimmed, and a goodly number of senators are almost hairless. There seems to be no good reason why senators should not pay for their own barbering. Remember Samson and Delilah.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Democrat Disagrees With Senator McKellar as to Public Demand for Government in Business at Muscle Shoals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, in his radio address a few nights ago, frankly announced to the world that he and the others who recently accompanied the President-elect to Muscle Shoals were in full accord with Senator Norris' scheme to have the Federal Government develop and operate the plant at that place. In the course of his address he pictured the great benefits that would occur to the people located in that particular part of the country by reason of the cheaper cost to them of current and fertilizers. He then took occasion to eulogize Senator Norris for his persistent efforts on this project and opined that every American would or should be grateful for the senator's efforts (to put the Government in business in competition with privately owned enterprises.

Since the property at Muscle Shoals is owned by the Government and for that reason will pay no taxes either on its investment or its profits from operations, it is possible that the current and fertilizers which the Government would produce there could be supplied at smaller cost to the consumer than can be done by privately owned manufacturers of a similar character whose biggest expense item is property and income taxes. The advocates of Senator Norris' plan for Government operation of this property are very careful never to mention this feature.

If the Government is going to enter into competition with privately owned utility companies there is no reason why it should not extend its operations to any other business. Therefore, if our Government decides to operate Muscle Shoals it may only be a matter of time before it spreads out into other businesses.

The senator from Tennessee has a big surprise coming to him if he really believes that practically all or even a majority of the American people will favor any such bill as he predicts will soon be enacted. Even if we admit that the majority of people in Tennessee adjacent to Muscle Shoals would benefit by Government operations of this plant, I rather think that the people—the large majority of people—who admittedly would derive no such benefit will be averse to having the Government dump any more of their tax money into this plan. Certainly all Democrats who have the interest of all the people at heart will oppose this bill. A DEMOCRAT.

Miss Peterson Demands Color and Style in Baseball Uniforms, Bats and Balls.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why don't the baseball managers buy more up-to-date outfits for their players—for example, more form-fitting suits and silks instead of cotton denim for blouses? I would suggest something on the order of a jockey outfit, with a flowing silk handkerchief to be used around the neck. This would give the diamond more color and prevent that drabness most baseball diamonds emanate. They should also have bats to match the suits and baseballs of colored leathers.

Those old-fashioned bloomers that resemble our grandmothers' gym suits of 1890 look decidedly ugly and ungainly. TERESA PETERSON.

Predicts Domestic Debt Cancellation if Foreign Debts Are Canceled.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If Uncle Sam should fall a nit wit to international propaganda and play Santa Claus to foreign debtors, it should not be overlooked that in doing so he would be establishing a precedent from which it would be politically impossible to refuse reduction by law or subsidy to American farm and home mortgagors and mortgagees who would rise up by millions and demand relief, saying, "Here, you do all this for these conniving foreigners, I guess you can do as much for your own honest American citizens." And will it be right to say they are not entitled to it on this basis? J. R. HUNNEMAN.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE COMFORTABLE MAN.

As men went racing up and down
Upon a chair he sat him down,
And thought and fancied all day long
It must be good to be so strong;
It must be good to plan and build
An edifice with splendor filled;
It must be good to come at night,
Victor or vanquished from a fight,
And have a stirring tale to tell
To all of those you love so well.

I've everything a man can ask
Except a necessary task.
In spring my tulip beds are fair,
A hired gardener sets them there.
In summer from my sheltered room
I watch the roses come to bloom.
But I know not their names, nor why
Some thrive while others pine and die.
I think it must be good to know
The way to make a garden grow.

He stood, like one entranced by dreams,
Admiring men who swung on beams
And reared great buildings, stone by stone,
And wished their cares to him were known.
Thought he: "It must be good to fret
And feel the heavy weight of debt;
To face a future dark with doubt
And bravely work your own way out.
I wish I knew the burdens, which Life keeps away from people rich."

Dawes Bank Loan By U. S. Defended

Head of R. F. C. Asserts "Brave Action Averted Disaster to Nation."

(Associated Press.)

A vigorous defense of the $90,000,000 loan by the Reconstruction Corporation to Charles G. Dawes' Chicago bank was made before the Senate banking subcommittee yesterday by Charles A. Miller, president of the corporation. He said in answer to questions of Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa:

"I regret I wasn't here to vote for it and share in that courageous and brave action. It was one of the bravest things ever done in this country. If that loan had not been made the results would have been disastrous to the Nation."

Brookhart said Insull securities had been put up by the bank as collateral and that he was informed the corporation would lose $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 on the advance.

"I don't know whether there will be any loss," Miller replied, "but certainly not such a staggering loss as that."

Virginia Farms Urged For Hunting Preserves

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Development of private farms as hunting preserves where sportsmen may obtain a day's hunt for a "reasonable fee," was strongly urged today by Carl H. Nolting, newly appointed commissioner of game and inland fisheries.

Mr. Nolting said the game department is planning a method whereby rural land owners may be aided in this direction.

President Restores Miller Citizenship

Former Alien Custodian Served Fraud Term in Atlanta.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday signed a certificate restoring citizenship to Thomas W. Miller, of Wilmington, Del., former alien property custodian, who served a sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary for frauds arising out of his handling of some of the property.

Miller was convicted of defrauding the Government in a case based on the payment to Richard Merton, a German subject, of $6,458,979 in connection with the sale of the American Metals Co. assets, seized by the Government during the war. Application for the restoration of Miller's citizenship rights was signed both by the District attorney and the judge who presided at his trial.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is captured by a Dutch hunter in order to obtain a £500 prize offered by James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, who is interested in the lion-man. The local commissioner, Martin Sefton, is so drawn to the lion-man that he resigns his position and accompanies Kaspa to Montreal. Here, Horton recognizes him as the long lost grandson of Denison Starke, a Canadian millionaire, now dead. He left a sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley, who had two stepchildren, Lucian and Sheila. Horton is afraid that the step-children will contest Kaspa's claim. It is decided that Sefton is to live with Kaspa at Honeydale while proofs of Kaspa's relationship to Denison Starke is obtained.

CHAPTER XIII.

AT Honeydale, Kaspa proceeded to learn the ways of men under Sefton's painstaking tuition. Within two months Kaspa could talk; within four he could read slowly and uncertainly from children's books. He swam miles in the lake every day, learned to play tennis after a fashion and to hit a punch-ball, but his chief amusement was wandering in the woods clad in nothing but a bathing suit. Sefton controlled him purely by kindness. The enthusiasm of the tutor for his pupil's progress was the greatest stimulus of it. But as the months crept by and the old life of veld and thorn dropped further and further behind him, he began to wonder if this civilizing process would benefit him in the end.

The more human he became, the less fitted was he to return to the life of an animal. His former playmates, Ruka and Dogo, the cave in the hills and the nightly hunts under the huge African moon seemed very far away in those days.

Then came Horton's news that Kaspa was indeed the son of Christopher Starke and the possessor of four million dollars. The native Abdalla had been brought from Africa. Kaspa appeared in a court of law and was recognized by birthmarks and his undoubted likeness to his grandfather. The papers were full of the romantic story. Reporters and sensation seekers besieged Honeydale. Sefton and Kaspa, under assumed names, booked passage for Florida, but before they went Kaspa was taken to Rosewood, the home of Mrs. Marley, to be introduced to his relatives. Besides Mrs. Marley there were her stepchildren, Lucian and Sheila, and Madeline Moore, the orphan daughter of her husband's friend.

Mrs. Marley was white haired and wrinkled, but by no means infirm. The old lady was proud of her family, of which Kaspa was now the sole male representative. Consequently he was received by her, not as an intruder, but as a prodigal returned to the flock, particularly as she was so disappointed with her own stepchildren. Lucian was pleasant mannered and good natured, but selfish, an idler and fond of fast company, endowed, like himself, with riches in excess of their intelligence. Sheila, his sister, was also of this set, but she had more strength of character than Lucian, though possibly an even greater conceit, because she had looks as well as money and position.

She was a golden blonde, slight and petite, with a small round face and large blue eyes, who took nothing seriously. Not even the intrusion of Kaspa cast a shadow upon the sparkling current of her existence.

Madeline Moore, Mrs. Marley's paid companion, was of a different type, both physically and mentally. Tall and lithe, she possessed a figure such as the Greeks loved to perpetuate in marble. She had brown curly hair, which she wore bobbed, and which seldom appeared tidy, large deep blue eyes and perfect teeth. Her countenance being symmetrical and her forehead broad, there was nothing wanting in her charm.

Madeline had been a society debutante before her father's financial failure and subsequent death. She had been a more popular member of Sheila's own set, and the change from patron to dependent had not left many of her illusions intact. The tragedy of her father's death and the change in her own fortunes had cast a veil of sadness over her once boisterous gayety. Her friends considered that she was more charming pathetic than gay.

The fifth member of the party was Harland Reeves, a stock broker by profession, and Sheila's fiance. He was a big-built, muscularly powerful man, and had been a successful boxer at school and in the Army. The consciousness of his ability to back up an insult or to resent one had given him a slightly insolent, too self-assured manner, which men found objectionable but women rather admired, since it was never exercised upon them. Reeves was considered a good business man and not a bad fellow, once you got to know him. He had great influence over the headstrong Sheila, who found in him the only man who could control her, and therefore respected and loved him for his sterner qualities.

Into this company came the reluctant Kaspa, accompanied by his sponsors, Horton and Sefton. He found it all foolish and unnecessary. The light, exaggerated manner of Sheila, who was given to saying frivolous things with disproportionate emphasis, and serious things with flippancy, bewildered him completely. Mrs. Marley's watchful consideration, and Madeline's interested regard, were alike embarrassing to him.

He who had never been nervous in his wild life had acquired self-consciousness with the rudiments of culture.

He felt awkward and foolish, unable to understand most of what was said, and handicapped by his inability to reply to their questions, except after careful selection and arrangement of his scanty vocabulary. Sheila could never wait for him to speak; she was as restless as a bird, and must always be changing the subject to something entirely different. It was very difficult for him.

Sefton was nervous and annoyed by his pupil's predicament. He thought it the height of folly to bring a man like Kaspa into contact with these silly, artificial people, and then he discovered upon examination that only two out of the five could be truthfully described in these terms.

Sheila and her brother were the noisy, vapid ones. Reeves had nothing to say, and Mrs. Marley and Madeline were sympathetic and intrigued by the character about whom they had heard so much. Sefton liked the dark girl who watched Kaspa so kindly and gravely; she was also a beauty—very much so.

Before long he was studying Madeline as closely as she studied Kaspa.

The lion-man was not at his best. The drawing room at Rosewood was a low-ceilinged room; the windows were shut, because Mrs. Marley disliked drafts, and Kaspa received the general impression that he was shut up in an air-tight box with a lot of gibbering monkeys.

After a time even Horton began to wish that he had waited until Kaspa's education was further advanced before bringing him in contact with these worldly people. He acceded to Sefton's unspoken request, and, pleading the necessity of preparing for the Florida journey, extricated himself and his two friends.

"Not very successful, I'm afraid," he said softly to Sefton as they walked down the drive to their car.

"What can you expect? Society chit-chat is not the atmosphere for a man who has dealt with stark reality all his life," was the savage reply. "Now they've seen him I hope they never want to see him again."

Horton grinned. "Oh, well, he'll soon learn how to mix with these people," he said. "I wanted him to have a talk with Agatha, but that can come later." Agatha was Mrs. Marley. "She is an understanding woman and a good sort."

"The only understanding person in the crowd, I should imagine," said Sefton, but he was thinking that the dark girl who said little was the one who understood most.

Meanwhile the Marleys were discussing their guest.

"What do you think of him?" said Lucian when the door had closed.

Sheila hastened to give her opinion: "Stupid, I thought. He didn't seem to have a word to say for himself; just sat there like a big Newfoundland dog, wagging his tail and grinning."

Reeves was amused. "You can't expect much else of a man reared like a savage," he pointed out.

Mrs. Marley nodded her head. "Give him a chance. He is a Starke, and he will come into his own, you'll see."

Lucian sniggered. "He's come into is already. It does seem tough that such a fellow inherits a fortune when there are so many others who could make better use of it."

Madeline gave him an indignant glance, which amused Sheila.

"Hello! He's got a champion in Madge, anyway!" she cried maliciously. "Were you smitten with his charms, dear?"

The dark girl flushed. "I think he is a magnificent looking man," she said quietly, "and perhaps he has more brains than you think. It seems incredible that six months ago he was no better than an animal."

"He looks rather like an overfed prizefighter, in his clothes," said Reeves thoughtfully, "but you never know how a man will strip. He's tall enough—made me feel like a dwarf." He glanced down at his own six feet of height with approval. He had attempted to weigh up Kaspa from the viewpoint of his ruling passion, but considered that he was a more useful heavyweight than the lion-man, despite his inferiority of stature. "It isn't always size that counts," he murmured.

Sheila began to talk about amateur theatricals in which she was taking part. The subject of Kaspa had become tiresome to her. Months before, when Horton had told them about him, she had been thrilled, but the novelty had worn off.

Madeline took no part in the ensuing conversation; she was trying to remember all she had heard about lions and their ways.

She was the only one of them who realized the stupendous fact that they had entertained a wild African lion who could talk and act like a man.

She had been fascinated by his curious tawny eyes. True, he had kept them hidden in the dim light of the room, but she had obtained one glimpse of them when the lion-man's watchful gaze flickered over her. They were full of strange yellow lights and flashes of expression to which she was unaccustomed.

In the following months Madeline read all the books about lions she could obtain, and by the time she had read a few of them her interest in Kaspa had become absorbing; but Kaspa had almost forgotten her existence.

Dr. Behrend Estate Placed at $114,453

Three Children Will Share Equally in Fortune by Physician's Will.

Dr. Adajah Behrend, who died last December 27, left an estate valued at $114,453.50, it was disclosed in the District Supreme Court yesterday when his son, Dr. Edwin B. Behrend, filed a petition for probate of the will, which was dated July 9, 1901.

The three children who survived Dr. Behrend were named as the beneficiaries. They are to share equally in the estate, which is made up of $65,900 in real estate and $48,553.50 in personal property. The daughters are Mrs. Florence B. Stewart and Esther M. Behrend, who, with Dr. Behrend, comprise the survivors.

The will originally named Dr. Behrend's deceased wife, Mathilde Behrend, as the sole beneficiary, but it provided that in the event of her death the children were to receive the entire estate. Attorney R. B. Behrend filed the petition.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Colored wool seems a favorite trimming for Palm Beach wear—and pray it doesn't get caught in the rain! Here a short-sleeved and oddly cut jacket of white serge is trimmed in many colors, only one of which is repeated on the wide-brimmed straw hat—in the crown. (Seen on Fifth avenue.)

IT IS wise, and very economical in the long run, to get money ahead for shopping. Running out in the limited hours of a Saturday or Thursday afternoon off, hastily and often resignedly buying something that falls short of your needs or expectations, is always extravagant.

It shouldn't take a woman 40 years to learn that! But I greatly fear that it often does. Find me the woman of any age who doesn't still buy things that she neither needs nor even uses after they are bought. But I hope that these fatalities are less and less frequent in your life!

Knowing her own type and what colors and silhouettes are the most becoming is one of the first lessons that a wise woman teaches herself. The next lesson is that of never buying anything without first picturing your wardrobe in your mind's eye—and deciding whether what you are buying actually belongs with the rest of your wardrobe or doesn't. The bag or hat that you "simply can't live without" is just so much money and good taste thrown away, if it does not harmonize with anything else in your wardrobe, and necessitates either buying the rest of an outfit to go with it—or wearing it alone at the expense of chic.

Colors, too, have their pitfalls. The woman with a very limited budget must be limited in her colors—or risk something in the way of being forced finally to wear an unpleasant combination of colors for economy's sake, because the separate articles are still too good to be thrown away.

If you have a color sense and a liking for color, as well as finding it becoming to you, then you must use an almost superhuman taste in color selection. Fortunately, the mode is more colorful these days—but that does not mean that you can assemble a red purse, a red hat, a yellow printed scarf, brown shoes and a lord-knows-what color dress—and get away with it. It means that if you decide this spring on greens for the keynote of your wardrobe, greens it must be wholeheartedly, in shades and tones, of course. And that you must know what few other colors make a harmonious contrast to the shades of green you are wearing. And, of course, that green actually becomes you!

Pin Points.

The pin of olden days which causes such a furore in England was an article which required in its making about 18 different operations per pin! The head was attached to the shank separately, by wire. Today pins are made by the umpee-unteen million—thusly; wire of a suitable thickness is run off a reel, nipped at the required length between lateral jaws. Each little length of wire is then headed by a die and pointed by a revolving cutter. Now friend pin—and a million more, gets a nice bath in weak beer, before he is laid in a copper pan between alternate layers of grained tin—and pin. What happens to him you will find out tomorrow!

You can slip in or out of color, as you wish, this season. Your fine white woolen frock can be as free of color as a snow-covered vista—and in a flutter of $10 worth of eyelash—you can be into a short sleeved, oddly cut jacket which is embroidered in colored wools. There it is, sketched for you today—all in the conventional sun, too!

Hurry, hurry! Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet—of ten Oriental designs. You can trace 'em or enlarge 'em or just follow them as a pattern, on something to decorate or embroider. Some of these are on our real parchment lamps, you know And almost anything you might want in the way of an Oriental design is among them. Do send for this leaflet before it slips your mind—this is the last day that you can, you know.

Au revoir!

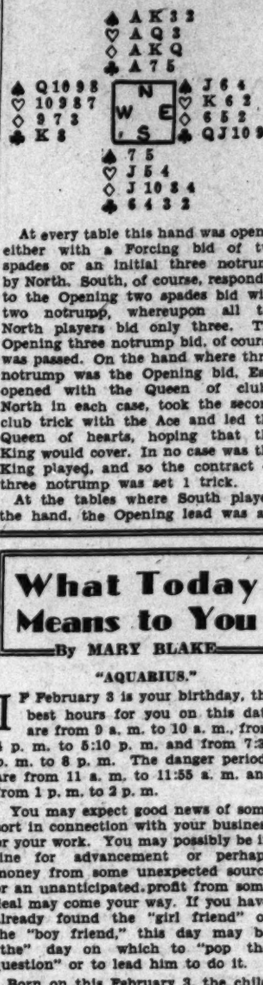
WHIST MAXIMS.

UNTIL the development of the modern theory of cards, practically every player—good, bad and indifferent—at the Bridge table meaninglessly echoed the maxims of play which have been handed down from Whist. Among these rules, which are sometimes honored in the breach and at others rigidly in the observance, are "Third Hand high" and "cover an honor with an honor." The hand below is a case where a strong player recognized that there are exceptions to these rules.

North—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



At every table this hand was opened either with a Forcing bid of two spades or an initial three notrump by North. South, of course, responded to the Opening two spades bid with two notrump, whereupon all the North players bid only three. The Opening three notrump bid, of course, was passed. On the hand where three notrump was the Opening bid, East opened with the Queen of clubs. North in each case, took the second club trick with the Ace and led the Queen of hearts, hoping that the King would cover. In no case was the King played, and so the contract of three notrump was set 1 trick.

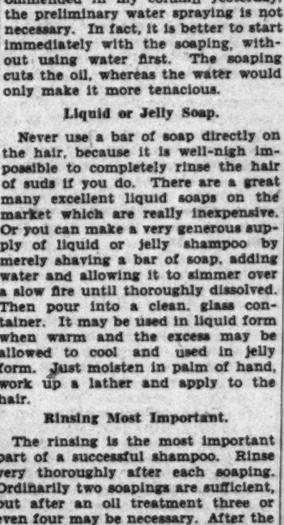
At the tables where South played the hand, the Opening lead was always the Ten of hearts, on which the Queen was invariably played from Dummy. At all except one table, East covered the Queen with the King of hearts, allowing South an eventual entry into his hand with the Knave of hearts, to make good the thirteenth diamond. Mr. Hugh Jackson, a very brilliant player, sat East, holding this particular hand, and reasoned as follows: "My partner does not have the Knave; hence Declarer has the Knave. Therefore, Declarer has decided that my partner has not led from the King and is, therefore, trying to coax me to cover in order to establish an entry in his hand." Accordingly, Mr. Jackson played low and the hand was defeated.

Although this reasoning seems elementary, it is only necessary to point out that, among six fine players who happened to have that opportunity, Mr. Jackson was the only one to make the bid.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:10 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 11:55 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

You may expect good news of some sort in connection with your business or your work. You may possibly be in line for advancement or perhaps money from some unexpected source or an unanticipated profit from some deal may come your way. If you have already found the "girl friend" or the "boy friend," this day may be "the" day on which to "pop the question" or to lead him to do it.

Born on this February 3, the child will pass through a happy and healthy childhood. Possessed of minds that gather facts and accumulate information, these children will be interesting and intelligent little ones. They will carry on serious and interesting discussions with their elders. They will not enjoy the usual games for children. Great readers.

If February 3 is the date of your birth your outstanding faults are, first, a readiness to talk much too freely about your own affairs, and secondly, a curiosity about the affairs of others. For some reason or other you apparently feel that your problems and difficulties are of prime importance and interest to others. You constantly seek advice of others who are in a position no better than your own and who consequently can not give you the kind of advice you need. Yours is a prying nature in regard to the affairs of others; you are motivated not by a desire to be able to help others in working out their problems, but simply by the desire to know what ails the other man. Fortunately, you are not a gossip.

Born on February 3, yours is an alert mind, ever thinking up new ideas and schemes of a business nature. You would seem to have the ability to put across new ventures. You are a sales type and quite likely you have a "gift of gab." Both the men and women born on this date are not too steady in marital affairs; there are, however, not a great many divorces among them. There is, however, a good deal of friction, and they seem to allow a good deal of uncertainty and doubt to creep into their married lives.

Successful people born on February 3:

Horace Greeley, journalist.
Elizabeth Blackwell, physician.
Spencer F. Baird, naturalist.
Ogden N. Rood, scientist and inventor.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

FOLLOWING a hot oil treatment, whether olive or castor oil, or half and half, or mineral oil is used, many women find it difficult to remove all oil from the hair. As you know, when oil remains in the hair, it tends to make the hair look darker and less fluffy.

Ordinarily I advocate starting the shampoo with a thorough spraying with lukewarm water first. This helps to remove dust, dirt and lint and prepares the hair for the generous soaping to follow.

After a hot oil treatment, particularly if it is preceded by thorough brushing and scalp massage as recommended in my column yesterday, the preliminary water spraying is not necessary. In fact, it is better to start immediately with the soaping, without using water first. The soaping cuts the oil, whereas the water would only make it more tenacious.

Liquid or Jelly Soap.

Never use a bar of soap directly on the hair, because it is well-nigh impossible to completely rinse the hair of suds if you do. There are a great many excellent liquid soaps on the market which are really inexpensive. Or you can make a very generous supply of liquid or jelly shampoo by merely shaving a bar of soap, adding water and allowing it to simmer over a slow fire until thoroughly dissolved. Then pour into a clean, glass container. It may be used in liquid form when warm and the excess may be allowed to cool and used in jelly form. Just moisten in palm of hand, work up a lather and apply to the hair.

Rinsing Most Important.

The rinsing is the most important part of a successful shampoo. Rinse very thoroughly after each soaping. Ordinarily two soapings are sufficient, but after an oil treatment three or even four may be necessary. After the last soaping, the hair should be rinsed three or four times. Do not be satisfied until rinsing water shows no trace of suds. Here's another way to test. When the hair is squeezed through the fingers as you rinse, if it makes a squeaky sound it is free from all soap. To the very last rinsing water you may add a teaspoonful of baking soda or a pinch of borax to cut every bit of oil and soap and leave the hair lovely and fluffy.

Or, you might use the lemon or vinegar rinse. These and many other rinses you can make at home are described in my bulletin on the subject. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Contract Let to Duplicate Payne's Church at Fairfax

The vestry of the Zion Episcopal Church at Fairfax, Va., has awarded the contract for erection of a new church to Morris Construction Co., of Washington, at a price of $17,000. The contract for moving the present church building was given Z. B. Groves, of Falls Church, Va. The work of moving the present structure to the north and west of the present location, where it will be used as a parish hall and Sunday school room, will start this week.

Construction of the new edifice is to be started within 25 days and must be completed within 100 working days thereafter. Church services will not be interrupted during the moving and construction. The present frame building was erected shortly after the Civil War.

The new building is to be of brick and will be a replica of Old Payne's Church, near Fairfax Station, which was built about 1786. The old church was erected when George Washington was a vestryman of Truro Parish and was the first all-brick structure in northern Virginia, antedating the present Pohick Church and Christ Church in Alexandria. The Old Payne Church was destroyed during the Civil War, the brick being used for baking ovens by Federal soldiers. Plans and specifications for the new church have been taken from the old minute books of Truro Parish.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ELECTRIC HEATING.

THERE is a place for electric heating. At this time its principal use is in "taking the edge off," as it is termed. During the morning hour, devoted to the baby's daily bath and toilet, the rule is that the heat from the central plant is low. The day is warming up and the occupants of houses are engaged in tasks that make heat, and the janitor takes advantage of these facts to save a little on the coal bill. The house is always cold around 9 in the morning.

The nursery temperature is too low for the baby while he is being bathed and dressed. In consequence, the electric heater is placed in the nursery and turned on for half an hour. Or such a heater is used to bring the bathroom up to the comfort level. Or the head of the family must get up and dress in the very early morning. Elderly people not infrequently add to their comfort by having an electric heater near the bed, and rolling over and turning on the heat about 15 minutes before they put their feet on a cold floor.

These are the present uses of electric heating and, as such, the method is justified in spite of its considerable cost.

Electric heating is the one method of heat production within the room itself that does not consume oxygen and produce carbonic acid and other gases within the inclosure. This is because the equivalent of the heat is produced in a central plant. It is carried to the inclosure by wires instead of pipes and ducts, but it is not changed into heat until it arrives at the point of use. It is, therefore, in a sense a fire within the room, but without the drawbacks of cold floors, drafts, smoke, ashes and gases.

We should remember that air in contact with a hot core burns to produce some carbonic acid, and if conditions are right for it there may be some carbon monoxide. The proposal for twentieth century practice is what is called panel heating. In this method there are neither fires, stoves, coils or cores within the room. The heating is located in the partitions and under the floors. These heat the walls and floors, and thus the air is indirectly heated. Electricity is one of the methods used in this panel heating.

Any hidden source of heat is liable to cause fires, as experience with roof fires from chimney leaks attests. This is one danger of panel heating by electricity that will need to be planned against.

WEIGHT AND COLOR.

Observer writes: Regarding best weights for women and men, as published in statistical reports, my doctor says they are misleading and cause those of normal weights (normal for them) to reduce to subnormal and resultant weakness and, after, serious trouble. Some are fat and some thin because they are constituted that way. Unless a person becomes unsightly and disfigured by fat, all he or she need do is to stop any distending of stomach walls at meal time by gorging. He says that it is the thin, anemic-looking girls and women who should worry and not the well-padded and well-formed kind, and that if paint were removed from the average young woman who won't eat this and that, refusing perfectly good food because of the dieting fad, we would all feel sorry for most of them because of their pale and anemic look. I think my doctor is right. Let's have color due to good, old-fashioned, wholesome food.

REPLY.

You are partly right. The weight tables so much in evidence give average weights for height and age. Some of them give one figure and others give ranges from low to high. As a rule, best weights are about 10 per cent lower than average weights.

A shortcoming of all such tables is that they are general and not individual, while it is known that every one who takes particular note of them applies the generalizations to his individual case.

The best weight depends on age and height and also on length of body, size of bones, build and nationality.

As a rule, young women of social aspirations are underweight. At their ages, underweight is dangerous.

Boy's 3,000-Mile Hike Finds Father

14-Year-Old Lad Makes His Way From Florida to Salt Lake City.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—From Tampa, Fla., to Salt Lake City is a long way for 14-year-old legs, but William Alman had made it today and, better yet, had located his father.

The boy, advised that his father, W. M. Alman, had found a job here, set out on the 3,000-mile trip. Assisted by rides in freight trains, trucks and motor cars, he reached New Mexico, where his extra clothing was stolen by other transients while the boy was asleep.

Scantily clad, he continued through the mountains in the face of zero weather, and earned an overcoat by chopping wood and shoveling snow at Grand Junction, Colo. He arrived here last night and told his story to police. Today he found his father, employed in a restaurant as cook.

Last Vows Said By Father Schon

Received by Dr. Nevils and Other Officials at Georgetown U.

The Rev. Frederick Wyatt Sohon, director of the seismological observatory at Georgetown University, pronounced his last vows as a Jesuit yesterday morning in Dahlgren Chapel. He entered the Society of Jesus on August 14, 1916.

Father Sohon's vows were received by the Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president, assisted by the Rev. John Clayton Murray, S. J., and the Rev. Aloysius Torre, S. J. Prof. Edward P. Donovan sang the traditional hymn "Suscipe," which is usually rendered on such occasions.

Father Sohon is regarded by Jesuits as the best mathematician in the order. He succeeded the late Rev. Francis A. Tondorf, S. J., as director of seismology when the latter died several years ago. Before then he was the seismologist at Fordham University. Recently Father Sohon published the first volume in the English language on "Seismometry," which is widely recognized in scientific circles.

With a determined effort to raise the $12,000 relief fund for Arlington County, Grover E. Payne, chairman of the citizens' relief committee, which is assisting the County Board of Public Welfare, announced last night many changes in the program which carries the appointment of four district chairmen and the dividing of the Clarendon area into three sections.

Clarendon section, one of the largest areas to be solicited, will be known as the eastern, northern and southern divisions. The eastern division will be bounded by Sherman avenue, South Clarendon avenue, Wilson boulevard and Taylor avenue; the northern area by North Clarendon avenue, Maryland avenue, the Washington Old Dominion Railroad and Arlington-Fairfax Railroad tracks, and the southern section by Maryland avenue, South Clarendon avenue, the Arlington-Fairfax Railroad tracks and Langhorne place.

Mrs. H. G. Gibson has been appointed district chairman for the eastern division.

Other district chairmen appointed are Mrs. Ida Frank, Veitch Summit; Mrs. Cora M. Kiplinger, Lee Heights, and Miss Constance A. Backus, Glencarlyn.

Approximately $3,800 has been reported. The six leading communities are: Arlington and Alcova Heights, $550; Thrifton Village, $317.50; Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands, $279.25; Ashton Heights, $259.25; Cherrydale, $253.57, and Lyon Park, $233.

Having the united support of members of the county board, the proposal for the appointment of a new public utility commission as advocated recently by a board member, John C. Gall, indications are that the plan will be carried into effect at the meeting of the board tomorrow.

While the motive behind the proposal is to get behind the State Corporation Commission on the question of gas rates in the county, it is learned that there will be efforts looking to a reduction in the electric light rates.

The board is unanimous in its opinion that there is little excuse for a delay of almost two years in obtaining from the State corporation commission a decision looking to a reduction in gas rates.

The case of Cecil R. Whittington, Philip Harner and Harry Meisner, charged with felonious assault as the result of an alleged attack upon the caretaker of an estate near the Army-Navy Country Club Wednesday night, was continued until this morning by Judge B. M. Hedrick. The youths, all of Washington, were released in custody of their attorney, former State Senator Frank L. Ball.

Immediately upon being released, Harner swore out two warrants against Walter Fritz, the caretaker, charging him with assault and battery and impersonating an officer. Fritz will be given a hearing today before Judge Hedrick.

The newly elected officers of Arlington Council, Daughters of America, were installed at a meeting in Clarendon last night.

Those installed were: Charles F. Crump, councillor; Ashby Patterson, vice councillor; Lulu Danton, junior past councillor; May Cock, associate past councillor; Leah Johnson, associate councillor; Pauline Smith, associate vice councillor; Irene Williams, conductor; Boyd Anna McReady, warden; Mabel Miller, inside sentinel; Rodger Orsler, outside sentinel; Mabel Miller, Bee Winslow and Lulu Danton, State representatives, and Ida Kuhn, treasurer.

There will be a special meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington County Chapter American Red Cross tonight at the courthouse. The meeting has been called for 8 o'clock.

Man to Face Jury In Dance Shooting

Farmer, 26, Is Accused of Slaying Near Upper Marlboro.

Benjamin Jackson, 26-year-old farmer, was held for grand jury action yesterday following a coroner's jury investigation of the fatal shooting of John Colton, 46 years old, at a country dance near Upper Marlboro, Md.

The jury's finding read as follows: "John Colton died from a gunshot wound from a gun in the hand of Benjamin Jackson."

Colton was shot to death and William Chaney, 49 years old, was seriously wounded when Jackson, infuriated by their criticism of his calling of numbers at the dance, is said to have drawn a gun and fired on them.

Tax Rate in Montgomery Likely to Be Cut 30 Cents

Slash Possible if Legislative Programs Are Enacted and Salary Slash Is Effected; $600,000 in County Road Bonds to Be Issued.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Two important announcements were made public last night by Montgomery County Democratic administration leaders. The first, that the county tax next year probably will be reduced 30 cents, and the second, proposed issuance of $600,000 in county road construction bonds so the county road building program can be completed.

Administration leaders said the 25 per cent cut in the tax rate will be possible if proposed legislative programs supported by the State and county administration are enacted into law and if the county salary cuts proposed by the county commissioners are effected. The reduction would not eliminate or reduce any of the activities of the county.

Part of the revenue estimated for the decrease will be from a new State tax expected to be imposed in the form of either a luxury sales tax or a general sales tax. It is proposed that the tax rate be lowered to $1.10 for 1933, and that when definite figures on the receipts can be estimated that it be lowered to 90 cents or $1 in the next year. The tax rate decrease would not be accompanied by an increase in the assessments.

The reduction is expected to be effected through the following items of additional revenue or savings in cash operating expenditures: Ten per cent cut in salaries of county officials and employes, $18,095.99; 10 per cent reduction in salaries of Board of Education employes, including teachers, $46,000; new revenue expected from proposed State luxury tax or general sales tax, $120,000; estimated post road appropriation to be made available in an equal number of dollars to pay county road bond interest, $49,871; extension of county bonds maturing next year in same amount that county bonds were paid off through this year's levy, $86,000; estimated new tax revenue from $9,000,000 increased assessment on suburban land and from $1,000,000 new building construction in suburbs already assessed since July 1, 1932. (All new building in Montgomery County before June 30, 1933, will increase this figure). A $10,000,000 increase in the county taxable basis at a county tax rate of $1.10 will produce $110,000. The total expected new revenue is $429,966.99.

It is estimated that $50,000 will be required for interest on school and road bond issues proposed by the administration this year, and approximately $20,000 will be required for new school teachers.

The $120,000 estimated as representing the revenue from the State luxury or general sales tax is the minimum expected. Each additional $10,000 received from the State would reduce the tax rate 1-cent further.

The $600,000 bond issue is to be floated to enable the county administration to complete the road-building program first announced and approved in 1927 and 1929 and approved by various civic groups and the county administration in 1931. The county delegation to the General Assembly has agreed to support the issue.

The proposal to shift proceeds of the State lateral road gasoline tax and the Federal post road construction money from road construction to road maintenance and to pay interest on county road bonds is the main reason that an additional county road bond issue is required to complete the county-wide program. Had the State money continued available for road construction for the next two years as was expected at the time estimates on construction cost were made, the proceeds of the 1931 road issue, with the usual annual State roads construction appropriation, would have completed the entire program without additional bond issues.

The proposal to make the proceeds of the one and one-half cent lateral gasoline tax and the Federal post road money available to the counties of the State for maintenance of county roads and municipal streets and for debt service on county road bonds, would leave Montgomery County without an estimated revenue of $232,000 heretofore received each year from State sources. In addition to the loss of State revenue, the commissioners found it necessary to change an overdraft in the county bridge fund of $71,000 from 1931 to the road bond issue and the issue sold at a discount of $25,000. Consequently, the county lacks $560,000 from the amount originally estimated as available.

Low cost of road construction in the last two seasons has cared for an unexpected charge of $275,640.72 made by the State Roads Commission in 1931 for unbilled construction work done prior to December, 1928, and also for several expenditures for road machinery and other road construction purposes.

The following road links would remain unbuilt without the proposed $600,000 road bond issue: General county, Darnestown toward Germantown, $25,000; Boyds toward Germantown, $20,000; Gaithersburg to Cloppers, $20,000; Browingsville, Lewisdale, Clarksville road, $50,000; Viers Mill road from Wheaton to Rockville, $60,000, a total of $175,000 general county. Western suburban district, filling in between car tracks on Connecticut avenue, $50,000; widening Wisconsin avenue (estimated $151,000, State to pay half), $75,500; extending Massachusetts avenue to River road and Glen Echo and Cabin John, $150,000, making a total of $275,000 for western suburban. Eastern suburban district, East and west highway through Takoma Park toward Hyattsville via Philadelphia avenue, $100,000; Maryland approaches to Fern street underpass in North Takoma, $20,000; right of way for Sixteenth street through Woodside Park, $30,000; paving along Sligo Creek from North Woodside toward Takoma via Dale drive, $30,000; Jones Mill road to Capitol View, $25,000; final mile on Avenel to White Oak (New Hampshire avenue route to Baltimore), $20,000; making a total of $225,000 for eastern suburban. The total cost of the program would be $675,500, but is reduced by an unexpended balance in general road construction bond issue of 1932 of $85,000, leaving an estimated deficit of $590,500 necessary to be covered by the bond issue in order that the program can be finished.

Maryland Moves to Halt 'Under Cover' Dry Arrests

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—An effort to further nullify the enforcement of prohibition in Maryland was launched today in the House of Delegates, with the introduction of a resolution asking Maryland's delegation in Congress to secure the names and duties of Federal enforcement officers in the State.

The data is asked "in order that the publication of such names may put an end to this nefarious and odious practice" of using prohibition appropriations to secure evidence. After pointing out that Congress has forbidden the officers to use these appropriations for "unlawful means of obtaining evidence," the resolution says:

"Whereas, there is reason to believe that the employes of the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau have been practicing this method in the city of Baltimore and throughout the State; Therefore,

"Be it resolved by the House of Delegates that the senators and representatives of the State of Maryland in the Congress of the United States, be, and they are hereby requested to obtain the names and duties of all employes of the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau operating in this State, in order that the publication of such names may put an end to this nefarious and odious practice."

The resolution was introduced by Phillip J. Wallace, of Baltimore City. It is aimed especially at the undercover men who make "buys" for the dry agents, as the names of the agents themselves often appear in court proceedings. The undercover men, however, are usually protected from any such public appearance.

VOCATION GUIDANCE IMPORTANCE TOLD

Alexandria Kiwanis Club Hears Principles of This Activity.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

William N. Freeman, member of the Kiwanis International committee on vocational guidance, at the meeting yesterday of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club, in the George Mason Hotel, outlined the principles of this activity and stressed its importance to the community at large. He expressed his conviction that the selection of a life work should be predicated upon the individual's qualifications and personal interest. The schools, he said, are the proper mediums for developing vocational guidance, and clubs, civic organizations and industry should cooperate by platform discussion of the requisites in the various trades and professions.

Frank Steele, another of the guests, gave a short resume of the progress being made on the Ki-Ro Revue, which is to be given next week jointly by the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, and promised that the entertainment would be long remembered.

The program chairman for yesterday's meeting was Robert M. Colvin. Irvin Diener, president of the cub, presided.

The Columbia Engine Co. No. 4 of the Alexandria Fire Department will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock, when the date for the sixty-second birthday celebration of the company will be set. Norman Roberts, president of the company, stated yesterday that since the date of the company's birthday falls this year on a regular meeting night, the date for the banquet celebration may be changed from March 9. Committees to arrange for the celebration will be appointed tonight, it is understood.

Judge Thomas Edward O'Donnell, of Kansas City, Mo., who is on a speaking tour throughout the country in behalf of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will address Alva Aerie, No. 871, of Alexandria, at the headquarters of the Eagles, 413 King street, Saturday night. Members and their friends have been invited to attend.

Sidney Well, past commander, has been appointed chairman of the banquet committee of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, for its annual Army Day banquet, April 6, in the George Mason Hotel. Other members of the committee are Howard L. Arnold, Jones Cox, George F. Downham, F. Clinton Knight, G. Raymond King, Charles King and Herbert Blunt. There will be several distinguished speakers on the program, and novel entertainment features will be presented.

The regular monthly meeting of the post will be held tonight in Gadsby's Tavern, when a special entertainment program will be presented, featuring Miss Ethel Gary and several musical numbers.

Mary Frances Headrick, 4 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Headrick, of 61 East Maple street, Alexandria, is in the Alexandria Hospital suffering from serious burns about the body, sustained while playing with matches yesterday. Hospital authorities last night reported that her condition is critical.

Daniel Jackson, colored, of 314 North Lee street, arraigned in the Alexandria police court yesterday on a charge of murdering William Pollard, colored, waived a preliminary hearing and was held for the grand jury.

City Coroner W. E. Beattie conducted an inquest after the death of Pollard, and rendered a verdict to the effect that the latter came to his death from a fractured skull by being struck on the head with a table leg in the hands of Daniel Jackson.

W. Harmon Reed reported to the Alexandria police yesterday that his home, 516 North Washington street, had been entered Wednesday night in the absence of the family, and jewelry valued at $100 stolen. Entrance was gained by breaking the glass in a rear window and then unlocking the window.

The efficiency of the police radio was again demonstrated yesterday when, 12 minutes after a "lookout" had been broadcast from Washington for Will Ellis, colored, wanted for felonious assault, the man was arrested near Four Mile Run, in Alexandria. The arrest was made by Policeman McClary and Boley, and Ellis was later turned over to the Washington police.

Joseph C. Dodd, of 224 South Washington street, Alexandria, has just been awarded the Order of the Purple Heart, for distinguished service during the World War. Dodd was wounded July 28, 1918, while serving with Company I, 110th Infantry.

200 Find Week's Work at Culpeper

$1.25 Per Day Is Scale Paid From R. F. C. Relief Fund.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 2.—A week's work for 201 men in Culpeper County has already been provided through the relief fund made available in Virginia by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and 116 men will be similarly employed next week, the Culpeper emergency relief committee announces.

The work, which is allotted through John M. Apperson, local executive secretary, embraces a pay rate of $1.25 per day for a 10-hour day. Salaries paid to date total $1,507.50. To date the Culpeper committee has approved 265 applications for the relief employment out of a total of 325 applications.

The first funds made available for Culpeper have been almost exhausted and an application for additional money to carry on here is now being prepared, Mr. Apperson said.

Two Baltimore Deaths Held Suicidal Compact

Baltimore, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Coroner James M. Fenton today returned a verdict of "suicidal compact" in the deaths of Cecelia Henry and William L. Hopkins, who were found shot to death in Hopkins' apartment yesterday.

"Just a love-sick couple tired of life," was the point of view taken by Capt. Charles H. Mintiens in announcing that the police investigation was at an end.

MULTIPLE-WARRANT BILL IS INTRODUCED

Maryland Senate Debates Measure to Guard Counties in Bank Closings.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—The Prince Georges County multiple-warrants bill was introduced in the House today as a Senate bill to protect Montgomery County's fund in case of bank failure was being discussed.

After the close of today's session the Prince Georges delegates scattered to their homes to rest over the week-end for a series of public hearings next week on county bills. The hearing on the bill to fix the amount incorporated towns will get for street work under the new gas-tax law will be held Monday night at 9 o'clock, while the hearing on proposed police bills will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Both these will be held at the State House here, probably in the Senate finance committee room.

The Montgomery bill will make county deposits in banks preferred over all other funds except trust accounts in case of a bank failure. In the failure of the Coblentz banks recently the county had deposits in the Poolesville branch which the bank was unable to repay. There was no loss to the county, however, as the deposits were covered by a bond. The bill, if constitutional, would do away with the need for such bond protection.

Limits Warrant Fees.

The warrants bill provides that where more than one warrant is issued against one man, on charges arising out of one incident, constables and magistrates shall receive only one fee. This will cause a distinct reduction in the amounts now paid to constables and magistrates.

Delegate Kent R. Mullikin introduced his bill authorizing the Potomac River Bridge today. It provides that it shall cross the river between Ludlows Ferry, Md., and Colonial Beach, Va., and that no other bridge shall ever be built within 15 miles of it. The bridge shall not be taxed for 15 years, but after that shall be taxed 2½ percent on profits up to $500,000. Profits up to $1,000,000 shall be taxed 3½ per cent, and 5½ per cent over this. One-half cent of the tax shall go to the State, while the rest will go into the Charles County treasury.

Work on the bridge must start within two years of passage of the bill, and must be finished within five years. The bill also provides that after 20 years the State may buy the bridge at cost, after two years' notice is given the bridge company. The structure will be built by a private company.

Senators Protest Terms.

The Senate session today was marked by two protests against use of the words "insurgent" or "recalcitrant" in referring to senators who urge deep cuts in the budget. Senator David G. McIntosh opened the discussion by rising to a point of personal privilege and objecting to these terms, which had been applied in newspaper stories. He was seconded by Senator Joseph Allan Coad, of St. Marys County, who pointed out that the governor was favorable to further cuts, and that the economy bloc could not, therefore, be called insurgents.

The House session was enlivened by the first real debate of the term, between members of the Harford County delegation. A dispute on an economy measure, which apparently originated in a delegation hearing, was brought to the floor and aired for several minutes. The House heartily applauded Delegate Mary E. W. Risteau, one of the three women in the House, but voted down her proposed amendment to the Harford County bill.

Governor Ponders Extradition of Leas

Tennessee Executive Will Probably Announce His Decision Monday.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Gov. Hill McAlister late today took under advisement the request of North Carolina for the extradition of Col. Luke Lea and Luke Lea, jr., after an all-day hearing, and announced he would not reach a decision until probably Monday.

The hearing was marked by a statement by Henry E. Colton, of the Lea counsel, that in his opinion the Leas would never have been convicted of bank violations had it not been for the "political prominence of the men here."

This was heatedly denied by Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles, of Asheville, N. C., and A. A. F. Seawell, assistant attorney general of North Carolina.

West Virginia Robber Victim Tries Suicide

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 2.—Miss Irene Kunts, 26, the cashier who was held up by a lone bandit Monday at the Monogahela West Public Service Co.'s office at Grafton, tried to commit suicide today at her home there by taking poison. Late today her condition was reported serious.

She had been at times hysterical since the bandit frightened her into a faint by pointing a revolver at her, taking $800 in a packet from a desk and stripped two diamond rings and a wrist watch from the unconscious girl's hands. Police are still searching for the bandit, following a clew into Ohio.

Stocks Slacken Declines; Former Loss Cut in Half

New Lows Listed as Sales Climb in Volume to 1,255,270 Shares.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The decline in stocks slackened today, but incentive for a recovery was lacking and prices again closed lower. The average loss was about half that of Wednesday, while turnover of 1,255,270 shares was somewhat larger.

Shares directly affected by recent dividend changes were steadier, although issues whose future payments are being questioned continued soft. Rails slipped a little, perhaps because last week's loadings showed a contraction, and carrier bonds weakened. Utilities were subject to selling; several industrials experienced a contraction of a point or two in quoted values. United States Government loans were firm.

United States Steel preferred and Standard Oil of New Jersey reached at least temporary resistance levels. But American Telephone skidded under par for the first time since the first week of November, touching 99¾. It closed at 100¾, off a point. Dupont added a couple of points to yesterday's drop and General Motors eased a major fraction, while Chrysler, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, National Biscuit, Case and Westinghouse were off about 1 to 1½ net.

Tobaccos were fairly steady, despite recurring rumors of forthcoming cigarette price reductions. Rubber stocks had a tire price cut to contend with. Gold-mining issues, stimulated by the speculative boom for those shares in some foreign markets, jumped briskly, Homestake soaring 6 points. Such lower priced issues as Alaska Juneau, Dome and McIntyre Porcupine advanced a point or so. United Aircraft descended a couple of points on news of Senate disapproval of an airmail subsidy. Steel stocks were quiet.

The market had two sinking spells, one soon after the opening, the second in the last hour. Between times, recuperative power was rather feeble and fractional recoveries were attended by quieter trading. Price averages are now only a point or two above levels at which support appeared on the fall and early winter decline, so that trends over the next few days will be important. Wall street assumes that the short interest has been considerably augmented of late.

Dividend uncertainties now center largely around the General Motors meeting next Monday and the American Telephone session on the 15th. Some quarters are disposed to look for a "regular" by the automobile company. Opinion on the telephone board's decision is divided; those who think the usual payment will be made, despite continued declines in business and earnings, point out that the corporation has cut expenses sharply, that its expenditure on plant last year was probably small and that its cash resources are large; also Bell System operating units have generally maintained their dividend payments to the parent company, though many of them have drawn on surplus to do so.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—The activity in gold mining shares on the stock exchange was overshadowed by other sections on strong buying which caused improvement in prices. Bursts of profiteering, however, reduced gains somewhat and caused irregularity. Gilt-edged securities benefited by the influx of local and foreign investment money. German bonds were weak and transatlantic issues easy. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Although trading on the bourse was hesitant, prices showed a moderately firm tendency. The firmness in rentes supported other French issues and the closing was irregular.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was hesitant and the market closed slightly weaker.

U. S. BONDS STEADY IN LOSING MARKET

Downward Price Movement Slows Up; Sales Cut to $10,402,000.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The grcund hog, if he looked in on the bond market today, found numerous shadows cast by sagging securities of all categories.

Although the downward price movement was not so pronounced in either the utilities or the industrials, the majority of rail loans were under pressure and German obligations again suffered declines ranging from 1 to 8¼ points. United States Government issues, although quiet, were steady to firm.

Trading volume drifted lower along with quotations. Sales totaled only $10,402,000, against $11,579,000 yesterday, but the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was off half a point.

Aside from reports that freight carloadings for the week ended January 28 would show a subsantial decrease, dealers were unable to advance any specific reason for the weakness of the carriers. The principal losers of a point or more included issues of most of the semispeculative rail groups.

Canadian National Railway loans rallied, and the new Cincinnati Union Terminal 5s were heavily traded on a "when issued" basis for a small gain. Cleveland Union Terminal 5s also gained 1½ points, while bonds of Hudson & Manhattan were firm.

The steadier utilities and industrials included New York traction issues and bonds of Keith Corporation, Loew's, Pathe Exchange, Pillsbury Flour, Paramount Broadway, Paramount-Famous-Lasky and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Losses of 1 to more than 2 points, however, were recorded by loans of a number of other leaders.

In the foreign section, German Government 5½s were heavily traded for a loss of a point, the 7s were down 3⅜, and larger declines were noted in State, municipal and corporate bonds as political clouds still hovered over the Reich. The Chileans came back around a point on reports that a consolidation of the country's foreign debt was being discussed. Issues of Poland, Australia, Argentina and Denmark were heavy. The French, British and Italians steadied.

Soundness of Mortgages Urged by Insurance Head

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Frederick H. Ecker, president of the $3,769,000,000 Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., today took time from his administrative duties to grant an interview on the problems of mortgage creditors and debtors.

"It is a difficult and complex question," he said. "I am reluctant to talk about it, because there is so much possibility of misunderstanding or of misinterpretation. In fact, I feel that the prominence given to insurance company practices which will call for leniency in handling farm mortgages may possibly be misunderstood.

"This action does not imply that creditors are letting down the bars, or that borrowers are under less moral obligation than before to pay off their debts. But it does mean that the utmost in cooperation is sought between creditors and debtors.

"The big thing—and there is danger of overlooking it—is that the best interests of the home owner, be it in urban property or farm property, rests on the necessity that mortgage loans of that character should continue in the future to be looked upon as in the past, as loans of sound character.

"In its endeavor to help the borrower, the law should not go too far to the extreme, thus making it difficult for a home owner to get credit in a perfectly legitimate way. It should not strike down the present restrictions which furnish ordinary safeguards for creditors. To do so would act to dry up the source of credit supply."

Steel Production Continues Gains

Yield Up to 19 Per Cent Capacity; Chicago Area Aids.

New York, Feb. 2.—Further gains in steel ingot production were reported by Iron Age today. The review said activity had risen to 19 per cent of capacity against 17 per cent last week, "despite interruptions in steel mill schedules in some districts occasioned by the shutdown of plants of the Ford Motor Co. and suppliers of its automobile bodies."

The gain, it said, was chiefly the result of a sharp upturn in the Chicago district, where production is at 18 per cent against 14 per cent a week ago, and a correspondingly good increase in the Ohio and Pennsylvania Valleys. There has also been some improvement in the Birmingham district, though operations have slackened at Cleveland and Detroit, due to the Ford suspension and a smaller volume of new business from other automobile makers. The Pittsburgh area has no more than held its own.

OILS FIRM AS CURB CLOSES UNSETTLED

Utilities Continue Weak as Sales Volume Mounts to 180,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The curb market was unsettled today by persistent weakness of the public utility shares.

The turnover swelled to 180,000 shares, the largest in three weeks, and 50,000 above yesterday's turnover. Industrials and specialties also lost ground, although oils held up fairly well, and some of the mining stocks were firm.

The recent selling of the utilities has been ascribed to a number of factors, including rather disappointing power consumption reports, and the prospect of stricter regulation, as well as probable Government operation of Muscle Shoals. Some utility executives expressed concern over President-elect Roosevelt's reclamation proposal, including extensive public development of water power. Nevertheless, it was recalled that he has asserted that investors in prudently managed companies must be protected.

Losses of about 2 to 3 points appeared in Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Northern States A, in comparatively light dealings. Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric lost a point, although former recovered partially. The Bond & Share preferred issues were heavy, and National Power & Light preferred reacted 4. Niagara Hudson sagged fractionally.

In the mining group, Lake Shore Mines rose more than a point to a new high for 1932-33, and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves were up fractionally. In industrials, Aluminum Co. lost a couple of points and Axton Fisher sagged 2½, possibly reflecting recurrent rumors of another cigarette price cut by the "Big Four" in the industry. Standard Oil of Indiana, Gulf and Humble yielded fractions. Transcontinental Air fell more than a point, reflecting the Senate's voting down the air mail subsidy.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Cotton cloths sold slowly today as mills refused to accept low bids for good quantities. Rayons were in fair demand. Fancy rayons and cottons sold in larger amounts. Woolens were active. Burlap was steady.

WHEAT TONE STEADY IN SPITE OF DECLINE

Prices Close Unchanged to ¼ Cent Off; Corn and Oats Lower.

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Indications that overseas buying of Canadian wheat the last 48 hours had totaled more than 3,000,000 bushels gave unusual steadiness to grain values today.

Wheat, however, eased off a little at the last, owing to declines shown by various stocks in New York. Friends of higher prices for wheat paid attention to remarkable barometric conditions in Alaska pointing to likelihood of a severe cold wave overspreading the United States by Sunday.

Wheat closed easy, unchanged to ¼ off, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅛ to ¼ down; oats, showing ⅛ to ¼ decline, and provisions unchanged.

Cold Wave Effects.

Possibilities that Arctic temperatures would catch domestic winter wheat unprotected by a snow blanket did much to help uphold the wheat market. Drought conditions persisted in the Southwest, and were generally believed to have undermined the vigor of plant resistance to further hardships such as sudden cold. Some extension of the draught complaint area was noted today, especially in north central Kansas.

The extreme range in today's wheat price fluctuations was less than ½ cent a bushel. One element of strength was relative firmness of the Liverpool market, with emphasis given there to lessen selling pressure from Australia. Advices were also at hand that wheat acreage seeded 1933 crop was smaller than a year ago, that European continental port stocks of wheat had decreased, and that the Argentine wheat carryover into this year was smaller by 6,210,000 bushels.

Corn paralleled the action of wheat. Oats sold at a new low price record for the season. Some planting of oats was reported as having been done in Kansas.

Provisions were sustained by reports showing stocks on hand to be comparatively small.

BUYING NEAR CLOSE CUTS COTTON LOSS

Market Is Unchanged to 2 Points Lower; May Sells at 5.91.

New York, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Fluctuations in cotton were narrow today and the market displayed a steadier undertone. Trade buying and covering near the close canceled the larger part of a moderate decline.

May contracts, after selling off to 5.88, closed at 5.91, with the general market closing steady, net unchanged to 2 points lower, except January, which was 1 point higher.

The opening was unchanged to 3 points lower, and while initial offerings were fairly well absorbed by the trade, prices eased slightly during the early trading under further liquidation and Southern selling. Houses with continental and Japanese connections were also reported sellers. Demand from the trade increased on the decline to 5.75 for March and 6.00 for July. Rallies to about yesterday's finals met another spurt of selling, prompted by the action of the stock market, but there seemed to be trade "resting" orders in the market on the basis of 6 cents for July, which formed a resistance point. July sold up to 6.04, closing at that figure, and active months generally closed at or within a point of the best prices for the day.

Selling through houses with continental and Far Eastern connections was less active today. Southern selling was also light. Observers thought they saw indications of some commission house buying on the declines.

Liverpool cables reported continental and Bombay selling and said the cotton goods market in Manchester was quiet with a continued decline in raw cotton disturbing confidence in cloth prices. Exports today, 56,488, making 5,107,695 so far this season. Port receipts, 15,154. United States port stocks, 4,752,319.

9 Major Oil Concerns Cleared of Conspiracy

Cincinnati, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—A Federal court today held there was no evidence that nine major oil companies had entered into a conspiracy to drive independents out of this portion of Ohio.

The companies are the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, the Cities Service Co., the Pure Oil Co., Refiners, Inc., the Shell Petroleum Corporation, the Fleetwing Corporation, the Texas Co., the Sinclair Refining Co. and the Gulf Refining Co. Independent dealers operating in this section charged the large companies attempted to fix retail gasoline prices so low that they would be driven out of business.

This addition to the directorate was announced yesterday following the annual meeting of stockholders of the association.

All other officers and directors of the association were reelected and are the following: Maurice Otterback, president; Clarence F. Donohoe, vice president; William N. Payne, jr., secretary; George R. Repetti, treasurer; Walter H. Marlow, attorney. The directors are Charles A. Carry, Clarence F. Donohoe, William H. Harrison, James J. Hayes, Walter H. Marlow, Maurice Otterback, George R. Repetti and John M. Riordon.

President Otterback of the association, who is also president of the Anacostia Bank, states that the association's resources at the close of business January 31, 1933, end of its fiscal year, were $1,498,508.98.

The latest annual meeting of the stockholders was the forty-fourth, the association being organized in 1889 under Government supervision. Mr. Otterback was elected to the presidency of the association in 1929, succeeding the late Alexander McKenzie. At that time Mr. Donohoe succeeded Mr. Otterback as vice president and John M. Riordon, executive vice president, Bank of Commerce and Savings, who had been an auditor of the association for 20 years, was added to the board, succeeding Mr. McKenzie.

The Philadelphia Stock Exchange election committee yesterday announced that Frank L. Newburger, partner of the firm of Newburger, Loeb & Co., has been renominated for president. Members of the governing committee, all of whom have been nominated for reelection, are Frank E. Baker, William Lilley, James P. Magill, Morris L. Parrish, Frederick P. Ristine, Edgar Scott and Henry D. Wieand. The election will be held March 6.

$59,850 Lent for Docks at Annapolis; Virginia Town Gets $27,500.

(Associated Press.)

Self-liquidating loans totaling over $157,000, authorized by the Reconstruction Corporation yesterday, include:

To the Chance Marine Construction Co., of Annapolis, Md., $59,850, for docks and a breakwater in Annapolis Harbor.

Reynolds irrigation district, Melba, Idaho, $60,000, for an additional supply of water, and Brookneal, Va., $27,500, for constructing a new water system.

The Chance Marine Construction Co., Annapolis, will sell to the corporation $63,000 of its 6 per cent bonds secured by a first mortgage on the boat building and repair plant of the company and a second mortgage on the docks and breakwater. The loan is to be repaid in annual installments up to and including 1942.

The company builds and repairs boats. It began construction of the docks and breakwater to supply berthing facilities in 1930, but had been unable to obtain sufficient funds to complete them. When finished the project will consist of a group of docks providing berths for 155 boats ranging in size from outboard motors to 95-foot vessels. The breakwater is to protect the docks.

Approximately $30,000 worth of materials will be required and about $30,000 will be expended in labor over a period of four months. The corporation in this instance did not supply an estimate of the number of men to be employed.

The corporation will purchase at par and accrued interest $17,500 of 6 per cent general obligation bonds of Brookneal, Va. These bonds mature in 1950.

The money will be used to construct an entirely new water supply and distribution system.

This system will consist of a deep well with a pump and pump house, an elevated steel storage tank, cast iron distribution system, fire hydrants and a system of galvanized steel pipe for domestic service in outlying portions of the town.

It is estimated that 50 men will be employed for four months on the basis of a 30-hour work week.

Poison Fatal to 12 Prize Dachshunds

Police Seek Destroyers of Dogs Valued at $6,500.

North Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Three of fifteen prize dachshunds poisoned at the Dachshund Kennels here were recovering today at a veterinary hospital, while county police sought the destroyers of the dogs valued at $6,500.

Twelve of the dogs, the largest and strongest, apparently died because they were able to crowd the weakest three away from the poisoned meat.

Inspector Walter Baker of the Bergen County police said he expected to make an arrest, but he would not say he had discovered a motive for the crime.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

BACK in the old days when the B. F. Keith Theater was new, and quite the smart place to be on Monday afternoons when the new bills opened, a solitary blonde habitually occupied a stage box and attracted almost as much admiring attention as the show on the stage. She was invariably gowned to the last gasp of fashion and, to all appearances, oblivious to the flutter her presence always occasioned, although this may have been a little bit of the actress showing through.

PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE.

Along about 1918, according to statistical information that I deem not especially reliable, this radiant young person took to the footlights and became a coryphee—or maybe it was just plain chorine—in a Ziegfeld production. Legend has it that Marion Davies dressed in the same room with her and that others of her contemporaries in the chorus included Lilyan Tashman, the present Mrs. Eddie Lowe, and Julianne Johnston, later a figure of some eminence in pictures.

Since that time, Peggy Hopkins Joyce—for it is none other than she who is the subject of this essay—has become principally noted, of course, as an expert collector of large diamonds and wealthy husbands. Or perhaps it is the other way 'round.

At any rate, this orchidaceous creature managed to marry four husbands in five years, by her own confession, and now from Hollywood, where she is to appear in a film, lets it be known that she has been single for seven years and this idea of solitary blessedness is beginning to bore her a bit. One gathers that the theory, at least, of matrimony still is not obnoxious to Madam Joyce.

"I've been single for seven years now," she says. "That's a long time for one who likes companionship. Friends and beaux are all right, but they're not always around the house when you want them. But I suppose if they were under your feet all the time you'd get tired of them. And so goes life. What you have, you don't want, and——"

Well, lady, you should know!

However, these seven years have been fairly well occupied by commuting to and from Europe every morning and evening, appearing in an occasional play and writing a couple of books, both, presumably, autobiographical. "Men, Marriage and Me" and "Transatlantic Wife."

Multiple-Madam Joyce's forthcoming picture is to be called "International House." If it knocks them stiff at the box-office, and the movies like her, and vice versa, it is conceivable that she might be induced to linger on in Hollywood and do another one.

That is, of course, unless some other multimillionaire should back a coal cart full of diamonds up to her door, or all those orange blossoms should put ideas into her head, or something!

Speaking of California, a long letter from Corbin Sheild, former local theater executive now on the Coast in a similar capacity with the Redwood Theaters, Inc., with headquarters in the Warfield Theater Building, San Francisco, serves as further evidence that, after even a brief residence here, Washington, like printers' ink, grease paint and sawdust, gets into the blood.

Having been delayed for several hours en route West by running into 6 feet of snow at Reno, Nev., having been delegated to supervise a brace of playhouses in Redwood County, Calif., the farthest West point on the Pacific Coast, and encountering a wholly new country and civilization, Mr. Sheild seems firm in his belief that "Hollywood is not as hot as Washington!"

"You can have this country, if you prefer it," says he, "but if you hear of an opening in the East, just bear this old boy in mind and let me know about it."

Maybe I oversold the coast to him that afternoon when he stopped by here on his way to the train!

It is to be gleaned from the extensive broadsides being let go by the Arts Club anent their Bal Boheme, at the Willard next Monday night, that a brilliant pageant and cabaret program with many unique features will supply entertainment over and above the long hours of general dancing that will mark the evening.

By united action of the standing committee when they first sat down a day or two ago, the cabaret performance and the serving of supper will occur in the small ballroom, instead of the dining room downstairs, for the greater convenience and more complete comfort of those attending this gala annual affair.

Manager William Fisher of Loew's Columbia announces with some emphasis that on Sunday, February 5, there will be an extra supper performance of "Rasputin and the Empress," enacted by the three Barrymores, on the screen of his magic lantern hall, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.

For this supper-show presentation of the spectacular story of the fall of the house of Romanoff, the matinee scale of prices will prevail, to wit, 50 cents, 75 cents and $1, American money.

Personal aside to Mrs. F. A. S., 3752 Jocelyn street: How fortunate that your note of February 1 did not arrive a few hours earlier, else yesterday's "next to closing" in all probability would have been blamed on you!

In an effort to ascertain the probable reaction of Southern theatergoers to his production of "The Green Pastures," when it undertakes an extensive tour of the Southern States in September, Roland Stebbins, producer of the Marc Connelly play, has extended invitations to newspapermen on 26 Southern journals to visit Washington at his expense and witness the work during its engagement at the National Theater, commencing Monday, February 13.

When, and if, "The Green Pastures" invades the South, it will mark the first time, so far as is known, that an all-colored entertainment, designed strictly for white patronage, has ventured below the Mason-Dixon line.

Among the editors who have thus far accepted Mr. Stebbins' invitation, and who will undertake to advise him regarding the feasibility of a Southern tour, are Wade H. Harris, editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer; George Carmack, city editor of the Memphis (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar, and W. T. Christian, city editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader.

When Frank Fay's musical revue, "Tattle Tales," goes on the road, an added attraction will be Frank's wife, Barbara Stanwyck, star of "Ladies They Talk About," opening today at the Earle. The show has been playing for a month in Hollywood to audiences that are confidentially reported from the West Coast to be none too large.

Frank and Barbara are said to have put a few thousand into the piece and they'd like to get it back, if you don't mind, times being what they are.

A breezy note from Master Jimmie Lake, the P. T. Barnum of Ninth street, and the Beau Brummel of the sports arenas, indicates that everything is "in the pink" at the Gayety, despite burlesque's low estate in other cities. In fact, one surmises that Jimmie is cleaning up!

If yesterday was winter, six weeks more of it wouldn't be so hard to take!

Bequests Are Left Two in Washington

Will of Charles Barrington, Valve Magnate, Filed in Connecticut.

Special to The Washington Post.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 2.—The will of Charles W. Barrington, vice president of the Jenkins Valve Co., and noted industrialist of this city, long associated with Richard T. Crane, of valve fame, and George Westinghouse, the air brake pioneer, was filed here today and disposes of a $300,000 estate.

To Margaret Aurelia Brown, a sister, of Washington, D. C., there is a outright bequest of $10,000.

For John Stark Barrington, of Washington, D. C., the testator sets up a $20,000 trust fund in a bank here, income from which goes to the Washington man for life. Barrington, Addison, Hayes and Carolyn Brown, all children of Margaret Aurelia Brown, receive substantial bequests from the residue.

Ready readers await the offers in Post Classified Ads, the first thing in the morning.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

EASTERN SEEKS AT LEAST TIE FOR TITLE TODAY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

MR. CLARK GRIFFITH, who has been signing ball players to contracts for the best part of 30 years, apparently is meeting a bit of resistance in the case of Prof. Monte Weaver, or the U. S. Postal Service, which has not yet deposited Weaver's 1933 contract at Griffith Stadium, has hit a new low.

Prof. Weaver, of course, received his contract almost a month ago along with those of the other Washington players; but whereas 17 have found the time and the inclination to sign up, Weaver's signed contract is among the missing; and the wonder is great inasmuch as Weaver alone was singled out by Griffith as the man who was to receive a raise in salary.

But Griffith's pronouncement apparently was not accompanied by the increased figures that Weaver expected. The honor of being the only Nat to receive a salary boost seemingly was not sufficient cause for Weaver to sign and return his contract, and the deduction is that the young right-hander is demanding more than the flattery of Griffith.

Weaver Educationally Fit To Argue.

If these are holdout tactics on the part of Weaver, they belie the story of last year which had it that Weaver went to work for Washington for a very nominal sum in order to take up a six-months' residence in close proximity to the Congressional Library where that fountain of knowledge would appease his thirst for the same.

It is doubtful if Griffith, in all his contract dealings, has faced as worthy an opponent as Weaver, whose ken for higher mathematics landed him a regular job in the line-up of the University of Virginia faculty. Weaver won his bachelor's degree in mathematics several years ago and is well able to recognize any discrepancies in the contract that Griffith offered.

Weaver has several talking points in his salary discussion with Griffith, chief of which is the record of 22 victories against 10 defeats that he compiled last season in his first year in the majors. If the figures in his 1933 contract don't suit him, Weaver probably has at his command more formulas to prove his case than Griffith has to refute them.

Brown, Spencer Still Out Of Fold.

I hope I am not borrowing contract troubles for Mr. Griffith, who has always stuck steadfastly to a policy of keeping his salary topics out of the public prints, but the delay in the receipt of Weaver's signed contract is beginning to appear significant.

Mr. Griffith, however, has seemingly ducked a couple of other salary debates, which now involve the Browns and the Indians. Lloyd Brown, who was always one of the first to sign his Washington contract, is kicking over the traces at the offer of the Browns, and yesterday returned his 1933 contract unsigned.

And there is the case of Roy Spencer, in contrast, one of the most regular of the holdouts while in Washington. Spencer two weeks ago expressed his dissatisfaction with the contract offered by the Cleveland Club, to which he was traded by the Nats in exchange for Luke Sewell, and thus far he is still unsigned.

In the days before Judge Landis' administration of baseball's highest office, holdout gestures by traded players had resulted in deals being called off, but Landis has ruled that the responsibility of signing players obtained in trades now belongs to the club which acquired them.

Mexico First U. S. Davis Cup Foe

International Tennis Drawings Made in Paris.

Cuba-Canada Clash in Other N. American Zone Match.

PARIS, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The luck of the draw today decreed the United States will start its annual quest for international tennis supremacy by meeting Mexico in the first round of the North American zone of the Davis Cup competition.

Ambassador Walter E. Edge, of the United States, and Phillipe Roy, Minister from Canada, drew the names of the two countries out of the famous trophy as a record-equaling challenging field of 33 nations was paired in a similar manner for their opening matches in one of the three zones. President Albert Lebrun of France presided over the drawings and was assisted by the diplomats of other competing nations.

Automatically Pair Cuba And Canada.

The drawing of the United States against Mexico automatically paired Cuba and Canada, the only other countries competing in the North American zone.

The zone winner will meet the South American surviving country for the right to match strokes with the champion of the European zone, in which 24 countries have challenged. The ultimate winner will challenge France, cupholder now for six years.

The South American zone draw, made last October, pits Uruguay against the winner of the Chile-Brazil series and Argentina against Peru. Brazil won the zone final last year.

The complete European draw:

Upper half—First round byes, Greece and Roumania, Monaco and Czechoslovakia; first round pairings, Finland-India, Spain-Great Britain, Belgium-Austria, Italy-Jugoslavia.

Lower half—First round pairings, Egypt-Germany, Poland-Holland, Denmark-Ireland and Hungary-Japan. First round byes, Norway and Australia, South Africa and Switzerland.

Canzoneri Held 3-1 Choice Tonight

Townsend Foe in Welter Test at Garden; Go Ten Rounds.

New York, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri is a 3-to-1 favorite to beat Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, tomorrow night in their overweight 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Tony, who previously won and lost the featherweight and junior welterweight crowns, hopes this bout will be a stepping stone toward Jackie Fields' welter title.

It is expected to be the acid test for the champion's welterweight ambitions because Townsend will be the first seasoned 147-pounder he ever met without bringing the opponent down to the lightweight limit. In addition, Tony will weigh more than for any previous bout. The match will show whether extra poundage slows him up.

Heartened by Seaman Watson's upset victory over Fidel La Barba, many long-shot betters are backing Townsend on the chances that Billy the Kid can land his stinging right jolt on Signor Tony's jaw. The experts agree that's the coast battler's one chance of beating the Italian flash.

ROY JOHNSON SIGNS.

Boston, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The signed contract of Roy Johnson, Boston Red Sox outfielder, arrived today from San Francisco. Last season he batted .299 in 94 games for the Red Sox after hitting for .251 in 49 games with Detroit.

1916 Season Saw Debut of Sam Rice and Joe Judge With Nats, Review for Post's Contest Fans Recalls

BURL FIGHTS DOUGAN IN FEATURE

Bantams Battle Next Week; Davis Meets Cosden on Card.

WITH Eddie Burl, Jacksonville, Fla., bantamweight, and Leroy Dougan, popular little importation from Blytheville, Ark., scrapping in the main eight-round bout, Matchmaker Frankie Mann yesterday closed out for four additional six-rounders on next Tuesday's boxing program at Portner's Arena for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Roddy Davis, recent conqueror of Angelo Meolo, of Baltimore, will return to the ring against Bob Cosden, Eastern Shore fighter, in what might be advertised as the semiwindup. Cosden also holds a victory over Meolo.

Jacobs Meets De Beve.

Stumpy Jacobs who has not appeared at Portner's since he lost to Jack Portney last winter, has been matched with Arthur DeBeve, battle-scarred French lightweight. DeBeve won on a foul from K. O. Toney Stetz, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in his last performance.

Doug Swetnam, Eastern High featherweight, draws Buddy Grimes, of Norfolk, while Henry (Popeye) Irving, pride of the Northeast, tackles Joe Brennan, Chris Dundee's middleweight ace from Norfolk.

The 30-round program will be tinged with Norfolk, Va., and Washington talent, three of the participants being from the Seaside City and five from the Nation's Capital.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the Dougan-Burl battle. Burl has the honor of having fought one of the most sensational fights in Portners' history—the battle which he won from Jimmy Mack in October. Later Burl went down to defeat at the hands of Benny Schwartz.

Burl Managed by Hoff.

Burl is now under the management of Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, Philadelphia promoter. Dougan made a meteoric rise to the front ranks after four slashing preliminary bouts. He fought young Harry (Kid) Groves, of Baltimore, to a draw and then thumped for decisions three left-handers in a row—Joie Schwartz, Jack Gentile and Izzy Caplan.

Cochran Cue Victor Over Bozeman, 50-40

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, shot his way through another obstacle in his battle for the world three-cushion billiards championship tonight, defeating young J. N. Bozeman, jr., of Vallejo, Calif., 50 to 40, in 41 innings.

Cochran, who won fame at balkline of the 18.2 variety, and is making his first attempt to take down the angle title, accounted for his seventh triumph in eight matches, while the defeat was Bozeman's third in nine matches and dropped him to third place with his schedule finished.

Sam Forsook Pitcher's Role to Become Success in Outfield, While Joe Hit Only .220 in First Year With Washington.

(Herewith is the sixth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE days of 1916 were halcyon ones indeed. The allies' casualties for the month of July were 73,336. Papers reeked with deeds that were deemed heroic and 15 years later seem only futile. Several million dollars' worth of munitions, awaiting shipment to the allies, were blown up in New York and the streets of Manhattan were littered with the broken glass of skyscrapers. Russia had given up the ghost; editorials could see no war for America; some nut estimated that it would take 16,300 men to lift John D.'s bank roll if it were in $1 bills; a 14-year-old kid named Robert Jones, surprisingly enough, won a club tournament in Atlanta—

AND—

Washington's baseball team signed up two young men. One was from Morocco, Ind., named Edgar Charles Rice, and the other from Brooklyn, named Joseph Ignatius Judge.

Rice Hit as Well as Pitched.

Rice had been pitching some pretty good ball with Petersburg, of the Virginia League, and batting more than .300 to boot. Manager Griffith gave him a trial in the last four games of 1915 and it convinced him that he was a handy kid to have around. Griffith, notoriously bad at remembering first names, decided that Rice's was Sam. It stuck.

Griffith has been having trouble with Chick Gandil on first. Chick didn't have the old college spirit that had been a part of the team of 1912 and besides he didn't pay his room and board rent one year, so Griffith brought young Judge, first baseman for Buffalo, of the International League, to the Capital.

He cost Washington 3,000 bucks and a couple of deadhead rookies, and there were vague misgivings on the part of the stockholders that so much must be paid for a minor leaguer, even one that had hit .340 against International League pitching.

Rice soon enough showed that his hitting was too potent to have him sitting on the bench between pitching assignments, so in early 1916 Griffith began using him now and then in right field in place of Danny Moeller and in July Sammy was the only man on the team hitting in the .300's and he was .362. He slumped from July to the end of the year, but finished with .299.

Joe Judge was not so fortunate. He was felt not quite ready for big league competition and played sort of second fiddle to Williams on first and ended up the year with a .220 batting mark.

Such was the early beginning of two of the greatest players ever to draw on a sliding pad for Washington. Surrounding them were the remnants of the sterling 1912-1913 team and the combination of experience plus the pep of youth boosted Washington up to fourth place at the close of the 1916 season, two notches higher than the preceding year of 1915.

Walter Johnson was once again the workhorse of the pitching staff, twirling in 48 games and winning 25 and losing 20. George McBride's hitting slumped so much that he hit behind John Henry, the catcher, in the batting order. Clyde Milan was still holding forth in center field, still ranked with the greatest baserunners of that era and was a dependable hitter.

Joe Boehling, the pitcher Griffith had secured from the Virginia League the year before, hit a beautiful streak of twirling in midseason and won fourteen straight games before being hurt in the fifteenth. He was hit over the heart by a line drive, had to be carried off the field, and never after that was able to reach that peak of perfection.

Grand Riot Marked Game With Red Sox.

Jim Shaw, Bert Gallia and Doc Ayers were the second-string pitchers.

They had a grand riot at the park here late in July. Stanley Milliken, sports editor of The Post, described the proceedings as a disgraceful scene, and then went ahead and wrote a tremendously interesting play by play-account of what happened and who got hit. It seems there was some bad blood between Boston (which eventually won the pennant and the world series, from Brooklyn) and Washington. There had been a deal of spiking back and forth this day in July, but the riot did not begin to ferment until Carl Mays, who had a reputation for bean balling even at that early date, hit George McBride. McBride retaliated by hurling his bat at Mays, who barely ducked it in time.

The Washington shortstop, having missed his mark, started for Mays. Manager Griffith jumped on the field, amid a rain of pop-bottles thrown by fans (at Mays) and joined McBride on his march to the pitching box. Before Griffith and McBride had traversed half the distance, Catcher Agnew, of the visiting team rushed up from behind, swung a haymaker and landed on Griffith's nose. Cops and spectators ran on the field and Agnew was arrested, carried away from the park in a Black Maria and had to pay the judge $60 to square things.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 15.

Each entrant is limited to one selection.

MARYLAND U. IN COURT FEATURE

Entertains Tarheel Five Tonight; American Five Busy.

NORTH CAROLINA UNIVERSITY'S point-a-minute basket ball team, led by George Brandt, former Central High School player and one of the two three-letter men at the Chapel Hill institution, meets Maryland University's embattled Old Liners tonight at Ritchie Coliseum. The game, one of the several features of an active collegiate week-end, begins at 8:15 o'clock.

It so happens that Maryland tonight will meet, in North Carolina, the runner-up of the last Southern Conference tournament, and tomorrow will play the champions themselves—Georgia.

Victorious in seven out of eight starts this year, N. C. U.'s only setback was administered by Duke, by the score of 36 to 32. Maryland's single hope of victory tonight rests in the fact that on January 12, rising to the tallest heights it has been able to reach this year, it beat Duke in a spectacular upset by a single point, 32 to 31.

Weathers All-Dixie Choice Last Year.

N. C. U.'s seven victims are Guilford, Davidson, V. P. I., N. C. State, V. M. I. and Wake Forest (twice).

Besides Brandt, who is center, the team has Vergil Weathers, All-Southern forward last year, and Capt. Wilmer Hines, nationally known tennis player, who is no less potent on the basket ball court. Morrie Long is the other forward, and Dave McCachren and Stuart Aitken, the guards.

Maryland's customary combination of Snyder and Chase, forwards; Vincent, center, and Yowell and Buscher, guards, is not likely to be changed. The great 1932 Maryland team, led by stars now graduated, beat North Carolina, 26-25.

American University, which was nosed out, 29-27, by Randolph-Macon on January 19, at R. M., when Jack Savedge, star forward for the Virginians, sank a long pot shot in the last 30 seconds of play has a return engagement with the same outfit tonight at A. U. Gymnasium, starting at 8:15 o'clock. Gallaudet will play Upsala, at East Orange.

Georgia Five, Duke Boxers At Maryland.

Tomorrow night Maryland again holds the center of the stage, although the competition is a bit more fierce. The Old Liners meet Georgia in basket ball and Duke in boxing, while George Washington is playing Elon and C. U. is meeting Baltimore U. at their respective gymnasiums. Gallaudet meets up with Long Island U., at Brooklyn.

Lloyd Brown Returns His Unsigned Contract

St. Louis, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Lloyd Brown, southpaw obtained by the St. Louis Browns in a trade with Washington, has returned his 1933 contract unsigned, it was learned today.

Rick Ferrell also has refused to sign the contract offered by the Browns.

8-Inch Cups Ready Here For Trial

Wider Holes Installed at Bannockburn; in Use Today.

By DAVE HERMAN.

THE 8-inch golf epidemic, which broke out from Gene Sarazen's sick bed in a California hospital a few weeks ago, with Sarazen as the instigator, spread to the Nation's Capital yesterday, and found the Bannockburn Golf Club as the first of the courses in the District to become afflicted.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Thomas J. W. Brown, chairman of the golf and greens committee at Bannockburn, decided to install the enlarged holes on the second nine, issuing a statement to the effect that he wanted "to afford the duffers the opportunity of testing the merits of the 8-inch cup which has met with so much heated discussion of late."

Larger Holes Are Installed.

Before the lengthening shadows of the evening had crept over the course, Dr. Brown, assisted by F. T. Lumaden, greenskeeper, and Tony Sylvester, rotund Italian professional, had completed the work of widening the holes.

Members and golfers at the Glen Echo course, which turned semipublic a few years ago, were heartily in favor of Sarazen's proposal, as was Sylvester himself. In a poll of District professionals conducted recently by The Post, 13 of the 14 were opposed to the idea, several of whom had the audacity to suggest that the cup be made smaller. The veteran Sylvester was the only local pro who cheerfully backed Sarazen's idea.

Dressed up with the enlarged holes, the Bannockburn course is ready for testing today. The new cups are 3¾ inches wider than the regulation holes of the U. S. G. A. There will be no change for the time being on the first nine, thus affording golfers the opportunity of trying out their putts for nine holes from the 3¼-inch size and from the new 8-inch size.

Chairman Brown declined to predict how long the new holes would remain at Bannockburn, but intimated that if they met with public favor they would not be replaced in favor of the regulation cups.

Opinions of Players Is Sought.

On the bulletin board near the eighteenth hole a sheet of paper has been placed, and golfers who test the new cups after a round will be asked to give their opinions.

To Tony Sylvester went the honor of giving the new cups a thorough examination. Later he was joined by Dr. Brown.

On the twelfth green Sylvester tried putts from various distances and angles. From 4 to 5 feet he discovered that they dropped almost with monotonous regularity. It was another story trying to can putts from 20 feet or more, he found out. Sylvester in

Tech Tossers Are Final Hurdle

Rivals Promise Hot Battle in Feature of Twin Bill.

Central - Roosevelt Clash in Finale of Program.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

WHETHER Eastern will tie with Central for the inter-high school basket ball championship or simply be recalled as the team that almost did in future years, will be decided today when Mike Kelley's charges come to grips with the trial horse of the series, Tech. The game is the first of two series contests for which the good burghers will be requested to part with four bits. Central is obliged to go through the process of playing Roosevelt in the nightcap for the sake of the record book's accuracy.

Today's game is the last for Eastern in the series, and with their chances of retaining their title hanging in the balance, the Lincoln Parkers are expected to play one of those games red-blooded reporters refer to as "bitterly contested."

Tech Regarded as Trial Horse.

On the other hand, or side, since Tech is regarded as the trial horse, there may be some horse play, and Eastern may find itself left at the post, or as Bill Bennings would say, "Just another good tip." The Maroon and Gray is definitely out of the picture as a title contender.

Coach Mike Kelley of Eastern plans to start Davis at center; Nolan and Waters, forwards, and Bayliss and Dean, guards. This combination was the same that marred Central's otherwise perfect record and in a startling form reversal defeated Roosevelt in a slow game and was forced into an extra period to win from Western.

"When they go through you look good, and when they don't you look bad," Kelley said last night. "I think we'll win today simply because the boys realize what it means. They'll throw them up there and trust to the law of averages, supported, of course, by some zealous guarding."

Boyd Has Best Five Available.

Olverson, Thomas, Daly, Wheeler and Billings are expected to start for Tech, although Coach Artie Boyd could not be reached to confirm this last night. It is the best combination Boyd has hit on this year and appears capable of giving Eastern all the fight it wants, possibly too much.

Tech's zone defense, which completely separated Central from the basket in the first period of their game last Tuesday, may succeed in spoiling the afternoon for Eastern, considering the latter boasts no players consistently good on pot shots.

Fully recovered from the shock of its game with Tech, Central expects to dispose of Roosevelt with little trouble, especially with Joe Sherman witnessing the game as a cash customer. Central will not have Jack Moulton at center, and there is some speculation among the fans as to who will replace him. Buddy Nau may get the assignment, but Bill Bryant or Harold Melincove are most likely to be in the center circle at some time or other.

Roosevelt's hopes were dealt another blow late last night when Coach Lynn Woodworth announced that Huck Cavanaugh, forward and captain of the team, had been dismissed from the squad for playing with an independent team. Cavanaugh played with the team against St. John's Freshmen yesterday at Annapolis. He turned in his equipment after the game. Woodworth had no knowledge that he had violated the series rule until informed by Cavanaugh.

BROOKMEADE'S JUBILATE HANDY WINNER AT HIALEAH PARK

Rapscallion Disappoints In Feature

High Rated Juvenile 4th, Behind Marmion, Cabezo.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 2 (A. P.).—C. V. Whitney's Rapscallion, well regarded as a juvenile and with the benefit of one local outing under his belt, lost considerable prestige as a Florida Derby hopeful here today as a result of his dismal performance in the Port St. Joe Purse. The pennant colt, which raced well up with high-class 2-year-olds last year, finished just outside the money after taking a severe whipping from Jockey Coucci.

The Brookmeade Stable's Jubilate, a 5-year-old, recorded a handy victory, beating Marmion by a length and a half. Cabezo, losing the place by seven lengths, took the show from Rapscallion by a neck. Jubilate, under light weight, ran the 7 furlongs in 1:24 2-5 and paid $7.70.

Rapscallion, a fractious post horse, was slow to leave the gate, but Coucci rushed him up fast to force the pace out out by Jubilate. Marion stole through the inside and passed Rapscallion as Coucci went to the "bat" entering the stretch. Cabezo also collared the Whitney-ite in the drive to the wire. Jubilate ran smoothly and had something left at the end.

The speedy but wind-broken Irene's Bob had nothing to run with him in the opening event and made it a runaway affair. The G. M. Odom performer breezed home with five lengths advantage over Camp Boss. Mae Sweep was beaten a nose for the place. Irene's Bob took the lead right after the start and drawing well clear free-wheeled it the remainder of the 6-furlong trip to pay 3 to 1. Camp Boss and Mae Sweep were always the chief contenders.

Roosevelt High Wins In Annapolis, 50-25

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 2.—St. John's freshmen succumbed to another Washington high school team when Roosevelt inflicted a 50-25 defeat on the local quintet in a one-sided game here today.

The visitors amassed a 25-12 lead in the first half with their regular players in the fray. Roosevelt's second stringers were inserted in the fray at the start of the second half, but St. John's was unable to make much progress against them.

Bethesda's Firemen Beat Trainers, 44-31

National Training School's Basket Ball Team encountered unexpected opposition from the Bethesda Firemen last night and was defeated by a score of 44-31 in an exciting game. The work of "Ace" Melton for Bethesda featured the fray. The former University of Maryland flash sank 15 field goals and managed to hold Kiski scoreless. Broun, with 14 points, was high scorer for Training school.

Carry Hopes of Georgetown in Milrose Relay

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

MIAMI, FEBRUARY 2.

DEAR AL:

Well, old kid, I was a race too early on Jaffa. Had the word that the once fast sprinter was returning to best form and picked him the other day. However, he showed little and I couldn't afford to try to guess when the crackdown would be made. It materialized today, with Gilbert doing the booting—and by seven lengths! Mike watched the race, eyed that $41 mutuel, and said: "What'ya think of that!" I didn't answer, because there were ladies around. Anyway, I was too worried about the beating the Bennings stock was taking. I got back to earth after the sixth race, however, when Potentate came through to save me from my first shutout of the meeting. BILL.

FIRST RACE—CHU CHU may roll home in this. An excellent sprinter last fall, this one is said to be in excellent shape and ready for a fast race. If there is some pressing, I look for MISS TULSA to supply it. ZORANA has been improving and should be third.

SECOND RACE—JESTING QUEEN has shown as much, if not more, than anything this field of babies can offer. Should be a short-priced winner. BUBBLING WAYS is well-bred and is liked by the handlers. FORCEFUL to take care of the show end.

THIRD RACE—IDLE STEFAN showed enough the other day to win two races of this kind. Unless something goes amiss, this one should waltz home. RALLY ROUND looks like the place horse with the show end left to SCREECH.

FOURTH RACE—JUNGLE KING gets a shift in the weights from INLANDER and may take the long end. Both are in excellent shape and in excellent hands. If there is an upset, I look for WHITE THORN to be the medium. This one craves the mud but may be able to show a lot more than expected at a mile.

FIFTH RACE—EVERFAIR scratched today and I'm stringing along here. Mighty fit little thing and may bring a sizable mutuel. STEALING AWAY and NOSE IN to take care of the others.

SIXTH RACE—Giving GARLIC another chance. Has been knocking at the door. They woke up GENERAL COURT the last time and missed. May be second again. PRINCE FOX to show.

SEVENTH RACE—DORSEYS ran a smashing race the other day and should take care of the improved WAYWARD LAD, GOLDEN FATE has some class and may give the top pair a battle.

George Lott Advances Without His Racquet

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—George M. Lott, of Chicago, on the comeback trail to the 1933 Davis Cup selections, advanced to the quarter finals of the Pan-American tennis tournament today without touching his racquet.

He drew a bye in the first round, and came through the second round when J. K. Mooney, of Miami, did not appear for his match and Lott was credited with victory by default.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, runner-up to Lott in the recent all-South singles tournament here, advanced through the first and second rounds, although he had to go three sets to defeat Judge Beaver, Hollywood, Fla., student in the second round. He defeated L. W. Larsen, of Miami, in the first round, 6—1, 6—1, and defeated Beaver in the second round, 3—6, 6—0, 6—0.

BANNOCKBURN TRIES EIGHT-INCH GOLF CUP

ten putts from the latter distance was successful only once, causing him to remark, "the new cups work for the short putts, but there is no difference between the old and new in attempting to sink putts from longer distances."

Pro Golf Association Opposes Larger Cup

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The Professional Golfers Association today came out officially as opposed to the use of eight-inch cups, following the action of the United States Golf Association.

"The eight-inch cup is contrary to the best interests and rules of golf," said Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the P. G. A. "We can't allow their use in tournaments sponsored by our organization."

First Test for Big Cup In Miami Open Tourney

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Gene Sarazen, apostle of the 8-inch golf cup, announced today that the larger cups would be used for the first time in a major golf event during the first week of March when the Miami-Biltmore Club holds its $5,000 open tourney. Gene tried out the new cups over that course today, and expressed satisfaction with the results.

Sarazen, who started it all, tried out his pet idea today and decided the "washtub" size isn't such an easy thing after all. Here's his verdict:

"Well, it's not such a joke after all. It's pretty hard to sink the putts in the 8-inch cup."

Maryland Cub Five Defeats Episcopal

Rallying in the final period, after trailing all the way, University of Maryland Freshmen defeated Episcopal Prep School, 42-34, in a thrilling game played at Alexandria yesterday.

With Woodruff and Campbell showing the way, Episcopal rolled up a 22-16 lead at the end of the first half and maintained its advantage by a 32-28 score as the third period ended. Scheele and Rabbitt led the attack that brought the Terrapin yearlings from behind to victory.

D. & H. UPSET IN CENTER FEATURE

Crescents, Topped by Barker, Win by 31-28 Score.

SURPRISED by the whirlwind attack of its opponent, the league-leading Delaware & Hudson quintet, previously undefeated in the Community Center League, was toppled from its lofty position by the Crescents in a well-played game last night. The final score was 31-28.

The Crescents' victory enabled Potomac Boat Club to slip back into a tie with D. & H. for the lead in Section B when it jolted the Naval Reserves with a 41-24 defeat.

Ed Barker, who found the rim for 13 points, led the Crescent victory march. Delaware & Hudson, after getting out in front at the start, lagged behind in the third period and was never able to regain the lost ground.

In the only other games played Olmsted Grill defeated the Millers, 26-18, in Section B, while Sholl's continued its winning streak in Section A, trouncing Rhode Island Avenue, 45-15.

RUNS-HITS and ERRORS

BOB CONSIDINE

THERE is nothing new under the sun in baseball, at least, so far as holdouts are concerned.

The daddy of all holdouts was bewhiskered Mike Kelly, hero of the grand old barroom song, "Slide, Kelly, Slide." He wouldn't sign at any figure. That's the truth. A. G. Spalding, manager and owner of Cincinnati in 1890, offered him a bonus of $10,000 and a three-year contract at any figure Kelly cared to write in the form (imagine that!), but the eccentric Irishman had promised to play ball with the Boston Players League Club and that outfit was so grateful for his beau geste that they chipped in and bought him a farm in Hingham, wherever that is.

This musty history of old King Kelly has been excavated by Harris Elwood Starr, associate editor of the Dictionary of American Biography, under the auspices of the American Council of Learned Societies. Mr. Starr further divulges that Kelly was hailed as the "Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty" and that he was booted off the Chicago White Stockings and sent to the Boston Red Stockings because "he was of a highly convivial nature, extremely fascinating and witty, and his example was demoralizing to discipline."

Kelly played right field and filled in as catcher now and then. He reached the peak of his career between 1882 and 1887 with Chicago, where he added the art of playing shortstop to his several other attributes. He was a notoriously clumsy fielder.

He was the first good slider. Big, clumsy and full of devilry, the rivals of his day made no bones about getting out of his way when he came in spikes first. He led the league in hitting in 1886 and always carried on a good-natured badinage with spectators. He was a bear at umpire bealting.

Kelly died of pneumonia at the Emergency Hospital in Boston on November 8, 1894. Just before he died he slipped off a stretcher and calmly remarked:

"This is my last slide."

BROOKMEADE'S JUBILATE HANDY WINNER AT HIALEAH PARK

High Rated Juvenile 4th, Behind Marmion, Cabezo.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 2 (A. P.).—C. V. Whitney's Rapscallion, well regarded as a juvenile and with the benefit of one local outing under his belt, lost considerable prestige as a Florida Derby hopeful here today as a result of his dismal performance in the Port St. Joe Purse. The pennant colt, which raced well up with high-class 2-year-olds last year, finished just outside the money after taking a severe whipping from Jockey Coucci.

The Brookmeade Stable's Jubilate, a 5-year-old, recorded a handy victory, beating Marmion by a length and a half. Cabezo, losing the place by seven lengths, took the show from Rapscallion by a neck. Jubilate, under light weight, ran the 7 furlongs in 1:24 2-5 and paid $7.70.

Rapscallion Slow Getting Off.

Rapscallion, a fractious post horse, was slow to leave the gate, but Coucci rushed him up fast to force the pace out out by Jubilate. Marion stole through the inside and passed Rapscallion as Coucci went to the "bat" entering the stretch. Cabezo also collared the Whitney-ite in the drive to the wire. Jubilate ran smoothly and had something left at the end.

The speedy but wind-broken Irene's Bob had nothing to run with him in the opening event and made it a runaway affair. The G. M. Odom performer breezed home with five lengths advantage over Camp Boss. Mae Sweep was beaten a nose for the place. Irene's Bob took the lead right after the start and drawing well clear free-wheeled it the remainder of the 6-furlong trip to pay 3 to 1. Camp Boss and Mae Sweep were always the chief contenders.

Roosevelt High Wins In Annapolis, 50-25

Carry Hopes of Georgetown in Milrose Relay

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

MIAMI, FEBRUARY 2.

DEAR AL:

Well, old kid, I was a race too early on Jaffa. Had the word that the once fast sprinter was returning to best form and picked him the other day. However, he showed little and I couldn't afford to try to guess when the crackdown would be made. It materialized today, with Gilbert doing the booting—and by seven lengths! Mike watched the race, eyed that $41 mutuel, and said: "What'ya think of that!" I didn't answer, because there were ladies around. Anyway, I was too worried about the beating the Bennings stock was taking. I got back to earth after the sixth race, however, when Potentate came through to save me from my first shutout of the meeting. BILL.

FIRST RACE—CHU CHU may roll home in this. An excellent sprinter last fall, this one is said to be in excellent shape and ready for a fast race. If there is some pressing, I look for MISS TULSA to supply it. ZORANA has been improving and should be third.

SECOND RACE—JESTING QUEEN has shown as much, if not more, than anything this field of babies can offer. Should be a short-priced winner. BUBBLING WAYS is well-bred and is liked by the handlers. FORCEFUL to take care of the show end.

THIRD RACE—IDLE STEFAN showed enough the other day to win two races of this kind. Unless something goes amiss, this one should waltz home. RALLY ROUND looks like the place horse with the show end left to SCREECH.

FOURTH RACE—JUNGLE KING gets a shift in the weights from INLANDER and may take the long end. Both are in excellent shape and in excellent hands. If there is an upset, I look for WHITE THORN to be the medium. This one craves the mud but may be able to show a lot more than expected at a mile.

FIFTH RACE—EVERFAIR scratched today and I'm stringing along here. Mighty fit little thing and may bring a sizable mutuel. STEALING AWAY and NOSE IN to take care of the others.

SIXTH RACE—Giving GARLIC another chance. Has been knocking at the door. They woke up GENERAL COURT the last time and missed. May be second again. PRINCE FOX to show.

SEVENTH RACE—DORSEYS ran a smashing race the other day and should take care of the improved WAYWARD LAD. GOLDEN FATE has some class and may give the top pair a battle.

George Lott Advances Without His Racquet

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—George M. Lott, of Chicago, on the comeback trail to the 1933 Davis Cup selections, advanced to the quarter finals of the Pan-American tennis tournament today without touching his racquet.

He drew a bye in the first round, and came through the second round when J. K. Mooney, of Miami, did not appear for his match and Lott was credited with victory by default.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, runner-up to Lott in the recent all-South singles tournament here, advanced through the first and second rounds, although he had to go three sets to defeat Judge Beaver, Hollywood, Fla., student in the second round. He defeated L. W. Larsen, of Miami, in the first round, 6—1, 6—1, and defeated Beaver in the second round, 3—6, 6—0, 6—0.

Crucial Game Tonight For Alexandria High

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 2.—Alexandria High School basketers will trek to Fredericksburg, Va., Friday night for a crucial game with the Yellow-jackets in the third district series.

If the "Twins" can win this tussle, they will be the champions of the third district in the first half, and probably will be named to represent this section of the State in titular series at William and Mary University.

The Alexandria girls team will meet the Fredericksburg sextet in the preliminary attraction.

On Saturday night at 8:15 at Armory Hall, the Alexandria High tossers will play an old rival, Lee-Jackson quint, from Fairfax County.

Columbus Tossers Meet Bliss Tonight

Columbus University will make its fourth start of the season on the court tonight, playing Bliss Electrical School at 8:30 o'clock in the Gonzaga High School Gymnasium. Columbus won two of the three games it has played. Coach Tubba Farrell plans to start Smith and Freedenburg at forward, Rice, center, and Dougherty and Dolan, guards.

Little is known of Bliss but the Electricians usually are represented by well-drilled teams. A preliminary game between Gonzaga and the George Washington University Frosh will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

BANNOCKBURN TRIES EIGHT-INCH GOLF CUP

ten putts from the latter distance was successful only once, causing him to remark, "the new cups work for the short putts, but there is no difference between the old and new in attempting to sink putts from longer distances."

Pro Golf Association Opposes Larger Cup

Chicago, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—The Professional Golfers Association today came out officialy as oppesed to the use of eight-inch cups, following the action of the United States Golf Association.

"The eight-inch cup is contrary to the best interests and rules of golf," said Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the P. G. A. "We can't allow their use in tournaments sponsored by our organization."

First Test for Big Cup In Miami Open Tourney

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2 (U.P.).—Gene Sarazen, apostle of the 8-inch golf cup, announced today that the larger cups would be used for the first time in a major golf event during the first week of March when the Miami-Biltmore Club holds its $5,000 open tourney. Gene tried out the new cups over that course today, and expressed satisfaction with the results.

Sarazen, who started it all, tried out his pet idea today and decided the "washtub" size isn't such an easy thing after all. Here's his verdict:

"Well, it's not such a joke after all. It's pretty hard to sink the putts in the 8-inch cup."

Maryland Cub Five Defeats Episcopal

RUNS-HITS and ERRORS

by BOB CONSIDINE

THERE is nothing new under the sun in baseball, at least, so far as holdouts are concerned.

The daddy of all holdouts was bewhiskered Mike Kelly, hero of the grand old barroom song, "Slide, Kelly, Slide." He wouldn't sign at any figure. That's the truth. A. G. Spalding, manager and owner of Cincinnati in 1890, offered him a bonus of $10,000 and a three-year contract at any figure Kelly cared to write in the form (imagine that!), but the eccentric Irishman had promised to play ball with the Boston Players League Club and that outfit was so grateful for his beau geste that they chipped in and bought him a farm in Hingham, wherever that is.

This musty history of old King Kelly has been excavated by Harris Elwood Starr, associate editor of the Dictionary of American Biography, under the auspices of the American Council of Learned Societies. Mr. Starr further divulges that Kelly was hailed as the "Ten Thousand Dollar Beauty" and that he was booted off the Chicago White Stockings and sent to the Boston Red Stockings because "he was of a highly convivial nature, extremely fascinating and witty, and his example was demoralizing to discipline."

Kelly played right field and filled in as catcher now and then. He reached the peak of his career between 1882 and 1887 with Chicago, where he added the art of playing shortstop to his several other attributes. He was a notoriously clumsy fielder.

He was the first good slider. Big, clumsy and full of deviltry, the rivals of his day made no bones about getting out of his way when he came in spikes first. He led the league in hitting in 1886 and always carried on a good-natured badinage with spectators. He was a bear at umpire baiting.

Kelly died of pneumonia at the Emergency Hospital in Boston on November 8, 1894. Just before he died he slipped off a stretcher and calmly remarked:

"This is my last slide."

Our dynamic Winchester, Va., agent cables that the 19-year-old pitching sensation of that metropolis, Bobby Cassell, will get a tryout with Washington at Biloxi this month, although all that Clark Griffith will say is "Maybe." Cassell played with the Millwood A. C.

Among Cassell's heroic achievements to date, according to the Winchester dispatch, are a victory over the Middleburg A. C. on Lambert's Field, a fifteen-inning game against the Winchester Park Nine, called at 2 to 2 on account of darkness, and a sterling two-hit game with dear old Martinsburg (W. Va.) Hose Company No. 3 Team.

Good luck, Robert.

Honus Wagner Rejoins Pirates

Returns to Scene of His Gala Days as Coach; Former Star 58.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Honus Wagner, great shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the "old days," today signed a contract to return to the Pirates as coach and general assistant to Manager George Gibson.

The "Flying Dutchman" played his entire major league career with the Pittsburgh club. The late Barney Dreyfuss, for many years owner of the team, several times offered the veteran a coaching job, but Wagner always declined.

Negotiations for getting Honus back to Forbes Field were reopened recently by William E. Benswanger, new president of the club. Today Wagner, accompanied by Mrs. Wagner, visited Benswanger's office and put his name on the dotted line.

Benswanger made this statement:

"This is a great thrill for me. Honus belongs to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Mr. Dreyfuss always wanted to have him with the club."

Benswanger added that other coaches on the club will be retained. Wagner is 58 years old.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ONE of the most difficult shows to produce on the air is the March of Time, which, by the way, is the initial radio effort of youthful Don Stauffer, who is in complete charge of the production.

Each week between Tuesday noon, when the script for the show is drawn up for the first time, until Friday night after the conclusion of the program, there is scarcely an hour when some one involved is not at work on the show. Along about noon on Tuesday the first script is started. Tuesday night Stauffer calls in Ora Nichols and Howard Barlow in order to arrange the sound effects and the musical background. All day Wednesday is devoted to casting trials—and the selection of voices to duplicate those of prominent living men and women is one of the most trying tasks.

Thursday morning means six hours of rehearsal. Again on Friday there are several hours of rehearsal. Frequently, some event of national importance will transpire between Wednesday night and Friday noon, which means that the entire show has to be rewritten. When this happens all available radio actors and actresses have to be recalled for voice tests, the new script must be prepared and rehearsals done all over again.

Frederic William Wile, jr., of Columbia, is in charge of the publicity for this hour, which in itself is quite a task because of last minute changes.

Adolf Hitler's appointment to the chancellorship of the German Republic and its significance to the world at large will be dramatized during the presentation of tonight's "March of Time" (WJSV, 8:30 o'clock). Ray Collins will take the role of the Nazi chieftain.

---

MUSICIAN LUIZ GUZMAN, who regularly plays the flute in the Marine Band, will demonstrate his versatility this afternoon as piano soloist in the broadcast with the Marine Band Symphony Orchestra (WRC, 3 o'clock). Under the direction of Capt. Taylor Branson, he will play the "Concerto in A Major," by Mozart.

Mr. Guzman, who is a native of Brazil, studied piano with Malton Boyce, Washington pianist, who is also organist at St. Matthew's Church. Musician Guzman likewise plays the pipe organ and in addition to the flute is proficient on the piccolo, which he also plays in the Marine Band. So really he has four instruments to his credit.

Arrangements are being made for a program during Holy Week direct from the Passion Play Amphitheater in Oberammergau, Germany. The broadcast will be scheduled for 12 noon to 12:30 p. m. on either Holy Saturday, April 15, or Easter Sunday, April 16. The high point of the program as planned will be an excerpt from the Passion Play as performed by Anton Lang, famous as the Christus in the great religious pageant which has been staged in Oberammergau every ten years for more than 300 years.

The remainder of the program will consist of a description of the little Bavarian mountain village, usually still snow-covered at Easter time, and Easter hymns and songs by the Passion Play Chorus.

HOW he conceived the notion of making a musical play out of Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" and made a success of it despite discouragement on all sides, will be told by Jerome Kern when he appears with Edwin C. Hill in "The Inside Story," over WJSV at 9:30 p. m

---

George S. Kaufman and Morris Ryskind, authors of "Of Thee I Sing," have written a series of satirical political sketches for the radio which they call "Two Senators at Large." The collaborators intend to turn actors on the air and play the senators they have invented. After the script is rewritten, something will be done about the production of it.

---

"Don & Diane," a new series of fifteen-minute skits, centering around the lives of two United States Government employes, will be heard over WRC every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights at 6:30, beginning Tuesday, February 7.

The principal characters in the playlets are young people who are about to marry. As the series unfolds the radio audience will learn of the many trivial and major problems which are confronting every Government worker.

The creator of the program is a Washingtonian, and those playing the chief roles are now employed by the Government and are married. Some of the material in the skits will be based on incidents which actually occurred in the lives of the two characters.

The second of a series of programs by Barnee and Maxim Lowe's Kings of the Highways will be heard at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The feature is presented each Monday and Friday at the same hour.

---

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT will talk on "A Mother's Responsibility as a Citizen," when she comes to the microphone for her broadcast over WRC at 9:30 p. m.

Leo Reisman and his orchestra will offer an overture of popular music from "Walk a Little Faster," while Lee Wiley, singer of the blues, will be heard in "Moon Song" and "Porgie." Solos by William Scholtz, tenor, will be "My Darling," and "Isn't It Romantic?"

Stravinsky's Suite, from "The Fire Bird," will be played by the symphony orchestra in illustration of Dr. Walter Damrosch's talk on "The Modern Suite" during the Music Appreciation Hour over WRC at 11 o'clock this morning. During the second half hour the orchestra will play a Berlioz program, consisting of two movements from the "Romeo and Juliet" symphony and waltz from "Fantastic" symphony.

BEFORE he became a broadcaster, Gene Arnold was an insurance adjuster. One day he interviewed a woman who was demanding $30,000 for the loss of a thumb in a car accident. Arnold protested no thumb was worth that amount of money. "Well, this one was," argued the lady. "It was the thumb I kept my husband under."

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question—I have been going with a man for two years, and we were engaged to be married this Easter. Now he tells me he can not go through with it, as he had fallen in love with another woman and has taken out a license to marry her. Do you think I am justified in suing for breach of promise?

Answer—No. Two wrongs do not make a right. It is a pity, of course, that two years of your life have been wasted on a man who has proven unworthy of your love. Be that as it may, it is better to have discovered this now than after marriage. A few heartbreaks at this time are much better than a shattered home in years to come. If you sue for breach of promise and are awarded damages, it will not buy your love back. It will do a great deal more harm than the money you may receive will do you good. Moreover, you place yourself in the limelight of one seeking revenge, and there is no revenge for a lost love save within the chapel of the heart wherein we may spill the tears of sorrow unnoticed by the world outside.

Forget, and that is not easy, I know. Life at is worst is beautiful, and somewhere, some time at the most unexpected moment you will find a love, the like of which you perhaps have never known.

"And sometime," I say, "when your dreamings are through,
You'll look for the eyes that are looking for you,
And you'll find them, please God, and the little house, too,
And the joy of them both will satisfy you."

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Gen. George Simonds To Be Guest at Ride

The guest of honor at the Fort Myer exhibition ride this afternoon will be Brig. Gen. George S. Simonds, commandant of the Army War College.

The principals are the same as at the presentation two weeks ago—Harry Crow, Raymond Baine, Ira Meyer, Elliott Button, Harry Yeide, Betty Thornberry, Alma Harris, Ella Neuland and Helen Mark.

Hall Will Be Dedicated To Dr. Roberts' Memory

Cynghan Hall, in the Washington College of Music, will be dedicated to the memory of Dr. Hugh Rowland Roberts at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Guarnerius String Quartet of Philadelphia.

A program of chamber music will be presented. Dr. Robert's last piece of work was the completion of the hall—just prior to his death.

Griffith Blue Coals stumped the Red Sox, 37 to 18, in the other game of the night, Lyles, with 17 points, leading the attack.

Gallaudet Tossers Bow in Philadelphia

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Sending eighteen field goals through the cords, the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy passers registered an easy 42 to 30 conquest over Gallaudet quintet here tonight.

Leading the Gallaudet attack, which functioned more smoothly in the first half, which was completed with the home horde in the van, 22 to 18, were Brown and Crockett. Each hit the cords for 10 points on three twin tallies and four converted charity chances.

ST. ALBAN'S "B" WINS.

St. Alban's "B" squad had no trouble yesterday beating the Episcopal High basket ball secondaries at St. Alban's, 34-12. Henderson and Foulois stood out for the victors.

Hitting the Headpin

OCCIDENTAL pinspillers roll the first block of their home-and-home match with the Worthmore quintet of Baltimore tonight, starting at 7:30 o'clock at Convention Hall. Five games will be rolled tonight and the second five at Baltimore Sunday.

Maxie Rosenberg, Ollie Pacini, Reds Megaw, Earle McPhilomy, Joe Harrison and Astor Clarke will ease them down the alleys for the home team. Coming with the Monumental City delegation are Bill Arnold, national singles champion; Andy Zeller, recent winner of the Maryland Sweepstakes; Mayar Jacobson, high average men in the Major League of Baltimore; Ray Barnes, winner of the Dixie Sweepstakes; Ray Von Dreele, former No. 1 ranking bowler; Herman Kullick, winner of the Evening Sun Tournament, and Charlie Bauer, all-events champion.

Clarke will roll against Von Dreele in the singles and Megaw and Pacini will oppose Barnes and Arnold in the doubles.

Another intercity match is listed tomorow night at Silver Spring, where the Martinsburg All-Stars oppose the Beaver Dam team. Hack Wilson, pugnacious-looking outfielder of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club, will officially open the match by rolling the first ball.

Al Fischer will head the local team, which will include La Bille, Purdy, Mattison, Barnard, Phipps and McCarthy. Bernie Kees is the star of the invading bowlers. His 704 mark stands as the highest set rolled in his home town.

Coffman's 320 and Ferriter's 124 were high in the I. C. C. Examiners loop at Columbia. Depreciation led the teams with 525 and 1,473.

Survey showed the way in the Interior Department League at Columbia, rolling 558 and 1,627. Boteler's 364 and 139 were high.

Lehigh went back into the lead in the Intercollegiate Alumni League, winning all three from Princeton, while its rival for that position, Maryland, was shut out by Navy. Earl Brown had a 139 game and Clarence Charest turned in a 349 set. Michigan's 541 and 1,556 took the team laurels.

Pistel's 162 and 376 featured the pinspilling in the War Department loop at Arcadia. Reproduction, No. 2, rolled a 587 game and Adjutants had a 1,689 set.

Frank Riley topped the Nation-Wide League at Convention Hall with a 138 game and 371 set. His team, Auth's, rolled a 554 game and 1,560 set.

Another Frank, Kidwell this time, was high in the Killowatt loop at Convention Hall, with a game of 135 and 364 set. Bookkeepers, always busy with figures, rolled 572 and 1,621.

Washington Herald won all the prizes in the Daylight League at Convention Hall, but Chick Darnell's Washington Post team regained the lead by winning three games. Herald bowlers rolled 579 and 1,608. Gaylor's 135 and Reds Mower's 366 were high.

Lack of cooperation on the part of Treasury teams brought the second-place Agriculture quintet within a game of the leading Treasury pinspillers in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia. The leaders lost three to Commerce while Treasury, No. 2, dropped as many to the Aggies. Irene Scott's 334 and Bess Kirk's 133 furnished high individual scores. Veterans Administration rolled a 524 game and Interstate had a 1,520 set.

Hyattsville and Mt. Rainier Play

Hyattsville High School's basket ball team, weakened by the loss of several leading players, who have been fired for various reasons, comes to grips for the second time this season with its dearest foe, Mount Rainier High today on the Hyattsville National Guard Armory court. It will be the second game of a series for the Prince Georges County championship. Mount Rainier is the favorite.

Girl teams of the schools clash in a preliminary at 3 o'clock. This also will be the second game of a series for county laurels.

The Hyattsville boys handily won over Mount Rainier in their first game last month at Mount Rainier, but since then the Blue and Gold has lost such stalwarts as Blaine Calhoun, forward, and Harold Brown, Hub Wilson, and Leroy Ellis, guards. Whether Burdette Cogar will play has not been decided. If he performs, it will be as a forward. He previously has been playing at guard.

Mount Rainier will take the floor with the same team that played against Hyattsville in the first game.

Emerson Five Bows To Staunton, 35-26

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Feb. 2.—Accurate shooting gave Staunton Military Academy a 35-26 basket ball victory over Emerson Institute of Washington in Kable gym this afternoon.

Emerson started the first quarter with a 7-4 lead, two field goals, but three free tosses by Cranor soon after the second quarter opened, put Staunton out in front and they were never headed.

Scanlon was outstanding for the visitors on the offensive, his floor work being the only redeeming feature of the visitors' sluggish play.

Cranor and Smith were luminaries for Staunton on both defensive and offensive. The former was responsible for the scoring spurt that put them out in front.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE ELMER TWITCHELL TECHNOCRACY LECTURE.

MR. CHAIRMAN, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I am here tonight to do what I can in my small way to explain technocracy, or the industrial one-over-one system. Technocracy is a plan for the operation of our economic and social system on a scientific basis. What's the trouble with America today? Too many machines. And no million-share days!

The need of the hour is scientific planning. The old system is dead. Money must be done away with, and there is so little of it around today that it is practically a child's job. What is responsible for our present condition? Money? What is money? Can any lady or gentleman in my audience remember?

• • • •

We have, then, a situation in which there is no money and too much machinery. What is the solution? Ergs. But before we go into the matter of ergs let me cite a few striking illustrations of changed conditions under the machine age. Are you lissenin?

• • • •

In the year 54 A. D. it took the primitive delicatessen dealer three hours to slice enough baloney to feed a family of 46 persons and a police dog. Today technocrats have shown that with a machine half a delicatessen dealer can slice five times as much baloney in 20 minutes and take off his second and third fingers!

• • • •

In 1897 a bustle manufacturer named Gus, in Fall River, could turn out 50 dozen bustles in one week and take two hours off every afternoon for a bicycle ride. Today what is the situation? There is a factory in New Jersey which, without the touch of a human hand, can produce 3,000 bustles an hour with no takers!

• • • •

What do these illustrations signify, my friends? Chaos! Industrial stagnation! Too much late sleeping! A condition in which the country finds itself behind the eight ball. What is the way out? Energy. How will we place the country on energy basis? By getting rid of politicians.

• • • •

What do we get rid of next, my friends? Bankers, industrialists, savings accounts, business men and the stock and bond markets. How? You have a choice of a mashie, niblick or a wooden club.

• • • •

What does that leave us? One blue suit with extra pair of pants, a car with seven payments still due and a meter for measuring our energy flow.

• • • •

Have I made myself clear? I was afraid not. Tomorrow night at this same hour I will talk on the Einstein theory as applied to child life.

THE HOLLYWOOD MIND.

After observing the posters and electric signs on Broadway this week it is the conclusion of T. K. L. that the Hollywood mind is the type of intellect that wouldn't show Whistler's "Mother" except in scanties.

RESTRICTED.

They are arresting bathers at Miami Beach for appearing seminude on the public streets. If they want to go about that way, they must stick to the beach, where the crowds can see them.

Asked how he enjoyed a recent movie, Frank M. O'Brien replied, "I slept wonderfully for the next two weeks."

More Room Asked For Deal Students

Use of Space in Murch Building Sought by District Board.

The Board of Education has asked authority of Congress to use four unfinished classrooms in the Murch School to provide February accommodations for 200 new pupils of the Deal Junior High School, the House District Appropriations Committee disclosed yesterday.

There had been an agreement that the four rooms on the second floor of the building would not be completed for use this year. Engineer Commissioner Gotwals estimated it would cost between $2,000 and $3,000 to put the rooms in condition for temporary use.

During the discussion of the need for new schoolroom facilities, Chairman Clarence Cannon observed: "The increase in school buildings here in the District in the last five years is without precedent in the country."

One of two men arrested by police yesterday in a house at 2118 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was tentatively identified last night as one of the pair who attempted to rob a gasoline filling station at Twenty-second and M streets northwest Monday night.

The identification was made by Clyde D. Owens, attendant at the station. The man said he was Vincent Costello, 24, of 2153 K street northwest. The other man said he was Albert L. Peacock, 26, of 2852 Ontario road northwest.

POLICE ARE BAFFLED AT VISIT OF GUNMAN TO HOME OF M'GILL

Senator Discounts Theory His Dry Activity Led to Attempted Attack.

A cloud of mystery settled over the movements and identity of an armed prowler who appeared at the home of Senator George McGill (Democrat), of Kansas, Wednesday night, and police admitted early today they were balked in their investigation.

A set of large footprints leading to and from the front of Senator McGill's home at 3009 Thirty-fourth street northwest completed the only clews police have obtained. The soft earth plainly showed the imprints of a man's feet clustered beneath a dining room window.

With the assignment of a prohibition enforcement officer to the case, it was at first believed that the senator's prohibition activities actuated the attempted attack. Senator McGill, however, flatly denied the truth of this report. He also discounted the rumor that his activities as a prosecuting attorney in Kansas prompted an attack for vengeance.

At Loss as to Motive.

"I am at a loss to explain the incident or reveal a motive for any attack on my life," the senator said last night. "As far as my prosecuting activities are concerned, I have not practiced law other than on the defense since 1915."

He laughed at the idea of his dry work in the Senate having anything to do with the gunman's appearance. He told police he could help them in no way toward solving the mystery.

Capt. B. W. Thompson, of the Detective Bureau, went to Senator McGill's home last night and remained in conference with him for more than an hour. Detective C. C. Brown, prohibition officer of the Eighth Precinct, was assigned to the case when it appeared as though the senator's dry actions might have brought on the attempted assault.

Found No One at Door.

The gunman's plans were apparently frustrated by Senator McGill's alertness and action. While eating dinner with his wife and daughter, a knock was heard at the front door. The senator answered, but found no one there. He had just resumed his seat, when again the knock was heard.

Once more he answered to find the front steps vacant. By this time, Senator McGill declared, he thought his stepson, Jacob Caruth, stationed at the Naval Air Station, had come for a visit and was playing a prank. Then, hearing a noise at the window, Senator McGill threw back the draperies only to find himself looking into a double-barreled shotgun. He quickly dropped the draperies and turned out the lights. Then he called police.

Sitting in Dining Room.

The senator told police he was sitting in the dining room of his home, with his wife and daughter, when he discovered the man.

A police guard was stationed at the home immediately and maintained through the day and last night. As a precautionary measure, the low trees which overhang several windows at the house also were removed yesterday.

The theory that the attempted attack resulted from the senator's prohibition activities grew from a report that the man apparently was intoxicated. The senator said the gun was wavering at the window when he saw it.

New Airport Bill Faces House Study

Committee to Be Asked to Survey Revised Draft of McMillan Bill.

The House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds will be asked this morning to consider a revised draft of the McMillan bill to create a municipal airport at Washington-Hoover Field, it was learned last night.

Representative McMillan (Democrat), South Carolina, said he had redrafted the measure to permit the commissioners to lease a suitable airport site, in line with sugestions made by Representative Lanham (Democrat), Texas, chairman of the committee.

The redraft will provide authority to close Military road in Arlington County, and to take over part of the Agricultural Experiment Station, as part of the field. The field would be operated by the District government, from District funds, meeting objections made by the committee to the original McMillan bill.

INCREASE IN SELLING SEEN AT AUTO SHOW

Three Cars Still Remain to Be Given Away; Brakes Draw Attention.

With three more days to run, Washington's thirteenth annual Automobile Show already has sustained the prediction that the Nation's leading manufacturing industry may look forward to a better year in this city than it enjoyed in 1932. Again yesterday, in response to improved weather, both attendance and sales at the event being held at the Washington Auditorium took a decided turn for the better.

Dealers report, however, that the increased volume of sales indicated for this year will be almost entirely in the nature of replacements. Show-goers who have bought cars and those who have indicated a need for new automobiles are unanimous in pointing out that their present machines have outlived their usefulness.

Replacements, exhibitors are being told, are essential from the standpoints of efficiency, convenience and safety.

With regard to the latter, a deep interest is being manifested by the public in respect to mechanical features which contribute to the safety of the 1933 models. Larger and more powerful brakes, many of which are mechanically "boosted" and all of which require less energy in operation, are features of the cars exhibited in the show at the Auditorium. Steering, too, is attracting a great deal of attention and another safety characteristic of the display models which has caught the public fancy is improved visibility, exhibitors say.

The Washington Automotive Trade Association will be hosts to the Baltimore Automotive Trad. body this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at Harvey's.

Three cars, one each day, remain to be awarded to fortunate showgoers, according to R. J. Murphy, show manager. This is counted upon to influence attendance during the remaining days of the show.

Lois Moran Urges Idle Actors' Relief

Asks That Special Program Be Undertaken by Welfare Groups.

Miss Lois Moran, starring at the National this week, yesterday urged a group of social workers and ministers of Washington to take the lead in some welfare project which would aid unemployed and homeless stage people.

She commended the work of the Travelers' Aid, the Salvation Army and the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, but she asked that a special program to benefit specifically those of the stage be undertaken.

Vacant Brick Dwellings in Southwest Razed by Volunteers.

Apparently there is a gross misunderstanding concerning the legal meaning of the word "condemned" in the Southwest section of the city. It seems that great numbers of the populace in that section think that when a building is condemned it can be dismantled by whosoever will and the materials appropriated and utilized in any manner whatsoever.

Leastwise that is the impression Fourth Precinct police obtained yesterday afternoon in their investigation of the razing of two-story brick dwellings at 419 and 421 First street southwest, and the partial dismantlement of the third at 423 First street. The wrecking of the buildings apparently was only an overnight job. The houses were owned by the Washington Housing Corporation, and had been vacant some time.

James Thompson, 42, colored, 142 C street southwest, was taken into custody in connection with the case, and was being held last night on a charge of investigation. Thompson said that about 3 p. m. Wednesday some one told him that the buildings had been condemned, that the materials were free for the taking, and he might as well "come on over and get some of it."

Frank T. Fuller, president of the Housing Corporation, is reported to have told police that Thompson was selling the materials taken from the wrecked buildings, but the man denied the charge.

This is the second time that Fourth Precinct police have been confronted with the unauthorized wrecking of buildings and the theft of the materials. About a year ago they were confronted with a similar case when buildings near the Capitol were wrecked.

Insurance Men Say Depression Is Over

Boston Mutual Life Agents Hold Conference at Mayflower.

That the depression is definitely at an end and business conditions show a marked improvement is the opinion of 60 officials and Eastern and Southern managers of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston, expressed at their annual conference yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

January insurance business throughout the country shows a substantial gain over January, 1932, the officials said. Persons who have borrowed money on their policies are paying off their obligations and payments on policies are being made promptly.

During the afternoon a business session was adjourned while members met President Hoover at the White House, where they were photographed.

A dinner for company supervisors, with Charles F. Collins, of Boston, superintendent of agencies, presiding, closed the first day's session. The conference will be concluded today.

$700 Burglary Charge Holds Prisoner for Jury

Pleading guilty when he was arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court yesterday, Lester C. Jackson, colored, was ordered held under a bond of $15,000 for the action of the grand jury on charges of housebreaking and larceny.

Jackson was arraigned on charges of stealing $700 worth of jewelry and clothing from the home of Mrs. Frances Hurley, and goods valued at $40 from the home of Frank E. Elder. He is facing additional charges, Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh declared.

BUILDING DEAL OFF, DISTRICT IS LOSER

$6,500,000 Out of Pocket as Result of Ruling Against Sale.

The District is $6,500,000 "out of pocket" because of failure to sell the District Building to the Federal Government, in connection with its Municipal Center plans, according to Maj. Daniel J. Donovan.

The city would have that much more money to spend if the Treasury had not decided the District has no right to sell a building in which the Federal Government has an equity, he told the House District Appropriations Committee.

"In the Municipal Center there has been appropriated from the surplus fund $6,500,000 for the purchase of a site, and that appropriation has been made on the theory that we would be able to go ahead promptly with the construction of the first unit of the Municipal Center, at a cost of somewhere between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000," he explained.

"The idea that we could go ahead with the construction was based on the belief that we would be able to sell the present District Building to the United States Government for about $5,000,000. That deal fell through. So we are $6,500,000 out of pocket."

Man Accused of Fraud In Case of Missing Dog

Because he failed to return either the dog or the $1.50 he had been given to effect its return, James E. Smith, colored, was named in a warrant issued yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney Roger Robb, charging him with the larceny of the money.

The complainant, Helen Johnson, also colored, said she had been told by Smith that he could get her missing dog back for her, with a $1.50 payment. However, she said, he failed to live us to his promise, and he failed likewise to return the money.

Novena to Honor Lady of Lourdes

Special Catholic Service in Saint's Memory Will Start Today.

A solemn novena in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes will begin at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest, at 12:15 p. m. today. Another service will be held at 7:45 p. m. and these special services will take place each day except Sunday through the feast day, February 11.

The Rev. George F. Strohaver, S. J., of Georgetown University, will preach the novena services, with a five-minute talk at the noon services and a 20-minute address at the evening services. On Sunday the novena will be observed at the 5 o'clock service broadcast from the church, with the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., preaching.

On February 11, the concluding day of the novena, the Feast of our Lady of Lourdes, the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, will be celebrant at the solemn high anniversary mass, in recognition of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Lourdes apparitions. The relic of Blessed Bernadette Soubiroux will be venerated at all services.

Firemen Throw the Bull

Swing Into Action When Animal Quits Pen for Wild Dash Through Petworth and Brightwood, and Finally Capture It by Its Tail.

An impromptu rodeo was staged in the quiet streets of Petworth and Brightwood yesterday, and today three firemen certainly are entitled to the chromium-plated spurs or whatever prizes go to champion amateur bulldoggers.

A bull, young and skittish, escaped from its pen in the rear of the home of its owner, Fred Miller, 812 Kennedy street northwest. It was to have been butchered yesterday.

Creating a furor in Petworth and Brightwood, the progress of the animal soon attracted a squadron of those urban riders of the range—the police.

No lariats were carried by the cowboys of the asphalt, however, and the bull got as far as Petworth School and, meeting several hundred school children screaming with excitement, doubled on its tracks.

Finally, Private S. D. Clatterbuck, of No. 3 Engine Company, took a running dive and grabbed the bull's tail. Then Lieut. E. J. Carroll and Private P. J. Wheeler, of No. 2 Engine Company, swirled a rope around the bull's neck. This checked considerably the cavortings of the bull, and later its owner appeared with a truck and helpers to take it back to its corral.

Mr. Miller said the bull's dash from death gained it a 24-hour reprieve.

ONLY ECONOMY ACT SPARES CITY FROM DEFICIT OF $877,000

Auditor Donovan Describes Excess of Appropriations Over Revenues.

The economy act alone stood between the District and a deficit of $877,000 for 1933, District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan informed the House District Appropriations Committee, it was disclosed in hearings released last night.

"While the total of our appropriations exceeded our revenues by $877,000, we may have at the end of 1933 a small balance of $8,195," Maj. Donovan testified.

"And we will have that solely as the result of the savings under the economy act of June 30, 1932, amounting to $2,135,704.

"So the economy act is in a way a life-saver to the District of Columbia in the fiscal year 1933."

Serious Drop in Revenues.

Earlier Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer and District Tax Assessor Richards told of a serious falling off in revenue collections over the last fiscal year, particularly in real estate and intangibles.

With the number of appeals coming in for reduced assessments, Mr. Richards said the District would have difficulty in maintaining its valuation of real estate next year. He said he favored a District income tax to a tax on intangibles.

"In your opinion," Chairman Clarence Cannon interpreted his testimony, "we are faced with one or two alternatives. "We must either levy an income tax, or we must decrease the cost of operation and decrease the amount of the appropriations for the maintenance of the city."

$8,000,000 Unpaid Taxes.

Maj. Donovan said that if unpaid taxes could be collected on all properties "we would be about $8,000,000 to the good." He said the total unpaid real estate and tangible personal property taxes amounts to that sum.

Commissioner Reichelderfer told of present and prospective efforts toward economy in the District government.

"The Commissioners believe that there is opportunity for further reductions in maintenance and operating costs in the District government, and it is their intention that the economy committee during this year shall make further investigations into the various branches and services of the District government for the purpose of accomplishing this result," he said.

$7,500 Given Woman After Auto-Cab Crash

Mary E. Glasscock, of 503 B street northeast, yesterday was awarded a $7,500 verdict against the Schneider Baking Co. for injuries she suffered in February, 1929, when a cab in which she was riding was struck by a baking company car.

The Independent Taxi Owners Association, named as a codefendant, was cleared when Justice Jesse C. Adkins, associate justice of the District Supreme Court, directed the jury to find for the cab company because liability had not been established. Attorney Milton W. King appeared for the complainant.

DISTRICT FINES 4,659 IN JANUARY TRAFFIC

Parking Violations Lead All Classes With Penalties From $2 to $100.

A total of 4,659 persons paid fines of from $2 to $100 for violations of the District traffic regulations during January, according to a statement issued by the Traffic Bureau yesterday.

The greatest number of arrests made were for violation of parking regulations other than overtime. The total for the month was 1,003.

Running this figure a close second was a total of 879 arrests for parking overtime. Six hundred and eighty-two persons were arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

Serious violations entailing the payment of larger fines included 14 for driving while drunk, 1 for falsifying an auto title, 39 for reckless driving, 18 for colliding and failing to stop, 5 for driving through safety zones, and 1 for driving over a fire hose.

Atlanta Schoolboy Sought by Mother

Police Here Requested to Locate Alva Taylor, Who Ran Away.

Washington police last night were asked to aid in a search for Alva Truman Taylor, 15-year-old high school student of Atlanta, Ga., who disappeared from his home there several days ago and was thought to have headed for the Capital.

The boy was dressed in a khaki cadet uniform and according to his mother, Mrs. Eva M. Taylor, he left home because he was failing in his school work and was not getting along with his classmates.

It also was learned that the Tech High School Band, of which young Taylor was a member, is scheduled to participate in the inaugural parade here on March 4.

Chest Forum Will Train Speakers on Institutions

Formation of the Community Chest Forum, to put before prospective speakers more accurate knowledge of the organizations comprising the Community Chest, was perfected at a meeting of the speakers' unit yesterday at Community Chest headquarters in the Investment Building. In the absence of Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of the unit, Herbert L. Willett, jr., acting secretary, presided.

Meetings of the forum will be held the last Tuesday in each month, starting February 28, and each meeting will be devoted to a discussion of one group of agencies in the Community Chest. The five subjects to be discussed are "Character Building Agencies," "Community Chest Administration," "Public and Private Relief," "Our Health Program" and "Case Work, What and Why."

Technocracy Hit At Club Meeting

Cosmopolitan Group Hears Art Brown Take Rap at Machine Threat.

The weak spot in technocracy, declared Art Brown, associate editor of Nation's Business, in a speech yesterday before the Cosmopolitan Club at Carlton Hotel, is that it offers no solution for conditions today except to claim that the country should be run by engineers and not by politicians.

Mr. Brown outlined the start of technocracy through the plan of Howard Scott. Much of the prominence given the new theory was due to the supposed sponsorship by the university, he said, which has since disclaimed any connection with the plan.

It is "sheer nonsense," said Mr. Brown, to think that civilization is facing ruin because of the machine.

BURROUGHS GROUP DEFENDS FIGHT FOR CUPOLA ON SCHOOL

Citizens Deny Asking for Funds That Might Be Used for New Rooms.

Another gun was fired last night by the Burroughs Citizens Association in its battle for the cupola for the Taft Junior High School, when they replied to charges that in waging the fight they were seeking funds that might be used for badly needed additional classrooms in the local school system.

In a caustic reply to this criticism the cupola committee pointed out that funds for the cupola have already been appropriated and that the saving would not amount to more than $5,000, not enough to build one classroom.

It was also pointed out that a total of $162,000 has already been saved out of the appropriation originally allotted for the Taft School, sufficient, it was observed, to build an eight-room elementary school building in some other community.

City Engineer Target.

The District Engineer Commissioner was made the target of a further fusillade from the association. He was charged with disregarding the law and executive orders pertaining to plans for public buildings in the District. It was also charged that he is receiving the support of the House District subcommittee on appropriations in this direction.

"If this continues," the cupola committee stated, "a most dangerous precedent will be made, whereby the architectural beauty of all buildings will be left to District engineers who have no training, and perhaps no interest, in architecture."

Airport Plan Criticized.

The cupola committee asserted that while the engineer commissioner had "a gentleman's agreement" with the District subcommittee to eliminate "doo-dads" from school buildings, "that he was continuing to approve plans with embellishments sent to him by the municipal architect and then later eliminate them."

The association attacked the proposal of Representative McMillan, of South Carolina, for the leasing of an airport to the District government instead of the Federal. This, it was pointed out, would be burdening local taxpayers with a tax that might be used for school improvements.

The association had as its guests boys and fathers of the committee, who launched a movement for a fathers' club and formation of a boys' club. A moving picture of the park system of the District was shown.

Trade Board Event In Waikiki Setting

Willard Ballroom Is to Be Converted Into Noted Cocoanut Grove.

Artists, decorators, carpenters and electricians will invade the ballroom of the Willard Hotel this morning to convert it into a replica of the famous Cocoanut Grove at Waikiki, the playground of Hawaii, which is to be the setting of the annual midwinter dinner of the Washington Board of Trade, scheduled to begin at 6:45 p. m. tomorrow.

The midwinter dinner, gala event of the Board of Trade, is expected this year to surpass all others for color and variety of entertainment. A lavish program, in which Hawaiian music and dancers will feature, is to be presented.

The stage on which this entertainment will take place will have as its background a reproduction of Kilauea, one of the greatest active volcanoes in the world. Decorations in the ballroom will consist of palms and flowers, ferns, cocoanut palms, hibiscus blossoms, oriental lanterns. The theme of the occasion will be "Under the Hawaiian Rainbow."

Nurse Attacked; Robber Gets $40

Bride of Week Is Knocked Unconscious by Thief in Doctor's Office.

Mrs. Marian McCenney, 22, nurse in the office of Dr. Stewart O. Foster in the Medical Science Building, 1029 Vermont avenue, was knocked unconscious and robbed of $40 yesterday by a robber who entered during the absence of the physician.

The nurse was bruised on the forehead. The holdup man took $30 from the doctor's cash and $10 from the nurse's pocketbook.

The nurse said the man, who was about 30 years old, walked into the office and asked her if the doctor was in. When she told him the doctor was out and asked if she could be of aid, he replied, "Not a thing," and struck her on the head. She fell to the floor, unconscious, and he proceeded to rifle the cash till. Mrs. McCenney, who formerly was Miss Marian E. White, is the bride of a week of B. B. McCenney.

Youth Is Critically Hurt As Auto Leaves Road

Robert Kelly, 23 years old, an employe of the Congressional Country Club, was critically injured yesterday when his car left the road on River road near Willetts Branch, Bethesda, and ran down a steep embankment. He was taken to Georgetown University Hospital by the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department Rescue Squad.

Hospital authorities said he is believed to have suffered a fracture of the skull, although this can not be definitely ascertained until an X-ray is made. The youth is believed to have lost control of his car, according to Bethesda police.

Woman Hurts Leg in Fall.

Mrs. Allien Gilliland, 60, of 2122 California street northwest, suffered a fracture of her right leg yesterday afternoon when she slipped and fell while walking along the 2,000 block of Connecticut avenue. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.
